Red Cross Notes

Richmond school children are sewing for the Red Cross.

In the first grade they are making clippings for sanitary pillows; in the second, snipping needleholders for kits, and in the third, cutting carpet rats for rugs to be used in the hospital.

The children in grade four are making pin-cushions for the kits while in grade five Red Cross work consists of hemming napkins, handkerchiefs and tray cloths, making bags for hot-water bottles, icebag covers, bed socks, etc.

In grade six the children, in addition to their knitting, are taught to cook and conserve foods. The children are also knitting six inch squares for blankets. Thumbless mittens and crocheting rugs also feature the work.

In addition the children are collecting kid gloves for the High school, tin foil, tooth paste tubes, etc.

Miss Vivian King had charge of the knitting at the rooms Wednesday. Several women were given instructions.

The women of Reid Memorial church spent the afternoon making surgical dressings Wednesday.

Members of two branches of the Wayne County chapter spent the afternoon Wednesday making surgical dressings. Several were present from Webster and Centerville.

Thirty-five young women of Saint Mary's Catholic church will receive instruction in surgical dressings Thursday evening from 7:30 until 9:30 o'clock.

Miss Anna Lough, who is in charge of the hospital garment department of the Wayne County Red Cross, has returned from Cleveland, where she visited the Lake Division headquarters of which Indiana is a branch.

Miss Lough was impressed with the volunteer service. Women who have never worked before have taken hold of the war work and are uniting in their efforts, and a number of Cleveland girls have organized motor corps to assist in doing errands for the association, she observed.

WON'T ASK EXEMPTIONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The National League will not ask special exemption for any of its ball players and is not in sympathy with any "softish plan" of discrimination in favor of its business or players, declared John K. Tenor, president of the league, here today.

MICHIGAN WOMAN HITS MIDDLEMAN

Mrs. Georgia June Pratt, well known society woman of Benton Harbor (Mich.) and Chicago, is on the eve of organizing an anti-middleman association as a result of her gardening experience the past summer. Her farm just outside Benton Harbor produced some of the finest sweet corn to be seen anywhere, corn which her friends gladly bought at forty cents a dozen. Chicago dealers offered her seven cents a dozen for her product. She has laid the matter before Hoover.

Talented Pianist Charms Big Audience in Dublin Recital

DUBLIN, Ind., Nov. 22.—Before a well filled house, at Odd Fellow's hall Tuesday evening, Miss Lillian Ammalee, a concert pianist of much talent and Mrs. Myrtle Homes Stant, dramatic soprano, of Dublin, but formerly of Los Angeles, appeared in joint recital for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Miss Ammalee is enroute from her home in Los Angeles to New York, where she is to give a recital at Aeolian hall, and will also appear as soloist with the New York Philharmonic society. She stopped off at Dublin, where she is the guest of Mrs. Stant, who has appeared with her in many recitals on the coast. Miss Ammalee returning from New York, will stop at Chicago, where she is billed to perform again with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Miss Ammalee is a pupil of the famous Leschetizky and received most of her musical education in Europe, where she was the official pianist of the Royal Austrian family for a time. She appeared as soloist with the Philharmonic society of Berlin, with the famous conductor, Dr. Kunwald, now at the head of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra.

Holds Audience Well.

Miss Ammalee's performance Tuesday evening was a revelation to her hearers. Never before have the music lovers of Dublin had the good fortune of hearing such a gifted artist of the piano. It is a difficult task for a pianist to draw the strict attention of the entire audience, much more so when the audience is composed of people of the rural districts, who are not attuned to the technic of piano classics, but Miss Ammalee held her audience in the very palm of her hand, and the applause that greeted her at the close of her first suite of numbers, has never been equaled before at any performance in Dublin. She was required to make several appearances in response to the insistent applause of her audience.

Miss Stant, always a favorite in Dublin, was also showered with applause.

Miss Ammalee opened with a popular Chopin walse. She at once demonstrated that she has the ability of the artist which she is accredited with being. She has what so many lady concert pianists do not have, that is, the force of volume of a real artist. It is said of most lady concert pianists, that they do not exercise the power in their playing that is generally used by men, but Miss Ammalee is not of that class. If any criticism can be offered, it must be said that she had too much volume for the small auditorium in which she played, thus causing her tone quality to seem somewhat harsh, especially so in some of her heaviest work. Her technic, however, was marvelous to her hearers. Miss Ammalee followed with an ecossais or lively Scotch dance, a Beethoven-Busoni arrangement, in which she displayed a beautiful technic and touch. Then followed a Schumann-Liszt dedication, artistically delivered. Miss Ammalee's best work, and no doubt the most enjoyed composition of the evening finished her first suit. It was Weber's "Round O' Gaely," a very delicate waltz dance and executed with wondrous grace.

"Left Hand" Played.

The Butterfly Etude of Ole Olson, the Norwegian composer, a love song, a classic piece for technic display, by Leschetizky, and the much used "left hand only" Leschetizky arrangement of the Lucia Sextette, formed the second suite for Miss Ammalee. She encored with Mendelssohn's well known "Spinning Song." Miss Ammalee's delicate interpretation of the Butterfly study was warmly received, but her "left hand" Lucia Sextette, appeared to have too much volume and did not contain that intense pathos, with which Donizetti's great masterpiece is imbued.

Miss Ammalee finished her program with the popular Strauss waltz, "Sounds From the Vienna Forest," in paraphrase arrangement, by Schmitt, a very difficult and classic number. She concluded with an Arensky etude. It may possibly be said that, considering the calibre of her audience, Miss Ammalee's program contained too much of the etude or technic study music, which, while very much appreciated by the trained ear, does not appeal to the average concert attendant.

Mrs. Stant's program consisted of a Ronald Life's Cycle suite, which pleased her hearers so well that she was made to encore. Her next suit was four light numbers, "Such a Lit' Fellow," a character sketch, given in Mrs. Stant's usual beautiful and audible manner, "Disappointment," a Woodman song, "To You," by Speaks and "Sing On," a ballad by Denzey.

Miss Ammalee and Mrs. Stant will appear the latter part of this week in a joint recital at Connersville, and possibly later at Richmond.

Mrs. Stant, always a favorite in Dublin, was also showered with applause.
