Lets Have Automobile Economy

Buy A Machine That Gives Most Mileage To A Gallon Of Gasoline.

The prospective buyer of an automobile should realize the importance of what the price of gasoline is and the number of miles they can expect to obtain on a gallon, also the first cost of the price of the machine.

The Saxon Motor Car Co., is manufacturing a roaster that sells at $395. It has a self starter and lighting system, speedometer, demountable rims, cantilever springs—in fact it is a fully equipped car that can not be equalled at a price of $600. It has lots of power, will hold the road at 50 miles per hour and will give better service at half the expense of most cars. This car is quite popular among school teachers who make long drives between their schools and home, traveling men, rural route carriers—it is a car that gives little trouble and for that reason is a big seller.

The Auto Sales Agency at 1211 Main St., who are the dealers in Eastern Indiana say that they are expecting quite a demand on this little car this fall.—Adv.

Flickers of What's Coming to Murrette

MONDAY
Uncle Woolwich, an eccentric millionaire, wills that his fortune shall be divided between his nephews, Barry Owen and Walter Woolwich, in proportion to the amount each shall have saved at the time of his death. Barry, a reporter, is penniless; Walter, a broker, is prospering. With his three-legged dog, Pod, Barry starts out as a "knight of the road" to get acquainted with Fortune. She meets him in the person of Faith Fanshawe, whose automobile is broken down. Faith gives Barry a fifty-cent piece for repairing her machine, however he keeps the money in remembrance of the beautiful girl.

TUESDAY
Miss Jackie Saunders, the clever young star whose motion picture career interests hundreds of thousands of people, has developed into an animal trainer of no mean ability, as a result of owning a pair of white mice. When Miss Saunders, who is now being starred in a new Mutual-Horkheimer production, "Bab, the Fixer," first found the mice, her instinct was to drown them, but the little animals improved on acquaintance and Miss Jackie determined to train them.

Within a short time the white mice were able to perform many tricks and having become interested in the work of animal training, Miss Saunders produced a guinea pig, a squirrel, a Belgian hare and two field gophers. This outfit is now well trained and Jackie entertains her friends by having the company of rodents perform.

WEDNESDAY
In one of the most unusual of his wonderful serio-comic photodramas, George Beban will be seen at the Murrette on Wednesday and Thursday in the Pallas-Paramount production of "A Roadside Impresario," his own story.

Washington Offerings For the Week

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's famous play "Iris" is to be shown at the Washington theatre Sunday, as a Pathe Gold Rooster feature. The title role is played by Miss Alma Taylor, the beautiful young English star. It is said that so pleased was Sir Arthur Pinero with Miss Taylor's work as "Iris" that he wrote her a letter in which he stated, "You are, my dear Miss Taylor, my ideal of the part and I could wish for no improvement in your interpretation."

"Iris" is beautifully produced and acted and it will prove an attraction of decided merit. The fame of the author, the strength of the story and the beauty of the heroine making it a photoplay that is well worth while.

Here is how the people in Helena, Mont., came to know that Frank Glenn, a native son, was in the motion pictures.

A girl cousin of the actor, who is now appearing in William Fox's "Wrath of Love," happened to go to a Miss Madalyn Randall and Miss Helen Hockett.

In his recent production of "The Marcellini Millions," Mr. Beban is seen as an Italian truck gardener, and in "A Roadside Impresario" as a roaming Italian with a trick bear performing for the benefit of the children in wayside towns. Mr. Beban doing himself the tricks the bear is supposed to do. How while trying to earn money enough as a dish-washer in a restaurant, to get Bruno, the bear, out of jail where he has been incarcerated for wrecking an alibi, he discovers a blackmailing plot against the local candidate for mayor, and also finds his daughter for whom he has been searching for sixteen years—all this is brought about in a most unusual and appealing manner.

FRIDAY
In a gripping, tense drama of brotherly love, House Peters, the splendid Pallas-Paramount star, will be seen at the Murrette on Friday and Saturday in the production "The Heir of the Ages," the unusual story by William Addison Lathrop.

House Peters has long been a great favorite of the photo-dramatic patrons. In "The Heir of the Ages," he is seen as a primitive man in the days of cave life and shows the human instincts of selfishness and love. Later the situations which confronted him ages ago come again when he is a superintendent of a mine in a small Western town. He falls in love with an ignorant little mountain girl only to lose her to his worthless brother in the East and then nearly loses his life in an effort to save hers.

TUESDAY
Filed by film critics as one of the most interesting photoplays features ever released through the Kleine-Ed-

in "A Naked Soul" which was recently released by this same service. Miss Grandaise has superb support in "When True Love Dawns." Albert Elmer, who played the blind schoolmaster in "Mothers of France" plays opposite her and makes a perfect characterization of a wealthy quarry owner who marries a beautiful girl much younger than himself. All the other members of the company are cast in roles that fit them exactly and as the whole production has been staged on a truly elaborate scale, it is evident that here is an exceptional entertainment.

June Elvidge, Montagu Love and Arthur Ashley—three big stars—are all seen in "The Guardian," the newest World-Picture Brady-Made and they will be seen in this production in this city on Wednesday and Thursday as upon that date "The Guardian" will be the attraction at the Washington theatre. This play is a fast-moving story of present-day life in which the love of a guardian for the beautiful girl who is his ward, develops into a romance of startling power and tumultuous incident. Montagu Love is mighty effective as the guardian. June Elvidge is entrancing as the impetuous, high-spirited ward, while Arthur Ashley is handsomely villainous in the role of Fenwick Harvey a young fortune hunter who first tries to marry the ward and then, failing in that, puts into operation a diabolical plot against her.

The sweetest girl in Europe is the star of "When True Love Dawns," the brilliant new picture published by the Brady-International Service World-Pictures. She is Susan Grandaise and all those people who see her in this production at the Washington theatre on Friday and Saturday will be royally entertained and thoroughly delighted. ## MURRAY ADVANCES

SUNDAY
"Little Miss Fortune" is the title selected for Marian Swayne's first feature with the Erbograph company, releasing on Art Dramas program. The story was written by Rev. Clarence J. Harris, the prominent scenario writer, especially for the star.

In support of Miss Swayne are Hugh Thompson, Bradley Barker, Lucile Dorrance, Anna Day Perry and Charles Macdonald. Joseph Levering directed the production.

Miss Swayne plays the part of a poor-house girl of unknown parentage, who is known as "Sis," for want of a better name. In the small town where she lives she is snubbed by all the other girls, and life is made generally miserable for her. It is her ambition to become a famous actress, and when an opportunity for escape comes, she takes it and goes to the city.

A wonderful love story that grips imagination and stirs the blood is that contained in "Pride and the Man," that comes Russell's latest American Mutual production, with Francella Billington playing the part of Thelma Everett, a beautiful young wife whose love for a real man wins over intrigue and the baleful influence of the lying tongue.

Miss Billington is very happily cast in this startling drama, as the young society woman who marries a ring champion against the prejudice of her people, is surrounded by plotters against her peace and her husband's reputation, and is at last induced to abandon him as a failure.

Ison-Selig-Essany ("Keys") Service, "Builders of Castles," produced by Edison, comes to the Murray Theatre next Tuesday. The story, written by Henry Albert Phillips, deals with the machinations of a pair of get-rich-quick schemers, who are finally brought to justice through the efforts of a quick-witted girl. Marc MacDermott and Miriam Nesbitt are the featured names. They are supported by an unusually well selected cast of favorite players, a number of whom have themselves been hailed as stars in less pretentious photoplay productions. Much credit is due to Director Ben Turbett for the splendid production which has been given to this fascinating web of plot and counterplot.

On The Boards

WASHINGTON
Mr. Harvey D. Orr will offer the New York success by Louis Weasly, "There She Goes," with Harvey and Harold Orr and the original New York cast and production. "There She Goes" comes direct from a most successful metropolitan engagement with the approval stamp of critics and patrons.

Opening scene is enacted from a setting of a beautiful Long Island Country club golf course, the second-down in Honolulu—the leading action of the play centers about Harvey and Harold Orr, who as Prof. Ichabod Simmons, burgologist, with a very absent minded trait, and his lackey, Rufus M. Washington, a colored gentleman of distinction, whose antics were in a large measure the laugh of the comedy, "There She Goes," which hinges about the love story of Valentine Van Dyke and Patricia Parmalee, which finally evolves in the marriage of Mr. John Smith and Mary Brown, the latter being the real names of the couple, the former their society dressings. Replete with mirth making situations, tuneful melodies and really beautiful stage effects, all parts and the chorus of twenty-five voices are of the class variety. Among the numerous songs hits were, "There She Goes," "Some Girl in the Summer Time," "The Seaside Rag," "My Sweetie," "Sometime, if Dreams Come True," and "Hawaiian Moon."
