

CIVILIZATION PLAYS AT MURRAY THEATRE BRINGING HOME POWERFUL PEACE PLEA BY DESCRIBING HORRORS OF CARNAGE

"Civilization," showing at the Murray theatre, the biggest and most impressive motion picture which has been here except the "Birth of a Nation," sent home a lesson of peace to Richmond and showed, probably as forcefully as anything but real fighting could, the horrors of battle.

The picture is an allegory based on the European war. It is based on the claims of the world that the highest civilization attainable had been reached before the conflict opened. The title, "Civilization," is ironical as applied to almost the entire picture, which deals with carnage until near the end. The picture opens in a time of peace. The undisturbed life of rural Belgium is shown, the flocks of sheep, the crops, the children at play, the happy mothers and successful brothers. Out of this, the bomb of war comes and the king, fearing the pressure of his nation, assembles a vast army which begins its destruction at once.

The chief character is the titled inventor of a new submarine, who loves a girl of the people. The king promises that he may marry her if his in-

52 YEARS SERVICE

Despite his record for long service, Perry is only 65 years old, having started to work when he was 12 years old for the P. F. W. and C. Railway company.

Perry's unique record are many interesting experiences. At one time, about 15 years ago, he was in a accident which almost terminated his connection with work. His engine was struck by an engine in the Fort Wayne yards and Perry was believed to have been fatally injured. Twelve months later he returned to work.

Perry was born in Vermont and was brought to Fort Wayne when a small child. He started to work as a machinist's helper in the Fort Wayne engine shops when 12 years old and May 4, 1875 became a foreman for the G. R. & I. The next St. Patrick's day, March 17, 1876, he was promoted to engineer and for 12 years ran a freight train. For almost 30 years he has been a passenger engineer.

Ran Old Wood Burner. He was known to his fellow employees as "Little Frankie" and he often told stories of the service with the old "wood burners" when it was necessary for the engineer to place grease on the rails and turn the wheels which connected the water pumps and pistons in order to fill his boilers.

When Perry completed his fortieth year as engineer for the G. R. & I. last year, he took a day's vacation, one of the few he has ever taken for any necessary purposes.

PLAN THRIFT LUNCHES TO CUT LIVING COST

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Cooking courses have been started in nineteen of the Indianapolis public schools, with the special idea of combating the high cost of living. "Thrifty Luncheons" will be given, the girls taking the course purchasing the supplies according to given menus. The cost has been computed so carefully that each meal will require an outlay of 13 cents cash. The young cooks have the privilege of inviting their parents and friends to partake of the luncheons upon the payment of 15 cents. The extra 2 cents charged the diners is to pay for the cost of the gas used in cooking the meal.

The picture shows best the stubborn pride of a ruler, the sufferings of the mothers and the terrible destruction caused by the troops and their modern war machinery. It also has an aeroplane battle which alone would be worthy of great price for its producer.
