

EARLHAM WILL OFFER COURSES IN BUSINESS

New Departure for Local College to be Introduced in Fall—Education Feature.

Business courses for students who wish to enter the business world, or to enter a school of administration with advanced credits, will be offered at Earlham next year. Such a course has not been offered before.

The first colleges were designed especially to offer ministerial courses, pointed out President David M. Edwards, Tuesday morning. Then, as other professions, law, medicine, and engineering, came into importance in the trained world, work in them was entered upon college curriculums.

"And now we find it necessary to see the needs of the business profession, and to look after those needs," said President Edwards in discussing the proposed course.

Work in money, banking and other allied subjects, is to be offered, with courses added each year until the student will be able to major in business, in the same manner as the student wishing to enter law or medicine majors in his line.

Education Course Offered

As provided by the State Board of Education, Earlham will also offer a two-year course in education for the benefit of those preparing for teaching. The scarcity of teachers now makes the work in this department particularly important. The best opportunities possible for students intending to major in education are to be offered the coming year.

George H. Hilliard, a graduate of the State University of Iowa, and who has for three years been teaching in that university, came to Earlham at the beginning of the present summer school and has charge of the educational department.

Closely related to this department is the department of philosophy, under the direction of Dr. J. C. Coffin, a graduate of Cornell university. Dr. Coffin has been associated with Earlham college for a number of years, and has gained distinction in his work.

WESTERN QUESTION SOLVED FOR GERMANY; EASTERN FRONTIER OPEN FOR AGGRESSION

GERMANY AND POLAND
By FRANK H. SIMMONS
(Copyright, 1919, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

However exaggerated the current reports of German military operations against Poland may be, it is necessary to recognize that such operations must now be expected. The unmistakable fact is that the cessions of German territory to Poland are things that cannot be accepted by any German now, and it is hard to believe that future generations will consent to a new map made at Versailles, which undoes all German achievement in the east in more than a century and a half.

As it stands, the Germans have evacuated the province of Posen, under allied pressure, thus abandoning a fertile Poland may be it is necessary to recognize that such operations must now be expected. The unmistakable fact is that the cessions of German territory to Poland are things that cannot be accepted by any German now, and it is hard to believe that future generations will consent to a new map made at Versailles, which undoes all German achievement in the east in more than a century and a half.

machinery, nothing is more likely than the East Prussian fragment will in time, be submerged by the Polish waves from the great Slav hinterland.

Eastern Hopes Are Gone

Germany recognizes with a certain clarity that she has lost the war in the west; it may well be that she will never challenge France again, so far as Alsace-Lorraine is concerned, with the certainty that France will be backed by Great Britain and not improbably by the United States, moreover, the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, even the loss of the Saar Basin, is of relatively minor importance, but if a real Poland is constructed, protected during its early years, endowed with Germany's Polish provinces, then Germany's hopes in the east are gone.

For Germany, then, the Polish question is vital. As it stands, Polish armies in Posen are less than a hundred miles from Berlin. The barrier of the Lower Viatus is removed. If the Slavs should ever stand together, if Pan-Slavism should re-awaken, when Russia comes to her own again, the road to the German capital would be open and short, without natural obstacle. Even if Russia remained in chaos, another European war in which Poland, as would be inevitable, stood with France and Great Britain, would bring instant and deadly peril to Germany.

In sum, and the point is capital, Germany cannot, save after she is reduced to utter helplessness, accept the eastern frontiers as drawn at Versailles. She cannot permit them to be even established temporarily, for the Balkan example has shown that peoples once liberated, maintain their freedom tenaciously and successfully. If Poland gets her new boundaries, her chance of keeping them is far greater than if the matter is delayed by German opposition until Allied armies are demobilized, and Allied publics have wearied and gone back to forgetfulness.

Cannot Accept Frontiers.

There is no need of pointing out that what Poland has obtained is justice, not generosity. The Danzig compromise is a very real disappointment of legitimate Polish aspirations. But to permit Poland to have justice, means for Germany, for Prussia, the true master of Germany, to lose much of her power in Germany, much of her force in Europe.

By contrast, if Poland does not obtain justice, Germany will escape from the war with no real barrier in her way for a new adventure, and the flimsy Polish state, which does not include German territories assigned to it at Versailles, will first be strangled industrially and commercially, and presently re-annexed to Germany, restoring the old situation of evil and the ancient obstacle to world peace.

Events in Poland in the next weeks and months, therefore, must have a very important bearing upon the future of Europe and of world peace, and no detail in the application of the conditions of peace can be more interesting than that which relates to the surrender by Germany of the territories she has promised to return to Poland.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Adv.

Vacations Again Popular; Everybody Taking Them

After the strain of war, vacations are regaining their popularity. Over five times as many people have gone on vacations this year as last, say officials of the Pennsylvania.

The farm is still first in preference as a resort, while following it are the lake resorts and the cities. Many have answered the call of the wild and many boxes and packages of fish and turtle are being shipped back to friends.

The north is most popular, many going to the resorts in northern Indiana or to the many fishing streams in the north and west. Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Dayton are holding the honors as the cities, although Great Lakes towns are also very popular.
