

"BEERLESS DAYS" COMFORT GERMANS

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The German government is seriously considering plans to reduce the consumption of beer. It is explained, thought, the proposed measures will only remain in force as long as the war lasts.

The brewers have been notified that the quantities of barley which they received so far for malt will have to be reduced further. This means less or weaker beer. As the public objects to any reduction of the quality of the national beverage, the quality will have to be reduced, and to this end the "food dictator" has proposed "beerless days."

The plan of the dictator meets with noisy opposition, especially in Bavaria, where beerless days would almost be considered a national calamity. Strong protests also come from Saxony, Wuertemberg and Baden, and the brewers and saloonkeepers have called a convention to thresh out the whole matter. If the government insists on its plans even the Bavarians probably will agree to drink weaker beer, as not to be compelled to go without it one or two days every week.

and that it might be better to install the apparatus in Glen Miller park. The committee was advised to consider these suggestions in making its next report.

Want a Baby Elephant.

The proposition of buying a baby elephant for Glen Miller park will be considered at the next meeting. There are several plans being suggested whereby funds may be raised. All the boys want an elephant which can be ridden.

The ordinance committee was instructed to incorporate in its police regulations a law prohibiting boys from cutting across lawns and instruct the boy policemen to require all who violate the law to appear before the Boytown mayor.

Mayor Robbins gave a short speech before the Boytown council last night in which he congratulated boys for the way in which they were taking hold of the Boytown proposition. Especially did he congratulate Paul Heir-omius, clerk, for the way in which he had prepared the minutes of the last meeting.

All boys took active parts in the discussion last night. Everything went off without a hitch, save when the mayor called one of the councilmen down for not addressing the chair, the councilman forgot what he was going to say.

DENVER TO START "HALL OF FAME"

DENVER, Col., Aug. 4.—What probably will be known as a civic benefactor, is to be constructed on the Bates triangle section of the Civic Center, according to plans being worked out by the city administration. As agreed upon by the mayor and his cabinet, this "court" will consist of a group of marble pillars or shafts to perpetuate the memory of those who make worth-while donations to the municipality. It is planned to make this an imposing and highly ornamental group that will be one of the leading decorative features of the Civic Center, and it is proposed at the same time to make this improvement without an additional tax levy. The method in raising the money to be adopted has not been made public, but the im-
