Quotations on Stock, Grain and Produce in Large Trading Centers by Associated Press—Local Prices Revised Daily by Leading Dealers.

SHARP RAISE IN GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO, July 28.—Uneasiness regarding the effectiveness of the switchmen's strike had much to do today with a sharp advance that took place in prices of grain and provisions. Shorts in the corn trade were especially disturbed over the disturbance which the strike had suddenly brought about in shipping arrangements. Continuation of dry hot weather in the southwest counted also as a bullish influence. Purchasing was on a large scale. Opening prices, which varied from the same as yesterday's finish to 1 1/2% higher, with September at 163 and December at 117 1/2 to 118 were followed by a jump to about 2c up in the active deliveries.

Wheat rose in sympathy with corn. Trading, however, was very light. After opening 4c higher at 238 1/2 September the market reacted to 238 1/2. Shorts and commission houses were bidding eagerly against each other for oats. Reports continued that the Dutch government was calling for immediate seaboard loading of all the grain that had been purchased in Holland.

Provisions responded to an advance in the hog market, a circumstance due in turn to the strike having seriously curtailed arrivals of hogs.

Christian Churches of Wayne County to Meet at Centerville

The annual summer meeting of the Christian churches of Wayne county will be held at Centerville on the first Sunday in August.

Plans are being arranged for a monster Bible school to be held in the park at that place in the morning, and very able and forceful speakers for the services have been consented to be present.

Every church in the county is expected to send a large delegation. The program follows:

10:15 a. m.—Bible school, A. A. Lindley, superintendent.

11:00 a. m.—Communion and preaching in charge of Rev. L. E. Murray of the First church in Richmond.

12:00 (noon)—Basket dinner.

1:30 p. m.—Song service in charge of Mrs. Nellie McVey of Richmond and an orchestra will assist in the music.

2:00 p. m.—Address by Rev. Decker, pastor of the Greenfield church.

3:00 p. m.—Concert by the Centerville band.

"Whereas: There is no necessity for creating such an office, and:

"Whereas: There is urgent demand on the finances of the city for other measures of much more importance, and:

"Whereas: The income of the city will next year be considerably reduced by reason of the abolition of saloons, and:

"Whereas: The taxpayers of Richmond will be called on for increasing taxes to the federal government during the coming year, and:

Mayor Has Presided.

"Whereas: The mayor of the city has heretofore presided over the police court, and it has required but a little of his time each day to do so, and:

"Whereas: To create the office of city judge would require the expenditure of $1,200 in salary to said judge, each year:

"Therefore, Be it resolved, by the city committee of the Republican party that we are opposed to the introduction of such an ordinance in council, and urge that it be defeated."

Dr. Zimmerman said that during his administration there was never an instance when he didn't feel qualified to try the case before him.

"There is no necessity for a city judge in a town the size of Richmond as there are but few serious criminal cases to try," he said.

KING-of-the KHYBER RIFLES

A Romance of Adventure

By TALBOT MUNDY

COPYRIGHT 1916 BY THE BROWN-MUNDEL CO.

She went over the bridge on tip-toes, like nothing else under heaven but Yasmini at her bewitchingest. And without pausing on the far side she danced up the hewn stone stairs, diving into the dark hole and was gone!

"Come!" yelled Ismail in King's ear. He could have heard nothing less, for the cavern was like to burst apart from the tumult.

"Whither?" the Afridi shouted in disgust. "Does the wind ask whither? Come like the wind and see! They will remember next that they have a bone to pick with thee! Come away!"

That seemed good enough advice. He followed as fast as Ismail could shoulder a way out between the frantic hillmen, deafened, stupefied, numbed, almost cowed by the ovation they were giving the "Heart of the their Hills."

CHAPTER XII

As they disappeared after a scramble through the mouth of the same tunnel they had entered by, a roar went up behind them like the birth of earthquakes. Looking back over his shoulder, King saw Yasmini come back into the hole's mouth, to stand framed in it and bow acknowledgment. She looked so ravishing in contrast to the huge grim wall, and the black river, and the darkness at her back, that Khinjan's thousands tried to storm the bridge and drag her down to them. The guards were put hard to it, with their backs to the bridge end, for two or three minutes. But Ismail would not let him wait and watch from there. He dragged him down the tunnel and pushed him up on to a ledge where they could both see without being seen, through a fissure in the rock.

For the space of five minutes Yasmini stood in the great hole, smiling and watching the struggle below. Then she went, and the guards began to get the best of it, because the crowd's enthusiasm waned when they could see her no more. Then suddenly the guards began to loose random volleys at the roof and brought down hundreds of splintered stalactites. Within a minute there were a hundred men busy sweeping up the splinters. In another minute twenty Zakka Khels had begun a sword dance yelling like the damned. A hundred joined them. In three minutes more the whole arena was a dinning whirlpool, and the river's voice was drowned in shouting and the stamping of naked feet on stone.

"Come!" urged Ismail, and led the way.

King's last impression was of the stalactites and the hurrying river that multiplied the dancing lights into a million, and the great roof hurried the din down again to make confusion with the new din coming up.

Ismail went like a rat down a run, and King failed to overtake him until he found him in the cave of the slippers kicking to right and left at random. "Choose a good pair!" he growled. "Let late-comers fight for what is left. Nay, I have three! Choose thou the next best!"

The statement being one of fact, and that no time or place for a quarrel with the only friend in sight, King picked out the best slippers he could see. The instant he had them on Ismail was off again, running like the wind.

They had no torch. They left the little tunnel lamps behind. It became so dark that King had to follow by ear, and so it happened that he missed seeing where the tunnel forked. He imagined they were running back toward the ledge under the waterfall, yet, when Ismail called a halt at last, panting, groped behind a great rock for a lamp and lit the wick with a common safety match, they were in a cave he had never seen before.

"Where are we?" King asked.

"Where none dare seek us."

Ismail held the lamp high, shielding its wick with a hollowed palm and peering about him as if in doubt, his ragged beard looking like smoke in the wind; for a wind blew down all the passages in Khinjan.

King examined the lamp. It was of bronze and almost as surely ancient Greek as it surely was not Indian. There were figures graven on the bowl representing a woman dancing, who looked not unlike Yasmini; but before he had time to look very closely Ismail blew the lamp out and was off again, like a shadow shot into its mother night.

Confused by the sudden darkness King crashed into a rock as he tried to follow. Ismail turned back and

Largest Military Review in History at Fort Ben Aug. 10

INDIANAPOLIS, July 28.—The largest military review ever held at Fort Benjamin Harrison, where thousands of young men from West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana are training for the officers' reserve corps, has been set for Aug. 10. In addition to Maj. Gen. Barry, commander of the Central department, the governors of the four states represented by the candidates have been invited to attend. Governors Cox of Ohio; Stanley, of Kentucky, and Goodrich of Indiana, already have visited the fort.

Staging the review shortly before the close of the training camp, will show to the best advantage what the men have learned. All told about 12,000 troops will take part.

There has been a great improvement in the student officers and their ability. As the camp nears a close, and as various ones have been given opportunities to display their ability to handle men in different formations, and to meet many supposit situations, stories are being circulated concerning the earlier experiences of the temporary officers and their ways of extricating themselves from seemingly unmanageable tangles.

One student officer in his first attempt to command succeeded in tying gave him the end of a cotton girdle that he unwound from his waist; then he plunged ahead again into Climmerian blackness, down a passage so narrow that they could touch a wall with either hand.

Once he shouted back to duck, and they passed under a low roof where water dripped on them, and the rock underfoot was the bed of a shallow stream. After that the track began to rise, and the grade grew so steep that even Ismail, the furious, had to slacken pace. They began to climb titanic stairways all in the dark, feeling their way through fissures in the mountain's framework, up zigzag ledges, and over great broken lumps of rock from one cave to another; until at last in one great cave Ismail stopped and relit the lamp. Hunting about with its aid he found an imported "hurricane" lantern and lit that, leaving the bronze lamp in its place.

Soon after that they lost sight of walls to their left for a time, although there were no stars, nor any light to suggest the outer world—nothing but wind. The wind blew a hurricane.

Their path now was a very narrow ledge formed by a crack that ran diagonally down the face of a black cliff on their right. They hugged the stone because of a sense of fathomless space above—below—on every side but one. The rock wall was the one thing tangible, and the footing the crack in it afforded was the gift of God. The moaning wind rose to a shriek at intervals and made their clothes flutter like ghosts' shrouds, and in spite of it King's shirt was drenched with sweat, and his fingers ached from clinging as if they were on fire. Crawling against the wind along a wider ledge at the top, they came to a chasm, crossed by a foot-wide causeway. The wind howled and moaned in it, and the futile lantern rays only suggested unimaginable things—death the least of them.

"Art thou afraid?" asked Ismail, holding the lantern to King's face.

"Kuch dar nacin hai!" he answered. "There is no such thing as fear!"
