

ALLIES GREETED AS DELIVERERS BY TURK NATION

Heir to Ottoman Throne Expresses Regret That Country Had Entered War.

(By Associated Press)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 27.—There are 50 British, French and Italian battleships, cruisers and destroyers in the allied squadron which anchored today in the Bosphorus. The newspapers and the population have acclaimed the allied squadron as deliverers.

The headquarters of the British and French contingents have been established in Constantinople. A British aerial force is on the outskirts of the city.

Food prices in Constantinople, according to the Turkish finance minister, have risen 20 times above those ruling before the war. Disorganization of the railroads in Asia Minor today compelled the government to abandon the ration of cheap bread it issued during the war.

Of the 59 officers and men who have remained with the United States gunboat Scorpion in the Golden Horn since diplomatic relations were severed, 25 have married Levantine women.

"This last war was the most disastrous in the history of Turkey, not because she was beaten, but because it made enemies of nations naturally our friends," declared Abdul Medjid Effendi, heir to the Ottoman throne, to the correspondent of the Associated Press whom he received today.

"The present Sultan and myself," he continued, "denounced the proposal that Turkey enter the war. Mohammed V, who was then reigning, showed weakness before a clique of adventurers like Talaat Bey and Enver Bey, then cabinet ministers and now fugitives, whom Germany had fed with dreams of powers.

"I am more grieved of the Armenian atrocities committed during the war than of anything in our history, but I must insist that they were against the will of the present Sultan and the nation as a whole. They were instigated by unpatriotic ministers who were guaranteed in their places by their services to German militarism.

New French Governor of Metz Sees Dream Come True

(Philadelphia Public Ledger)
General De Maud'huy, who is a native of Lorraine, has been appointed governor of Metz, says a Paris dispatch quoting the Temps.

The choice of General De Maud'huy as governor of the stronghold of Lorraine is the realization of a lifelong hope. General De Maud'huy was born in the city which he is now to rule and which his family left after the debacle of 1870, refusing to accept the German yoke. From his childhood it was the dream of De Maud'huy to regain Metz for France.

Graduated from the military academy of St. Cyr, young Maud'huy found advancement in the army a difficult achievement, because his family took a leading part in clerical circles. So he could not get very far in radical France.

When the great war started he was low on the list of officers. By the end of August, 1914, he was merely in command of a reserve brigade at Dijon, behind a battle line.

General De Maud'huy, however, was possessed of one idea—to fight in Lorraine. He succeeded in effecting his transfer to another command and fought in a series of battles against the army of the German crown prince. He carried out his task so well that when the great retreat was ordered from the Meuse, De Maud'huy was one of the generals instructed by Joffre to hold out one day longer so as to show the Germans they would have no easy walk through France.

The division commanded by De

Maud'huy became merged in the great army that gathered around General Foch on the third day of the Battle of the Marne. General De Maud'huy's light infantry was in the thick of the conflict and he and his troops were mentioned in the order of the day after the victory.

When the Germans began their outflanking movement to the west the French commander-in-chief needed another army, and Joffre, looking for the most likely man for the task chose De Maud'huy, and at a stroke lifted him through several grades to the rank of army commander.

He went to Arras and began shaping into an army the troops as they arrived. They sent him Turcos, Singaleses, Territorials and reserves, considered the poorest soldiers in France, but there were no others.

October 2, 1914, De Maud'huy took his first army into action and by October 15 he had them entrenched over a 30-mile front, running from a point south of Arras north to Bethune, where the English army took up the line.

The battle of Ypres has become history. But, after all, the English only caught the third drive of the Germans, after they twice had failed to break through De Maud'huy's hastily gathered army.

The Bavarians and the Prussian Guard both broke down before Arras before they failed at Ypres. But, no one has ever heard of the great battle in Artois that De Maud'huy fought because it has been France's policy not to tell. So De Maud'huy's first great battle has not even a name.

Police Reserves Called Out to Prevent Clash

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Police reserves from three inspection districts were ordered out at 10 o'clock last night to prevent a clash between soldiers and sailors and Socialists attending a meeting of Internationalists in East Fifty-eighth street. There was similar trouble last night, which resulted in riots between the Socialists and uniformed men of both army, navy and marines.

POSTAL TO FIGHT GOVERNMENT AWARD

Clarence H. Mackay.

Following the announcement that Postmaster General Lurleson had awarded the Postal Telegraph Company $1,680,000 per annum as compensation for the use of its lines, President Clarence H. Mackay of the company announced that the Postal will reject the award. The company will fight the award in court if necessary, he said.

Better tenant houses on Indiana farms will help solve the ever present labor problem by getting married men to take the places of single men who change jobs more frequently.

Boils and Carbuncles Are Worse in Winter

If Your Blood Happens to Be in Bad Condition, S. S. S. Will Correct It Now.

The peculiar effect on the blood caused by the rapid changes of winter, the chilly blasts and dampness long continued, will undoubtedly have a disastrous effect upon your system if your blood happens to be in bad condition. You should not allow yourself to run the risk of suffering with boils and carbuncles, you should not willingly walk into the snare of pain and suffering of rheumatism or catarrh when you can put your blood in shape to prevent it by the simple method of taking S. S. S. for a short period during the fall.

Boils and carbuncles are evidence of disordered blood. They do not necessarily mean an inherited taint, but they tell you that your blood is poisoned—that the life-giving stream that should flow through your veins—pure, vigorous and healthy—has become upset, maybe by over-eating and drinking, possibly by constipation, stomach trouble or uric acid. Whatever the cause, your blood has become poisoned and you are not going to know what it is to feel entirely well until the poison and impurities have been washed from your system. The blood, purified and invigorated, will once more perform its natural function of keeping the body full of health and vigor.

Every part of the body is dependent upon the blood for nourishment and strength, and when for any cause this vital stream becomes run down, it invites disease to enter. The liver and kidneys, failing to receive the proper nourishment from the blood, grow inactive and the waste and bodily impurities that should pass off through these channels of nature are left in the system to encourage some blood disorder. When the blood is in this weakened condition, it should be treated with a remedy that is not only thorough, but gentle in its action.

S. S. S., a purely vegetable remedy, made of roots, herbs and barks, is just what is needed. It not only cleanses the blood of impurities and enriches and strengthens it, but gently builds up the entire system by its fine tonic effect. S. S. S. reinvigorates every part of the body, gives tone and vigor to the blood, and as it goes to the different parts, carries health and strength.

S. S. S. acts promptly and gives good results. It gives the blood power to drive out rheumatism, catarrh, boils, sores and ulcers, skin diseases and other blood disorders. Get it at your drugist's and take it now. Meanwhile, write us if you need advice. Our Chief Medical Adviser is ready to tell you what your best treatment is. ... and at the New Willard and the Shoreham, Washington, D. C.

A fact:

At these, the two leading hotels in the Nation's capital, Army and Navy men, statesmen, leaders of industry and prominent men from all sections of the United States may be found in greater numbers, perhaps, than at any other hotels in the country.

At the Willard, Fatima is by far the biggest-selling cigarette—which bears out, once again, what we have been saying all along about the nation-wide preference for this brand.

This is even further borne out by the fact that at the exclusive Shoreham only one cigarette (a 25c brand) outsells Fatima.

FATIMA

A Sensible Cigarette

In spite of the fact that it is not a high-priced cigarette, Fatimas are smoked by more men who can afford what they like than any other cigarette in the United States—smoked for their pleasing taste and because they never disturb even though a man may smoke more than one.
