MURRETTE. James Whitcomb Riley's famous poem, "A Hoosier Romance," is the basis of a remarkable motion picture play in which Colleen Moore, one of the most brilliant of the younger stars of film drama, and Thomas Jefferson, famous for his "Rip Van Winkle," one of the classics of the speaking stage, assume the lead roles. "A Hoosier Romance" was adapted from the poem and directed for the screen by Colin Campbell, who directed "The Spoilers," "The Garden of Allah," and "The Crisis." This Mutual-Selig offering is elaborately staged and the photograph is of the best. Included in the cast are Edward Johnson, well known for his work in "A Bit of Kindling" and "The Aftermath"; Eugene Bessner, formerly in support of Margaret Anglin, and Frank Hayes, a comedian familiar to motion picture fans for his appearances in more than forty Keystone comedies. At the Murrette today.

BOSTON FANS SEE NATCO PLAYERS FIRST EASTERN GAME OF SERIES

Small Crowd Witnesses 4th Match of Baseball Class—Red Sox Favorites.

(By Associated Press) BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Notwithstanding a heavy rain that lasted nearly all night, baseball fans took heart at the sight of the sun when they awoke today and early indications were that the Boston American and Chicago National teams would be able to play this afternoon the first Boston game of the world series. Ground keepers said the playing field at Fenway Park had been protected as far as possible from the rain and they hoped that with a drying sun this morning conditions would permit a resumption of the series which now stands two games to one in favor of the Red Sox. There were a few early arrivals at the park in readiness for the opening of the sale of bleacher seats, but the number waiting in line was below the mark of former world series contests. The train which brought the players from Chicago was behind its schedule and as it was midnight when they reached their hotel they were allowed to sleep late this morning. When they came down to breakfast it was apparent that all the members of both teams were brimful of determination. The Red Sox were bent on cleaning up the series with two games on the home grounds while the Cubs were equally set on evening things up in the first game here and then forging ahead to final victory. In spite of the intense rivalry, the players of the two teams were a unit in declaring that they would back up to the limit the joint committee which they appointed on the train coming from Chicago to demand of the national baseball commission the fulfillment of the guarantee which they assert was given of payment of $2,000 to each player on the winning team and $1,400 to each loser. They were informed yesterday that the receipts from tickets were proving so small this year that their shares would be cut to $1,200 and $800 respectively.

THE HORRIBLE HANDICAP OF POISONED BLOOD

The Innocent Suffer Even Unto the Third and Fourth Generations, But Relief Is Now In Sight. It has long been accepted as a matter of course that the sins of the fathers must be suffered by innocent posterity, yet it is hard to become reconciled to this condition. The heritage of physical infirmity is a handicap under which thousands must face the battle of life. Scrofula is probably the most noticeable of the transmitted blood disorders, though there are other more severe diseases of the blood that pass from one generation to another. No matter what inherited blood taint you may be laboring under, S. S. S. offers hope. This remedy has been in gen-

Belgium Paid $466,000,000 to Germany in Four Years

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Germany has exacted war contributions from Belgium during the first four years of the war amounting to a total of $466,000,000. This is in addition to the vast amount of machinery, materials and men taken from Belgium to sustain Germany. In this fifth year of war it is interesting to review the "financial activities" of the Germans in Belgium since that fateful day in Belgium's history, August 20, 1914, when the German hordes entered Brussels. During that month, as the German armies were hacking their way through the little kingdom, numerous towns and cities were "fined" and war contributions were levied from each province as the Germans progressed southwestward. The first move of the German staff when entering a town was to proceed to the city hall and announce to the burgomaster that for resisting the advance of Emperor William's armies, his city or town had been fined so many thousand or million francs, as the case might be. When the burgomaster would remonstrate, Uhlans and Death's Head Hussars would cavort innocently in City Hall square or the burgomaster would be taken prisoner. In one instance in the province of Liege, the German commander of the company entering the town informed the burgomaster that a war contribution of 100,000 francs would have to be forthcoming within two hours. The burgomaster demurred. Never in the history of the little town had there been so much money in the city treasury. At the present moment, there was only a little over three thousand francs in the strong box. "Well, we'll take that," calmly responded the German. More than 200,000,000 francs were thus levied between August and November, 1914.

"Hello, Jones"

"Bought a new car, eh? She's a beauty."
"No, Bill, this is the same old girl. I've given her a new dress. My first job of painting, but results aren't bad."
"Say—that's what I call war economy. You've a new car and saved $1000."

THE UNCHASTENED WOMAN
Supported by Frank Mills
From Oliver Morosco's Brilliant production of Louis K. Anspacher's play
Scene from "THE UNCHASTENED WOMAN"
A RIALTO DE LUXE PRODUCTION

Mr. and Mrs. Conventional America Allow Us to Introduce the Unchastened Woman
A New problem for men to solve and a New Species for Women to Dissent
She is almost impossible of analysis. The product of our modern civilization, and some would say the victim of too much freedom. Anyway, she is one type of the emancipated woman, and a dangerous type. Somewhat in advance of the vampire, but equally as potent. In fact, to paraphrase Kipling, we might say "The Unchastened Woman and the snakey lady are sisters under the skin." She is a curious mixture of Washington Square and votes for women and the eternal Eve, as bizarre as a Futurist painting—and equally as understandable. Brilliant and witty, alluring, cunning and cunningly selfish, she seems to think she can use and abuse people very much as she pleases. She is married, but she laughs at conventions. She flirts outrageously and seems to revel in the world's verdict. But through it all, she remains chaste in body but quite the reverse in spirit and soul. Her one redeeming grace is her sense of humor—she laughs at everyone, including herself. She is cruel and equally gentle—when it serves her purpose. One moment a purring lounge cat, the next its tigerish feline ancestor. But beneath this texture of modernism she is undeniably womanly, we discover that at a time when she finds that "The Sauce for the Goose can also be Sauce for the Gander." But she is beyond us, also the artist who was asked to illustrate her in this advertisement, so we will have to do as Dr. Anspacher, the author suggests, "Let the curtain fall on her, unchanged, unwhipped, just as we found her in the beginning, chaste in body, but unchastened in spirit and soul."
