

LABOR LEADERS SHOW DANGERS OF BOLSHEVISM

Menace Faces Richmond, Declare Union Organizers in Church Addresses.

Representatives of the Richmond Central Labor council explained the attitude and viewpoints of organized labor at the evening service of the United Brethren church Sunday.

John Putterbaugh of the Woodworkers' union, in a talk on the relation of organized labor to the church, predicted that Bolshevism would result in Richmond unless the employers and the labor unions got together.

"The unemployed problem is growing," he said. "Efforts are being made to beat down the wage standards. You can't let people starve when they know there is a superabundance of food. If you don't solve this problem the Bolsheviks, the I. W. W., and the Socialists will."

"The church works for the spiritual welfare and the labor organizations for mental and physical welfare," he pointed out. "Both are working for the betterment of mankind."

Robert E. Graham, district organizer of the American Federation of Labor, also emphasized the Bolshevik menace in a brief talk on the past and future of organized labor.

Discusses Principles.
"Labor was the first organized body that offered its services to President Wilson when war was declared," he said, "and now labor unions are the only things that stand between Bolshevism and the employers."

Lucius Harrison, labor organizer, discussing the principles of organized labor, said they were based on the principles outlined in the Bible, and followed Christ's creed of service to his fellow men.

He gave the following statement of the principles for which organized labor stands: labor of a human being shall not be regarded as a commodity or an article of commerce; right of free association, free assemblage and free speech shall not be abridged; all men entitled to an universal education, with time to pursue knowledge; society shall be founded on the basic principle of the Golden Rule; eight-hour work day; no child shall be employed to its own detriment; no woman shall be employed on work beyond her strength, and when she is employed on work done by men she shall receive a man's pay; right of collective bargaining; right of a worker to affiliate himself with any organization; recognition of the rights of property.

MENTIONED TO LEAD BOLESHEVIST FORCES

George Tchitcherin and G. Joffe, smaller picture.

The recent deaths of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, the leaders of the Bolsheviks, leave the Reds without a recognized leader temporarily. Among the men mentioned as possibilities for the leadership are George Tchitcherin, foreign minister of the Russian soviet government, and G. Joffe, revolutionary leader and president of the peace delegation to Brest-Litovsk before the arrival of Trotsky.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

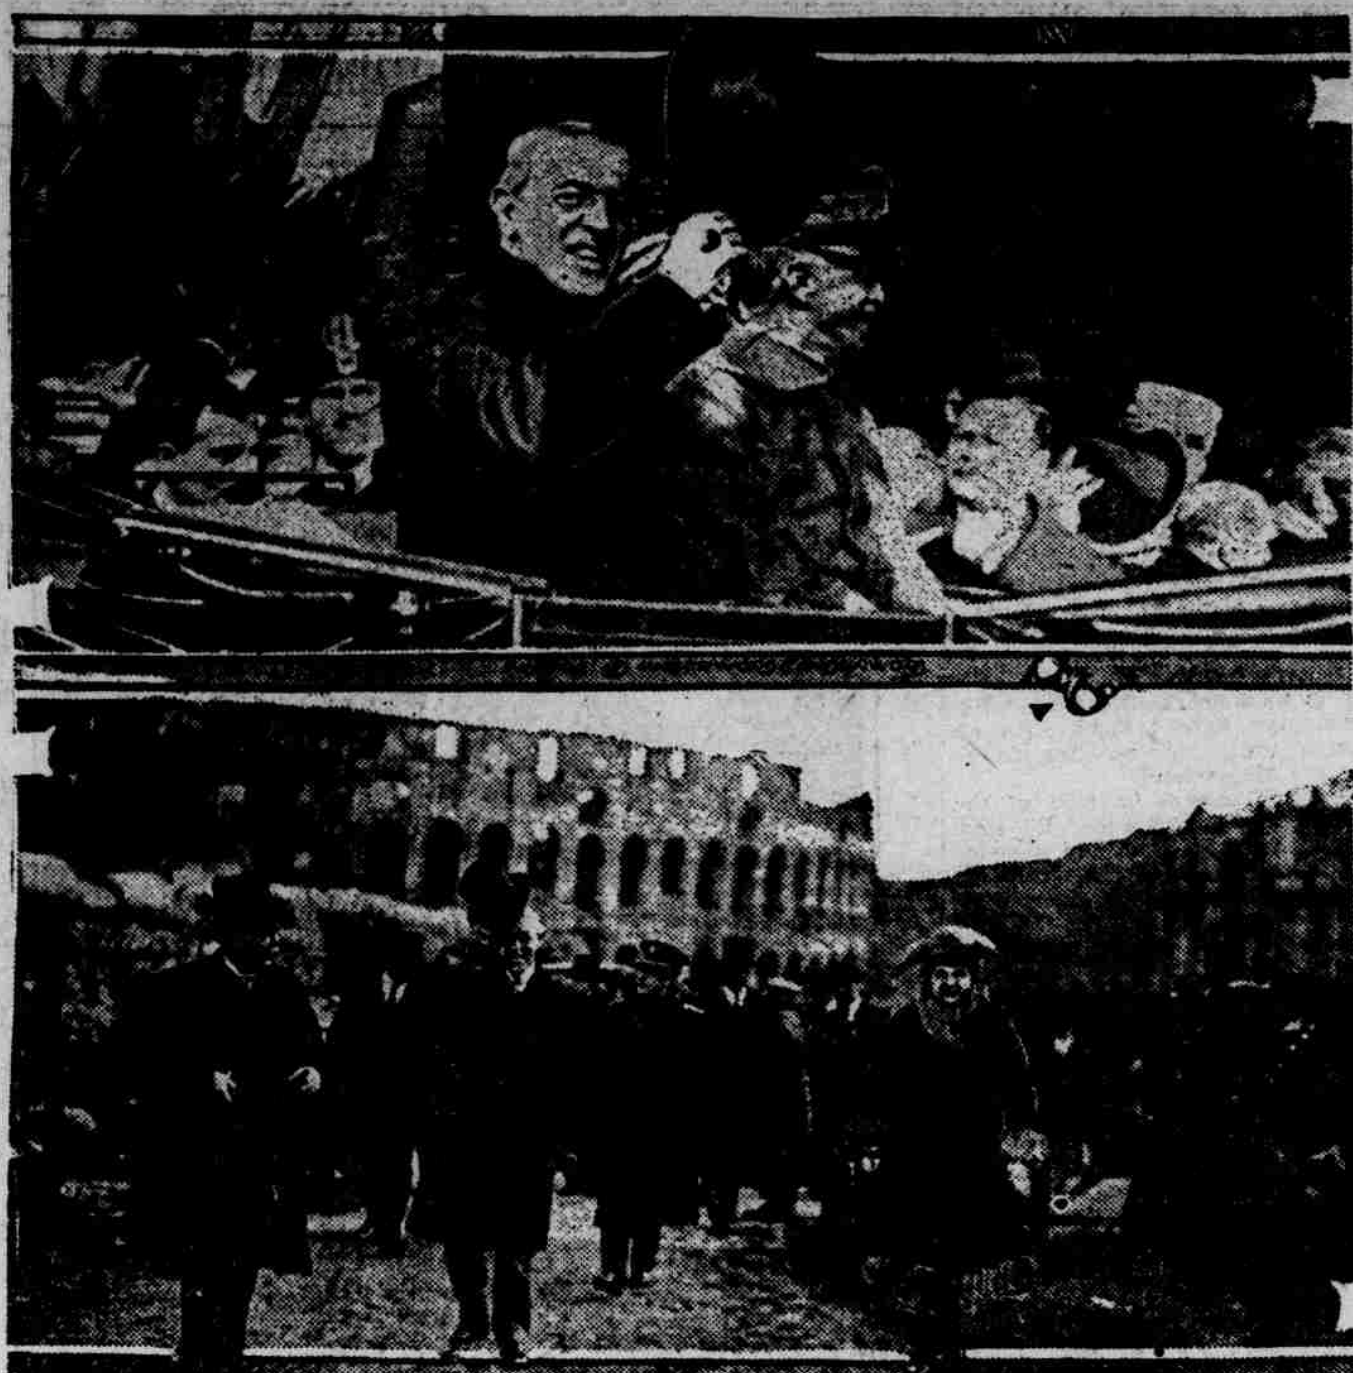

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

Ruins of Ancient Rome Are Viewed by President Wilson

President Wilson, in carriage with King Emanuel of Italy, on way to royal palace at Rome from railroad station, and the President and Mrs. Wilson leaving the coliseum at Rome.

President Wilson's love for history and art was shown during his recent trip to Italy. He spent some time viewing the ruins of ancient Rome, including the coliseum. Rome went wild over the president, according to dispatches. He is shown in the upper picture returning the greetings of the populace. The president was made a "citizen of Rome" to show Italy's appreciation of his work.

BELL'S
FOR INDIGESTION

Microphone's Patented Suspended Sound Chamber The Final Achievement in Playing All Records "True to Life"

When a bell swings free its tone is clear, full, resounding—perfect.

Build a box around a bell wedging the rim in firmly and you deaden the tone. Most sound chambers are wedged in, part of phonograph cabinets.

The Microphone wood sound chamber is made in the shape of a bell. The rim is not in contact with the cabinet. The sound chamber is not built into the cabinet but it is suspended under tension, having practically the same freedom of vibration as a bell.

This freedom brings out the living reality of mirrored music.

Only a Microphone has this final perfection. Only a Microphone can satisfy your natural longing to hear in your home the classic masterpieces and countless melodies played "True to Life."

Have your Microphone delivered now. We have several styles in stock for your selection.

We employ special salesmen in this department and their time is at your service and we will appreciate the opportunity of placing one in your home and demonstrate the quality and tone, then without any obligation on your part. Our easy payment plan with FREE RECORDS will enable every home to have one of the wonderful machines.
