

BRIEF OF DRIES SUSTAINS LAW TO OUST BOOZE

Declares Regulation of Liquor Sales Lies Within Police Powers.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 22.—The Legislature has constitutional authority to enact a state-wide prohibition law because the regulation and prohibition of the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquor lies within the police power of the state, according to the brief for the drys, which is to be filed between now and Saturday with the clerk of the Supreme Court in the Evansville case brought to test the law's constitutionality.

The brief states that the fourteenth amendment to the Federal constitution will not be sufficient to knock out the Indiana law, because the United States Supreme Court held in a test case in Idaho recently that "a state has power absolutely to prohibit the manufacture, gift, purchase, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquor within its borders without violating the guarantees of the fourteenth amendment."

What Amendment Means

The pertinent part of the amendment states that "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

The brief will be filed over the signatures of Philip C. Gould of Evansville, attorney for Edgar Schmitt, the appellee; R. C. Minton, attorney for the State Anti-Saloon League, and Ele Stansbury, attorney general. They act as attorneys for Schmitt, who was restrained by Judge Fred M. Hostetter of the Vanderburgh Superior Court from enforcing the law. The suit was brought at the F. W. Cook Brewing company of Evansville.
