Luther Burbank's great work in finding new methods of producing greater amounts of food in more efficient ways, will be told Tuesday evening by the interesting lecturer, Henry A. Adrian, who has been the great scientist's personal friend for twenty years.

Owing to the food situation which has grown to be one of the great issues of winning the war, Mr. Adrian will dwell on the great importance of the work, and explain the methods by which this newly developed efficiency is brought about. One new product is the Burbank wheat, which will produce 60 to 65 bushels to the acre, while other wheat does well to average from twenty to twenty-five bushels.

Mr. Adrian was president of the Teachers' Association of California until seven years ago, when he went on the chautauqua and lyceum platform to continue his educational work as well as to tell of the new productions which his great friend, Mr. Burbank, has developed.

In his first lecture Monday afternoon, he emphasized the importance of right ideals in school life, which the teacher may stimulate and draw out by sympathy with the children, and by making the school the most attractive spot the child can remember.

Methods of discipline were discussed by Mr. Adrian Tuesday morning, when the advantage of "do" instead of "don't" was brought out. Three channels of developing the child's will are through self activity, curiosity and imitation, said the speaker, and the best means of stimulating these are through the power of suggestion, which is controlled more through the manner and personality of the teacher than by the sharp command of her voice.

"Patience is waiting until the time for correction is ripe; endurance is waiting until it is rotten," he said, in summary.

Just to keep the boys warm, the American Red Cross so far has distributed in Richmond numbers 2,000,000 sweaters, 750,000 mufflers, 1,000,000 wristlets, 500,000 helmets and 1,500,000 pairs of socks.

HEARD ON THE GROUNDS. One seven-year-old to another, while the militia was drilling: "Is that the captain?" "Now, that's him makin' all the noise."

"I'd like to see the man that put up all those horrid signs, 'No Talking.' I had the most things to tell Sarah this afternoon and every time I got started, people looked around at me so much I had to wait, clear until the end of the concert."

"Papa, can I have a quarter? I've killed forty flies five times."

"Come on, Bill, I'm thirsty. Let's get some of Patsy's orangeade." "Aw, can't you wait awhile, Jim. When it gets down low you get so much less water and more orange."

CHICAGO SINGERS GIVE LAST CONCERT

The Chicago Operatic company gave its final concert Monday evening. The audience seemed reluctant to part with its favorite musicians and encored each number several times.

The Prologue from Pagliacci which was sung by G. M. Schutz, was encored four times, and many pronounced him the greatest baritone singer ever in the city. One of his afternoon encores "Knitting" was especially liked.

The quartet numbers, "Spirit of Spring," "Commotion of Love," and "The King's Prayer" in the afternoon and in the evening, "In a Persian Garden," were very well received.

Ten duet numbers, "Oh Moment That I Breathe," by Mrs. Atkins and Mr. Schutz in the afternoon, and "Home to Our Mountain" by Mrs. Gannon and Mr. Miller in the evening were well supported by the accompaniment which Lyell Barber, the pianist formerly with the J. B. Miller company, rendered.

In his solo numbers in the afternoon, Mr. Barber gave an interpretation of Liszt's Tarentelle, which was twice encored.

But the violin numbers which Miss Amy Neill contributed to the program were among the most appreciated: the unaffected simplicity of her stage appearance doing much to win her popularity with the audience.

"Ave Marie," by Schubert, which was played by request in the afternoon was exquisite in tone quality, and all her numbers were twice encored.

PATSY'S STORE IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

"Patsy's" store and a portion of his home in Terre Haute, Ind., was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, with a loss of $4,500, while Patsy was in Richmond, and "Mrs. Patsy" was at home alone.

A large quantity of peanuts, popcorn and candy were destroyed, and practically all the allotment of sugar, but this probably can be again supplied according to word received Tuesday morning.

"Patsy" does not seem very worried," as one boy remarked, "but I think he'd die smiling."

GREAT THOUGHTS IN SIMPLE LANGUAGE URGED BY ELLIS

"Some people have an affinity for big words, but it is easy to realize that an ability to use big words is neither a culture nor an education," said Charles Calvert Ellis, vice-president of Juana College, Huntington, Pa., in his lecture before a large audience at the Chautauqua Monday night. Ellis is a popular chautauqua speaker, and his lecture Monday evening was illuminated with rocket-like examples.

"The most significant mark of education is an ability to take a great thought and put it into language which the ordinary man can understand. The dictionary is a good place to find big words when you need them, and a still better place to leave them when you do not need them," he remarked.

Ellis centered his lecture around "the biggest word in the dictionary," as he puts it. "This biggest word," he said, "is possibilities, for no one yet has been able to put limits, breadth, or depth to it. There are always possibilities and no one can determine or define their extent. I believe there is no end to this word—eternity and immortality are wrapped in it."

There are two kinds of possibilities, the speaker explained, the kind that go up and help something or someone and the kind that face downwards. He then pictured them with examples of world conquerors and world savers differentiating cleverly. "The men who work toward saving the world will be honored as long as the world lasts."

"Character, achievement and service are the heads of possibilities and where can these be hemmed in or defined?" he ended.

CHIEF CAUPOLICAN IS HERE THURSDAY

"Distinctive and novel" is the characterization given to the Castle Court Singers who will be in this city Wednesday, to give a program both at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8:15 in the evening. They will appear in costume, and are recommended most highly.

Chief Caupolican, who drew one of the largest Sunday crowds at the chautauqua last year and who delighted the Rotary Club at one of their luncheons several weeks ago, will be on the platform Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock. He tells the story of the struggles which his race has endured, and since he is recognized as the greatest orator among the Indians, he brings a message which is always new.

Francis H. Green, the noted educator who was to have been an institute speaker for the entire week, will arrive Friday, according to latest word that delivers his lectures scheduled for that day.

ELLIS DISCUSSES USE OF STORIES

The use of the story was discussed by Charles C. Ellis in the institute lecture at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The four main advantages in story telling which Mr. Ellis brought out were, first, the better language which it unconsciously instills into the child's vocabulary when the words of the author are quoted, this being especially true in poetry. Second, the acquaintance with many characters in literature which enrich the life of those who know and appreciate allusions to them in general reading. Third, the inside into character development and the imagination which story telling brings about when the child is left to finish the story himself; and fourth the moral influence which stories have.

EVERYBODY MUST DO ESSENTIAL LABOR

"Those men who are wealthy and are not employed at essential labor will be called upon to do something useful just the same as one who has no wealth," L. A. Handley chairman of the Richmond War Labor Board said Tuesday concerning nonessential occupations.

The other members of the board are Charles McGuire of the Dille-McGuire company, who will represent the employers and C. L. Summerson, who will represent organized labor. Handley represents the United States Employment Service.

The Labor Reserve organization has men located in each precinct whose duty is to locate men not in essential work. Richmond's quota of men that must be brought into useful labor is 350. A call has already been made for about half that amount.

Men will not all be taken from one shop or nonessential work, but some will be taken from each one so that no one store or shop will have to suffer greatly for lack of men while the others have all they need.

The men may possibly all stay in Richmond, but if necessary they will be sent to towns where there are not enough men not in non-essential work to fill the quota.

What The Packers Do For You

Not very many years ago in the history of the world, the man that lived in America had to hunt for his food, or go without.

Now he sits down at a table and decides what he wants to eat; or his wife calls up the market and has it sent home for him. And what he gets is incomparably better.

Everyone of us has some part in the vast human machine, called society, that makes all this convenience possible.

The packer's part is to prepare meat and get it to every part of the country sweet and fresh—to obtain it from the stock raiser, to dress it, cool it, ship it many miles in special refrigerator cars, keep it cool at distributing points, and get it into the consumer's hands—your hands—through retailers, all within about two weeks.

For this service—so perfect and effective that you are scarcely aware that anything is being done for you—you pay the packers an average profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound above actual cost on every pound of meat you eat.
