

WARNER TURNS DOWN RECRUITS POLICE OFFER

Sergeant Henry H. Warner, army recruiting officer for Richmond, today refused to accept four men who had elected to join the army in preference to going to jail.

"We appreciate efforts to stimulate recruiting but the army does not accept recruits who have been law violators," Warner informed police officials.

Five men were arraigned before Mayor Robbins this morning charged with vagrancy. Mayor Robbins gave all five the choice of joining the army or navy or going to jail. Louis Overstreet and Oscar Bowen, both colored, promptly answered that they would like to join the army. Paul Waggoner and George Phelps, white, were equally prompt in announcing that they would join the navy. Paul Tubbs, white, said he preferred going to jail. Sergeant Warner was called to headquarters. He turned down all five applicants for enlistment. He said the colored regiments were enlisted up to war strength. One white boy eliminated himself by admitting he had twice served jail sentences. The other white boy had defective eyes.

"The army wants high grade recruits, not jail birds," Warner remarked.

"What the h—l could a German spy find to spy on in Richmond?" inquired the professional man, and he forgot to speak in an undertone.

The meeting adjourned abruptly. Richmond is having its first "spy scare" in its history. It is such a rare novelty that the self-appointed spy hunters are enjoying themselves to the limit. The only thing to spoil their fun is to have some thoughts and unimaginative individual inquire:
