

CHANGE POLAND'S FRONTIERS BY UKRAINE PEACE

Says Germany Wants to Cause Friction Between Two Neighbors.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Count Ladislas Sobanski, representative in London of the Polish national committee, in a statement issued today declares that the Austro-German peace with the Ukraine affects the interests of Poland. The peace conditions concerning the frontiers, not only between the Ukraine and Galicia, but also between the Ukraine and Russian Poland changes the frontiers to the detriment of Poland.

"The new frontier," he says, "drawn from Tarnopol, on the border of Galicia, to the Bug River incorporates territories much more extensive than were contained in the former government of Cholm as imposed by the despotism of the old Russian regime. This action was taken in spite of the opposition of Polish deputies in the duma who proved that a majority of the inhabitants were Poles and that there were only two districts of nine in which there was a Russian majority and that was based only on membership in the Orthodox church."

"The object of the central powers in fixing the frontiers of Poland is clear. They want not only to compensate the Ukraine for all it gives to Austria, but they wish to create a state of friction and controversy between two neighbors who might come to an understanding and establish friendly relations dangerous to projects of domination and intrigue which have consisted always in playing off the Ukrainians against the Poles."

"This proves that the Austro-Germans prefer a neighborly Ukraine to a Polish state, made up of thirty million peasants, and which would be easy to manage in the interests of Germany, rather than Poland in a condition to maintain its economic and military independence which always would be antagonistic to German expansion projects."

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

Though it has not been completely confirmed, the rumor persists that Julius Steger is to succeed William A. Brady as director-general of the World Film Corporation. Mr. Steger is at present associated with Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Norma Talmadge Film Corporation and the Roscoe Arbuckle Comedies company, in the production of state right feature pictures under the firm of "S and S" photoplays. When questioned regarding the report of his succeeding William A. Brady, Steger declared that he could not be induced to assume the post if it would have to mean the dissolution of his partnership with Schenck.

Julius Steger has for many years been a prominent figure on the American stage. As an actor-singer and as a headliner in the best vaudeville houses he will be remembered by theatre-goers throughout the country. He has been equally successful on the screen both in playing and producing. Among his many successes either as a star or a director are the following: "The Fifth Commandment," starring Julius Steger; "The Master of the House," starring Julius Steger; "The Blindness of Love," starring Julius Steger; "The Stolen Triumph," starring Julius Steger; "The Prima Donna's Husband," starring Holbrook Blinn; "The Libertine," starring John John Mason and Alma Hanlon; "The Law of Compensation," starring Norma Talmadge; "Redemption," starring Evelyn Nesbit and her son Russell Thum; "Just a Woman," starring Charlotte Walker.

WASHINGTON

Mary Garden, probably the most famous woman in the world, will be seen at the Washington Theatre, beginning today, in "Thais," the Goldwyn photoplay from the same sensational novel by the great French writer, Anatole France, that was the basis of the opera in which she made her debut in America as a prima donna. "Thais" also marks the first appearance of Miss Garden in motion pictures. Throughout the operatic career of the great diva, she has been noted almost as much for her remarkable acting ability as for her magnificent voice, so her advent on the screen is far more than just the exploitation of a famous woman.

The story in which she appears on the screen, "Thais," is the work of one of the greatest living French writers, Anatole France; and his permission to present a famous story in cinematographic form was secured only on condition that Miss Garden would appear in it. M. France was already familiar with her interpretation of his heroine through her work in the opera.

MURRETTE

Miss Judy Juniper, Essanay's latest star, has never cried in her life. "Even if she feels sad," said her director, Howard S. Moss, "she can't cry."

When interviewed on the phenomena, Miss Juniper was silent. You see she's only a doll, fourteen inches high. And although Mr. Moss can make her do most anything, he can't make her sob real tears.

In Essanay's picture, "The Dream Doll," at the Murrette today and Saturday, Miss Juniper and her staff of dolls enact a photoplay. By a patented process, Mr. Moss makes them go through the entire list of human actions without jerkiness or presence of mechanical means.

MURRAY

"I don't mind being shot to death with blank cartridges," declares Norbert Cills, new Triangle player, cast as the nester sheriff in Roy Stewart's latest Triangle Western drama, "The Law's Outlaw," at the Murray theatre tonight and Saturday, "but to take a swing on the jaw from Roy Stewart is no child's play. Stewart hits like a steel kick, and Director Cliff Smith doesn't believe in pulling the blows."

Cills was knocked one cold during the filming of "The Law's Outlaw," and as Stewart was supposed to slay him when he attempted to rise from the ground it was necessary to delay filming the scene until Cills revived sufficiently to get to his knees.

Only one blow was struck in the desert fight scene by Stewart, but Cills vows it wasn't necessary to act any "Any fellow could do a creditable fall if he was knocked out as clean as I was," says Cills.

An American kidlet I am
I surely do love Uncle Sam:
I'm buying and working
And not a bit shirking
For Kaiser I don't care a —
Betty Diff, Cambridge City.

Little Jack Horner flew round the corner
Hugging his trusty bank
"Thrift Stamps," cried he, "are insurance for me
I can buy as many as I like."
Billie Stevenson, 630 Pearl street.

The Sammy boys have gone to France
To shoot the Kaiser in the pants
We at home will buy Thrift Stamps
To move to them a better chance.
Merrill Scoville, 20 North Twentieth.

When the war is over
And the Germans are had hit
The Kaiser will moan
"Twixt a sign and a groan
"Thrift Stamps are what did it."
Ronald Macey, R. R. C.

CONTRIBUTED VERSE

I want to be a Soldier,
And fight for Uncle Sam.
They say I am too old,
And not worth a damn.
What they say is untrue,
All I want is a chance.
To go along with our Boys,
Across the sea to France.
I could carry the Stars and Stripes,
And say! It would be fun.
Oh! Uncle Sam, please let me go,
And furnish me a gun.

I am only sixty-nine years old,
I don't give a damn—I want to go
Away to France and fight for Uncle Sam.
I had three brothers in the Civil War.
They all fought, bled and died,
To uphold the grand old flag,
That we so highly prize.
I want to see the Kaiser
And say! It would be fun.
Oh! Uncle Sam, please let me go,
And furnish me a gun.

Now, Uncle Sam, please grant me this.
It is my only chance:
I want to go with our "Brave Boys"
Across the sea to France.
Now, if you will grant me this request,
I surely will be true.
I'll stand up for our Dear Old Flag—
The Red, White and Blue.
JOHN M. DOLAN.
