

THRIFT DAY TO BE OBSERVED IN HOOSIER STATE

Governor Goodrich Issues Proclamation Asking the Churches to Help.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 28.—Thrift Day, this year, is to be made a special occasion for the distribution of stamps among the young and among thrift certificates and war saving persons of small means.

Feb. 3, celebrated annually as Thrift Day, falls this year on Sunday. In a proclamation just issued Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana, asks the people of the state to give February 3 to expounding the religious phase of true thrift and that Monday, February 4, be employed in the vigorous practice of the doctrine preached the previous day.

Every letter carrier is an authorized agent of the United States government in selling war thrift certificates and war saving stamps to the people. Under the plan it is expected the government will raise a war loan of $2,000,000,000, and of this loan, Indiana is to provide some $58,000,000.

Oliver at Head.

J. D. Oliver of South Bend is at the head of the state organization which is pushing the sale of the thrift certificates and saving stamps. Certificates are offered for sale in the $5 size. The small investor, or the child reeking this high grade investment of small savings pays the postman $4.12 for a certificate which comes in the form of a stamp pasted on a sheet which will carry twenty such stamps in all.

At maturity, in 1923, the $4.12 invested will bring $5. The stamps can be cashed at any time for the sum invested, plus interest stated on date. Saving stamps are sold for 25 cents each and are pasted on a card holding sixteen stamps. When the card is filled, by adding a few cents the investor gets another $5 thrift certificate, and starts a new card of savings stamps drawing a 4 per cent interest, and at the time forming the habit of saving.

Governor Goodrich follows: The Thrift Day proclamation of In an effort to encourage and promote savings and investments, particularly among the children and people with small incomes, the third day of February for two years has been generally observed throughout the nation as Thrift Day.

Authority is Bible.

"The idea has been advanced that Thrift Day for 1918 be utilized in the patriotic distribution of war savings certificates and thrift stamps. As February 3 this year falls on Sunday, I recommend that on this day in the Sunday schools and churches there be expounded the religion of thrift, abundant authority for such teaching being found in the Holy Scriptures.

"I suggest, further, that the economic observance be made Monday, February 4, and the subject be taken up in the schools. Children and adults should make Monday a day for buying thrift stamps and war saving certificates. Bankers, merchants and employers of labor should devote special effort to awaken interest in and furnish opportunity for the purchasing of thrift stamps.

Now, therefore, I, James P. Goodrich, Governor of the state of Indiana, do hereby proclaim and set apart Sunday, February 3, as official Thrift Day, to promote the federal saving plan and encourage thrift among the people of this state, and do recommend that there be an economic observance of the day on Monday, February 4."

TWO DIVORCE SUITS FILED

Two divorce cases were filed in the circuit court Monday.

Bertha M. Berkunstock, charging that Clayton Berkunstock struck her on the face about July 1, 1917, filed suit asking the custody of the children, Raymond, nine years old, and Virgil, four.

She claims he has not supported her or the children for the past five years. They were married May 16, 1908 and parted July 12, 1917.

The second suit filed is that of Charles L. Brenner, mechanic residing at Cambridge City. He charges that his wife, Lillie B. Brenner, could not take care of the child, Claude Brenner, six years old. They were married March 26, 1910, and on December 28, 1912, Brenner claims his wife left him without any cause for doing so and took all the household furniture.

GOING TO SCHOOL IN TRENCH

One thing the French have little difficulty teaching our boys is the throwing of grenades. The baseball arms and eyes of the Americans make it a "snap." The photos are of U. S. marines being taught the various essentials of homemaking and housekeeping at the front, for the trench and dugout are soon to be the addresses of the pupils.

On The Screen

MURRETTE

John Corbin is not the murderer of his wife. His confession is the sheer vagary of a mind broken by the terrible tragedy in his household. The murderer is a West Indian half-breed of the apartments in which he lived. They are now locked up and Chief Benton is confident of the lawyer's acquittal.

Corbin can thank his good friend, Dr. Hyde, for the establishment of his innocence. For it was the doctor's intimate knowledge of the scene of the murder that led to the discovery of clues to the murderer and the establishment of the motive which was robbery.

Dr. Hyde informed the detectives that certain jewelry was missing from Mrs. Corbin's jewel case. Finger prints were found on a paper knife, dresser drawer, jewel case, and other things. The prints were photographed, but examination disclosed no similarity between the doctor's finger prints and those discovered. The detectives rounded up everyone in the apartment house and learned two of the half-breeds, West Indians, had disappeared. Their capture was effected on a steamer bound for St. Rito.

How John Corbin, a high-minded lawyer, declares that wealth and influence could free a man of murder on the grounds of insanity; how he kills his compromised wife the very night of the declaration, confesses, and is released, forms one of the most gripping and powerful themes of the decade. The name of this picture is "Evidence," and it will leave a deep and significant mark in the minds of millions. "Evidence" will be shown at the Murrette theatre tonight.

WASHINGTON.

Into the north, among the gold seekers comes a father and a daughter (Jewel Carmen). The father had left his wife and son destitute. In this rough company the girl meets and turns aside many temptations. Years later come a youth and a minister. Both are attracted by this girl who has grown beautiful. One day the youth gets a letter. He must return home. His mother is ill and needs him and money for an operation to save her life. The lad shows the letter to the girl who discovers that the youth is her brother. Waiting aside every thought of self and without telling the old who she is, she goes to the town dance hall and to get the money for her mother offers herself in marriage to the highest bidder. A vile old miner tries to bid her in but the minister offers more and gets her.

He borrows the money from the dance hall proprietor on condition that if he does not pay it back within a certain time he is to be the willing slave of the proprietor. The minister goes to dig gold. The dance hall proprietor, whose business he has hurt, conspired to put him out of the way, but the girl heroically saves the minister. The dance hall man is killed in the fight to get the minister and the minister is free of his debt. Of course he marries the girl.

INDIANA BAKERS AND BARNARD TO WORK TOGETHER

Agreement to Guarantee Frictionless Wheat Saving Observance.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 28.—Indiana bakers and Dr. Harry E. Barnard, federal food administrator anticipate an agreement that will guarantee a complete and frictionless enforcement of the regulations of the federal food administration which pertains particularly to the business of baking. An executive committee has been appointed by the Bakers' Association to "iron out" all differences and work intimately with the food administrator.

Due to misunderstandings as to the purpose and authority of the food administration, bakers in some sections of the state have been slow to conform to the rules promulgated by Dr. Harry E. Barnard. Through the new committee an arrangement, at once effective and satisfactory is expected by leading bakers and Dr. Barnard. The committee includes the following: Frank Middleton, Marion, Ind.; W. P. Walsh, Evansville; W. R. Thomas, Auburn, Ind.; H. C. Gove, Elkhart, Ind.; J. F. Rugar, Lafayette; C. W. Miller, Terre Haute; C. P. Ehler, Indianapolis and A. L. Taggart, Indianapolis, Ind. It has agreed to meet as occasion requires, with Dr. Barnard for a solution of any problem that may arise.

The suggestion that Dr. Barnard instruct each county food administrator to appoint a baker in his county to act as part of the food administration and to help in the compilation of the bakers has been carried out. H. C. Gove has been secured to make a detailed tabulation of organizations in bread production.

Main Recommendations.

Among the main recommendations that have been made to the food administration by the bakers are the following:

That at the earliest possible date that does not conflict with orders from

Washington, the observance of a no wheat meal every day and a less wheat day every day be put into effect among the bakers in the manufacture of bread at the rate of 5 per cent. added cereal the first week, 10 per cent. the second week, and the rate of 5 per cent. additional each week until 25 per cent. is reached.

That on wheatless Wednesday no bread or rolls be sold that day not containing at least 25 per cent. added cereal other than wheat.

That on wheatless Wednesday no cakes, crackers or pastry be sold by the retail stores except they contain a substantial amount of added cereals other than wheat.

That all rye bread contain not less than 50 per cent. rye flour and that local county food administrators see that the order is enforced.

"These recommendations show that the bakers themselves are willing to make the concessions the food administration asks," said Dr. Barnard. "They are the ones who stand to lose the most. I can think of no excuse that will justify the failure of the people to go at least as far as the bakers in helping provide the wheat so much needed for the success of our country at war."
