

STRAUGHN'S RED CROSS IS AFTER MONEY FOR YARN

Women Knit All Articles Needed For Home Boys—Other News Notes.

STRAUGHN, Ind., Nov. 27.—In a public announcement by the women of the Red Cross it is stated that "the branch chapter is trying to make all articles needed by our own boys at the training camps. They need extra money to purchase yarn. This money is to be used by home women for home boys. Show your appreciation by giving any amount you feel like leaving with one of these patriotic women." Mrs. Betty Kersey and Mrs. Elizabeth Langston are heading the canvass.

Another announcement reads that "in keeping with a movement of similar character throughout the state, Straughn merchants have taken under consideration a suggestion for closing their respective places of business, Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 6:30 p. m." On Monday, owing to much opposition to the suggestion by farmers who cannot get to town while corn shucking and shelling is on, several of the merchants have asked for a postponement, which was granted.

Last week 15,000 bushels of oats were forwarded to the markets by the Straughn Elevator company. Three carloads were being loaded Monday, and a deal of mill feed was also disposed of for farmers desiring a balanced ration with soft corn. The movement inaugurated here last week by the Maritime party appears to be gaining fruit.

William Ballard, who had 85 acres in early corn of the Leaning type mixed with yellow dent corn so as to improve the latter variety, used plenty fertilizer, and on one field of 14 acres used 12-inch tile for drainage, the average being 65 bushels to the acre. Another field of 10 acres also went to the acre, but a five acre field planted three times only furnished something ears. But the early Leaning and yellow dent dried out well, and the seed selection is a fine type for next year's planting.

The basketball game, first team Saturday, went 23 to 25 in favor of Straughn High over Summit High. The second team went a tie of 25 with Summit's second team. Wednesday evening next Straughn High will go to Carthage with a party of rooters to play Carthage High two games.

On The Screen

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—William Fox, film wizard, decided to make motion pictures especially for children. He waved his magic wand at the Fox Western Studios, and lo and behold, there sprung up, as if by magic, the beautiful, spectacular age-long fire-side tale of "Jack and the Beanstalk."

Everybody knows the story, which has been handed down from the earliest days of the English-speaking peoples as a heritage of delight to the little ones of modern times. It is filmed for children, by children, and will be released by the Fox Film Corporation as the first of the regular monthly "Fix Kiddle Features" soon to be inaugurated.

How many grown-ups recall the moments of real joy when as a child they listened while someone read to them from a book about the giants and dwarfs, the fairies and other wonderful marvels of the make-believe world. Now these wonderful stories are to be visualized by master hands and placed before the delighted eyes of the children of the world.

To more appreciably realize the effect of this announcement one has but to recall the desire, after hearing the tales, to see the pictures in the book—of the giants and dragons and dwarfs, and then would come the longing for pictures of the whole story. No one has appreciated this longing more than William Fox, whose love for children has been largely instrumental in the picturing on the screen of these wonderful subjects.

MURRAY. His room opened on one balcony; her room opened on another, and between them was a long stretch of eaves, nothing more, and she was screaming for help. We did not jump up and grasp the edge of the eaves, a sort of ledge, and hand over hand, dangling forty feet above the ground, drag him to the front window and her rescue.

But that was only a small part of the excitement in "Flying Colors," the Triangle play starring William Desmond, which will be shown to the Murray theatre today.

MURRETTE. Miss Olive Tell, one of the most delightful of the speaking stage stars who have caused photodrama to admit her complete conversion to the camera's viewpoint and expresses her delight at the opportunity afforded by the screen for dramatic expression.

In "The Unforeseen," at the Murrette today a new Mutual Empire production, one of the famous Frohman plays reproduced under the Frohman-Mutual contract involving all Charles Frohman talking stage successes, Miss Tell displays her perfect grasp of the essentials of the photoplay. While it is the young star's first picture for Mutual the result is distinctly satisfactory. "The Unforeseen" is an intensely interesting drama.

Highly Valued Pen. One of the most valuable pens in the world, and one that has been much coveted by curio hunters, is one owned in New York. It was made from a carved box in which George Washington, when a young man, kept the lenses of his surveying instruments, the wood of which formed the lid of the desk of the captain of the historic Mayflower.

CAUSE OF DE SAULLES TRIAL BARRED FROM COURT ROOM

Little Jack De Saulles and his aunt, Senorita Errazuriz.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Little Jack De Saulles, son of Blanca De Saulles, who is now on trial here for the murder of her husband last summer, does not know that he was the innocent cause of the tragedy. He is not permitted at the trial, and does not know that because of her mother's love for him, Mrs. De Saulles is now fighting the battle of her life to escape the electric chair.

A woman reporter for a New York newspaper who is attending the trial has written these impressions: Adjectives and ink have been spilled recklessly in an effort to paint a sentimental picture of Blanca De Saulles, on trial in the Nassau court for killing her husband, "Jack" De Saulles. But, even suppressing sobe and sensational features and facing the ugly fact of murder, it is impossible to view the white, set face of the prisoner and remain unmoved.

It is not because of her beauty—and Mrs. De Saulles is undeniably lovely—but rather because suffering has placed such an imprint upon this woman, who is hardly more than a girl, and turned a face that was meant for smiles into a mask.

She does not give the impression of a woman who is fighting for her life, but rather of a woman to whom life with its conflicts, its emotions, is a thing apart. Whatever the flame of passion that swept over Blanca De Saulles on that August evening, causing her to take fate in her hands and destroy the barrier that kept her child from her, it has left her seared and broken. She is like a wreath of a woman, viewing from afar the wreckage she made of her life.

A Dreary Picture. The sudden November landscape was no more dreary than the face she turned to the curious crowd that filed the courtroom as she listened to the proceedings, but gave no sign of hearing. Neither the selection of the last two jurors nor the wrangling of the lawyers brought a flicker of interest to the dark eyes, bent, for the

Centerville Enjoys Its Community Sing; Neff Family Pleases

CENTERVILLE, Ind., Nov. 27.—The first Community Sing was held in the M. E. church Saturday evening and was attended by a large crowd. Every one seemed to enjoy singing the old songs together. The Neff family of Greensburg, great favorites in this community sang a number of selections in their pleasing manner, and Prof. Shannon Neff gave a whistling solo. Miss Vesta Rollman and Edna Johnston rendered a duet which was greatly appreciated. The next Community Sing will be held at the same church, December 8.

The Game supper proved a success and about twenty-four dollars was netted. The proceeds will be used on church insurance.

Special Union Thanksgiving services of the three churches will be held at the M. E. church Thanksgiving morning at ten o'clock. A program of special music will be rendered being prepared by committees from the different churches. Services will close in time for the first call to dinner at the annual Thanksgiving dinner by the Cemetery association.

the most part, on the listless white hands in her lap.

The psychology of Blanca De Saulles, as set forth in the opening speech of the prosecution, is not that of a woman who would commit a deed of violence. Only a being whose inhibitions were gentle and whose nature was tender could, in an hour of great emotion, have taken thought for those dependent upon her—ball for her maid, the fee of the taxi driver—this consideration is not the mark of the cold blooded murderer but of a kind heart that never forgets the needs of others.

What could have goaded a gentle girl to such a deed? The baffling face, the apathetic attitude like a wall flung back the question at a world that seeks to penetrate the fastnesses of a mother's heart. It is not a woman who is on trial, but mother love which strikes at whatever threatens the child.

The district attorney, with all the magic of words, recreated for the jury every detail of the shooting from the moment when the mother telephone to know why she could not have her child to her arrest. The slight figure, clad in a simple brown frock, with vest, collar and cuffs of gray white chiffon, gave no sign of interest or emotion. She wore the look of one whose mind has rehearsed the story with wearying repetition until it no longer registers.

The Apathy of Suffering. With the same apathy she listened to the examination of witnesses, but this was the apathy of suffering, not of indifference. No woman who placed so high a value upon the life she had brought into the world could take a life and not pay the penalty.

One wonders what she was like, this sad young mother, when in her happiness she became the bride of fascinating, handsome Jack De Saulles.

What does she feel about it all? What does she think of those twelve men who have her life in their hands? What does she think of the judge, the prosecutor, the witnesses? What is her attitude toward the sisters of the dead man, who faced her across the courtroom and showed her interest in all that took place? Above all, what does she think of the gaping crowd of idle men and women before whom she is pilloried?

What of these women who have appeared day after day with the regularity of crows in a cornfield, and what of the others who will strive to crowd in when the defendant is put on the stand. Have they no children to claim their care? Have they no duties, no demands upon their time? There are bandages to roll for soldiers and garments to make for war orphans, but their hands are empty.

Does the same instinct that makes men go to prize fights prompt women to attend murder trials—a desire to see how much punishment the victim can take? Is there, under the thin veneer of modern civilization, the blood lust of ancient Rome? Are the thumbs of these who drink in the testimony being unfolded daily at Mineola turned up or down?

Potatoes and Milk of Childhood Days Still Taste Good

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 27.—Baked potatoes and milk of our childhood days tastes just as good now and if we return to them we will be doing the federal food administration a favor, said H. E. Barnard, representative of the food administration in Indiana, in the following statement given out here today:

"Potatoes will be a popular food this coming winter. Last year they were luxuries. And while we were wishing we could have all the mashed potatoes we wanted just for once, we were learning to appreciate better than ever before the real value of potatoes. But now the greatest potato crop of history is being gathered. And since the crop is larger and will sell at a reasonable price now is a good time to get even better acquainted with the virtues of the lowly spud.

"Do you remember that when you were a child you were fond of baked potatoes and milk? Try it again now. Take a big potato, scrub it well and bake it until its sides fairly burst to let loose the light, mealy, starchy body. Then break, skin and all, and submerge it with a flood of cream, sprinkle it with salt and that's all—all but the gustatorial joy of feasting, on food that, unlike most of the dishes of childhood, to which we sometimes 'hanker' to return, tastes just as good now as it did in the long ago. And if the cream pitcher is empty, good milk with butter will be almost as well.

"Why do not the managers of our dairy lunchrooms hang out a sign like this—

Big baked potato, 5 cents,
With milk, 10 cents,
With cream, 15 cents.

"You will be tempted, and lunch well at small cost. And down in Washington, Mr. Hoover will rejoice that the potato is doing its bit to take the place of the bread he must save for our allies over the water."

BROKEN DOWN IN HEALTH

Woman Tells How $5 Worth of Pinkham's Compound Made Her Well.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I began taking your remedies and took $5.00 worth and in two months was a well woman after three doctors said I never would stand up straight again. I was a midwife for seven years and I recommended the Vegetable Compound to every woman to take before birth and afterwards, and they all got along so nicely that I surely is a goddess to suffering women. If women wish to write to me I will be delighted to answer them."

Mrs. Jennie Moyer, 342 E. North St., Lima, Ohio.

Women who suffer from displacements, weakness, irregularities, nervousness, backache, or bearing-down pains, need the tonic properties of the roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
