

LARGE CROWDS HEAR SPEECHES OVER COUNTY

James P. Goodrich, Republican candidate for governor, and Judge D. W. Comstock, candidate for congressman, were today making an automobile tour of Wayne county speaking in the majority of the towns.

The two candidates were accompanied by a number of Richmond Republicans in fifteen automobiles. Every place where a meeting was held, good sized crowds were assembled to hear the speeches.

This morning meetings were held at Whitewater, Bethel, Fountain City, Economy and Williamsburg. This afternoon Mr. Goodrich and Judge Comstock are to speak in Hagerstown, Greensfork and Centerville. This evening both candidates will address a meeting of Union county Republicans to be held in Liberty.

Judge Comstock confined his remarks for the most part to a discussion of the issues of the national campaign. Mr. Goodrich discussed state issues mostly and delivered quite an important address on the budget system, which he strongly advocates, at Greensfork.

BIG FUND PASSES THE MARK SET

Richmond's hundred thousand dollar factory development fund went across the line last night. Final reports brought the total to $103,280 in the hardest and biggest campaign ever held here.

A new significance has been given to the movement. Richmond is celebrating her hundredth anniversary. She starts the second lap of her history as a municipality and simultaneously begins a new era of industrial, civic, school and cultural history.

John Lontz, elected. Prior to the meeting in the high school chapel last night, the directors of the Richmond Industrial Development company organized and voted to make the first call of ten per cent of pledges. John M. Lontz was elected president, George Seidel vice president, S. E. Swayne treasurer and E. M. Haas, secretary.

The directors then met at Commercial club rooms and elected John M. Lontz a director and vice president of the Commercial club. From a standpoint of attendance, the meeting in the high school auditorium was a keen disappointment to Chairman Lontz and others. Later it was regarded as the most novel and interesting meeting ever held here. The attendance was about 300 persons.

Calls for Enterprise. A new spirit must be instilled into the citizens of Richmond, Mr. Lontz said. He spoke of the city's standing in art, music and culture and then asked that a spirit of enterprise be raised.

L. S. Bowman, president of the Commercial club, pledged in behalf of the club directors to try to make every dollar of the fund bring back one hundred dollars and closed his talk with a warm eulogy for Mr. Lontz. Principal Frank G. Pickel of the high school made one of the principal speeches in which he declared the fund means better greater and broader things for the young people of Richmond, an expansion of the school system and power and facilities for increasing the scope and efficiency of school work and life.

Teachers Vote Help. "Do you men appreciate what it means when teachers vote to support a movement?" he asked. "I was pleased when the federation voted $100 to the fund. The teachers of Richmond that I know of have given almost $500."

The first three committees to report fell well below the $300 mark to which every committee had pledged a week previously when the fund stood at $95,800. Then E. R. Lemon's committee reported $745, C. H. Kramer's $641 and O. G. Murray's $540.

With ten more committees to report, it was then plainly seen that the fund would pass $100,000 and the meeting became enthusiastic.

Three other committees averaging $400 each brought the total to $99,541.

Bond Robbed of Honor. "Our committee will have the honor of putting across the hundred thousand mark," said Dr. C. S. Bond. He reported $350 and members of the other committees laughingly called his attention to the fact that the fund was still short.

"I will pledge enough to make the hundred thousand," said James M. Carr. The figures were tallied and

The shortage was found to be $109. He signed a new card for that amount. "I will make it $100,000," said George Seidel, who has led half of the same committee to which Mr. Carr belonged. Both men had previously pledged heavily personally and through firms with which they are connected.

Other Pledges Still Out. When the reports were in and $103,280 was pledged, committee men said there are still several promises of pledges which will be productive and may raise the fund to at least $104,000.

Cooperation Develops. The campaign may prove to be a new record for committee reports. D. H. McFarland, managing the campaign for the Town Development company of New York, said his professional experience with campaigns in fifty cities in four years had never developed the cooperation which was given in Richmond.

Every committee member worked the five days pledged to work and every committee had representatives working on every succeeding day of the campaign.

LaCrosse, Wis., which had every committee at work four days and only a few at work during succeeding days of a campaign there, claimed the world's record. Mr. McFarland said. He complimented Secretary Haas of the Commercial club on his devotion to the club's interest and the knowledge of the city which has been valuable in making out cards.

"Now that you have laid the foundation for a bigger and greater Richmond, take the public into your confidence with your future movements. Tell them everything you do and announce where you are going to spend every penny and why," he advised the directors of the development company.

John L. Rupe, who said he has lived in Richmond since they had sheds in the streets, gave an interesting and witty talk. James A. Carr passed strong encomiums for the success of the campaign for the committee which secured him for chairman. "I am not disappointed," said Wilfred Jessup, "because there is a small attendance here, when I consider who is here. Not another city in the country can see in its personnel the strength and stability of the men of Richmond."

USE MOVIE SHOWS TO FIGHT PLAGUE

Plans for using motion picture shows to educate the public in preventing the spread of tuberculosis are being discussed at great length at the annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley conference on tuberculosis at Louisville, Ky. Miss Mary Kennedy, county visiting nurse and Mrs. O. N. Huff, Fountain City, are representing the Wayne county anti-tuberculosis society.

An inventor living at Troy, N. Y., has patented a laundry machine that rolls an entire skirt over a conical roller at a single operation.

RUSHVILLE FIRM MAKES LOW BIDS ON WOODEN SPANS

Kennedy and Son, Rushville, entered the low bids to county commissioners today for repairing the two wooden bridges north of Fountain City over Nolan's Fork and Buck Run. The bid includes both bridges and calls for $369.50.

George W. Payne, Liberty, entered the low bid for putting the new abutment under the bridge over Buck Run. It calls for $720.

George E. Canady, Economy, entered the low bid, $765, for the Williamson bridge, Perry township, and W. R. Payne registered a low bid of $360 for the Stanley bridge, Perry township.

Bids of Louie Brower, Kentucky wooden bridge expert, were not considered, because they did not conform to the laws of Indiana.

APPROVES PLANS FOR NEW SCHOOL

Dr. King, representing the State Board of Health, yesterday put his stamp of approval on plans for the New Garden high school building to be erected at Fountain City. He suggested only one change in the plans of Architect Werking. An extra hallway will be put in the basement making it possible for the janitor to get to the furnace from the front of the building without passing through any class room.

The township advisory board will meet tonight to pass on the plans and to advertise for bids. The building will cost about $18,000.

OPTION IS TAKEN ON HILL ESTATE

County commissioners have taken a month's option on the Hill estate, thirty-seven acres, east of Centerville, as a site for the tuberculosis hospital. The option sets the value at $211 an acre, making the total value of the farm, $7,507.

If the county council passes on the additional $7,000 appropriation, Wednesday, this site will be purchased immediately.

POLICE CAPTURE GAMING BOARD

It was a simple little device and a money-maker. When folded it resembled a sample case. When opened there was one section marked off in squares where gamblers placed their coin and each square numbered. The other section was arranged to stand upright when the case was open. This was studded with a number of brass tacks.

At the top were two slots for a wooden ball the size of a small marble. When this ball was inserted in a slot it would bounce from tack to tack until it reposed in one of several slots numbered to correspond with the numbers on the squares. Then in the back of this case, obscured from the eyes of the player, was a slide, to be pushed back or forward, the slide controlling the way the ball would descend. This slide was for the convenience of the operator of the game.

The handy contrivance for the fleecing of the come-one is now in the possession of the police. It was being operated yesterday by a man who was stranded in Richmond after the most recent carnival company departed from our midst. He was doing quite a lively business when Chief Goodwin made his appearance. The man was released when he promised to leave town. He had been operating the game in the field opposite Glen Miller park.

Mrs. Le Duc is the wife of a prominent Chicago business man, and was shot in a room in a Philadelphia hotel by Mrs. Harry Belzer, who shot and killed Joseph Graveur and then committed suicide. The tragedy has furnished a mystery which the police of New York and Philadelphia are endeavoring to unravel.

Mrs. Le Duc denies that she went from New York to Philadelphia with Graveur, who was a wealthy garage owner of New York, and said she did not know the woman who fired the shots. She asserts that she went into Graveur's room to get a handbag she had left there while she went to the theatre with him.

BREAD LOAF SIZE VARIES FOR YEAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Statistics showing the rapid rise in the retail price of bread were made public today by the bureau of labor statistics, giving the range of bread prices from August 1913, to August, 1916. Most of the increases, according to the report, were in variations in the size of the five-cent loaf rather than in the price. The increase ranged from one-hundredth of a cent to one cent a loaf. "I wrote to him describing the necklace and he replied that the description tallied with that of the necklace he had found. We arranged to meet each other at a hotel here today."

Wickersham received a liberal reward from Mrs. East, who greatly prizes her necklace. She dropped it out of a purse which she had neglected to close after making a payment in a restaurant. Wickersham found the necklace on a sidewalk.

PENNSY'S WORK BOOSTS TRADE IN SOME LINES

Bradstreet's review of trade conditions for Richmond follows:

Sudden change in weather conditions has made a decided increase in the retail trade in all lines of wearing apparel during the last week. Clothing and shoe houses did capacity business. Wholesale grocery and provision market steady; collections somewhat better. Retail groceries report good business; collections normal.

Retail and wholesale hardware houses report market rising with no relief in the shortage of some lines. Collection normal. Lawn mower manufacturers report the heaviest season in their history. Factories worked to capacity during the months of June, July and August. Demand for the better grade of machines; collections good. Outlook for next year's business ahead of this year.

Live stock market about the same. Work on the $600,000 improvements being put in in this city by the Pennsylvania railroad progressing nicely; this means more brisk trading in the local lumber, clothing and provision market.

During the last week there has been a campaign waged in this city to raise $100,000 to be used as an industrial development fund in bringing new industries to this city. The demand for rentable houses exceeds the supply and next year will see much activity among the building lines locally. Car shortage still felt here with no relief in sight. Demand for loans at local banks about normal.

ON BOARD THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN, Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 7.—President Wilson, in a declaration to the newspaper correspondents, said today that he had not "surrendered" on the eight hour controversy, but rather had "intervened."

He claimed that his loss was $4,000 and asked that the full amount of the policy be paid him. The company offered to pay $3,000 but says that there are not claims sufficient to prove that the property was worth any more.
