

Heart and Beauty Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I was born and reared in another state. My people were not careful as to convention or character. I do not understand why I should have been different, but they have held me in scorn for years, because of my "narrowness." Being ostracized by the people I so longed to be among, I began to realize there was small chance for a girl with my surname in that part of the state and so I moved away.

I am very glad I moved for here I have an opportunity to satisfy my craving for friends among nice people. Yet here is my problem. Can a girl be entirely away from her own people?

I became acquainted with a fine young man in the office where I work. We have gone together almost a year. He wants me to marry him, though there has been no formal engagement, that is, I have not accepted a ring, and have made no vow. I do know that I love him and he is everything I could wish in the way of a husband.

His people live out of town and they invited me down with him for a week end. They are very well to do from appearance, and have social prominence. I have tried my best to overcome the uncomfortable feeling that I had been under much discussion and that my visit was merely to settle a question of fitness. Indeed, I fear I could not have stood it except for my friend's pride in me.

I have come to understand since then that they have taken the pains to look into my family, for a little later I received a most unkind letter from his mother, urging me to release her son, assuming, of course, we were engaged.

I have told him nothing of the letter, knowing it would only hurt him.

He knows his people are opposed to our marriage and he also knows the truth about my people. He says he will not give me up. He is twenty-seven and my superior in both looks and social position. I am twenty-four and not very pretty, not of the type that generally attracts men, having been accused of being too sane and sensible. At any rate I shall have to admit of few friends among men and no former lovers, I believe, however. I would make him a good wife.

Could not his parents make life very unpleasant for him in case we married against their wishes? But that I could not love him so deeply but that I could cheerfully give him up in case it is for the best? Would his marrying into a family like mine prove a handicap to him, as his mother feels it will? Would you please tell me what you would do under such circumstances?

VERY RESPECTFULLY YOURS,

Marry the man. Of course you can make him happy and you need not fear his parents. They are so cruel and unreasonable that they will lose his respect.

Your fiance's future depends upon what he makes it. His own ability and character will win his place in the world, regardless of his wife's origin.

I know from your letter that you will be a great help to him. It shows so much intelligence and character. Certainly you realize that you could bring him greater happiness, because of his love for you, than any other girl, no matter what her social position.

Imagine that you are advising some other girl in your position. I am sure you would say that she should marry. The prejudice of his parents means nothing in the face of love.

Richmond Youth Is Arrested At Tipton

TIPTON, Ind., Aug. 11.—A youth who gave his name as Marion Austin, 20, and his home as Richmond, Ind., and a girl, Grace Long, 20, who said her home was at Maysville, Ky., were taken into custody Saturday in the yards of the Lake Erie and Western railroad, while they were in the act of descending from a box car. The young woman was clad in male attire. The couple came here from Muncie and said they were on their way to Chicago, where they intended to wed. Being short of funds some dresses belonging to Miss Lang were expressed to Hammond, they said, and they planned to "beat" their way to that city. The young woman was released Saturday evening from the county jail after being provided with proper clothing. She was sent to relatives in Richmond. Austin is still held.

Jellied Fish—One and one-half cups cold flaker fish, two tablespoons of chapped capers, one tablespoon granulated gelatin, two tablespoons cold water, cup boiling water, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-quarter teaspoon salt, mix the fish and capers. Arrange in a mold. Soak gelatin in cold water, stir until dissolved, then add lemon juice, boiling water and salt.

Pour this jelly carefully over the fish and set in a cool place to harden. Cut into portions and serve on lettuce with plenty of salad dressing. Hard-boiled egg slices may be added to the fish. This dish may be prepared in the morning early and is a charge from the heavy summer luncheon hot dish.

He estimates that the total sum taken or sent out of Germany during the war at 20,000,000,000 marks "protees" in bitter terms. These German capitalists, he says, have been responsible for great decreases in the German exchange.

They cannot be reached directly, he says, because of the intricate "dummy" system, but if an international tax were provided, affecting neutrals on the same basis as belligerents, these "financial deserters" would be properly punished.

Cook onion in the fat and a little water until tender. Add to first mixture the onion and sufficient water or meat stock to moisten. Mix well, pour into a baking dish and brown in the oven. This dish furnishes plenty of protein, is easily prepared and takes very little heating compared to meat.

Two cups cooked oatmeal may be used instead of the cheese and bread crumbs.

Every housewife—every MAN of the home—should read the following letter:

"The service we have enjoyed in our household from a Thor Washing Machine, purchased from you seven or eight years ago, has been really remarkable. We have a family of three small children, consequently the laundry work has been quite heavy and the Thor has been run weekly, and very frequently twice a week for all this time without ever failing down on the job, and the machine today is in good working order, capable to do the washing for a long time to come."

"We figured out the other day that the Thor has actually saved us $600, in addition to the great satisfaction and the saving in time, the elimination of arranging for laundresses and looking after their wants, to say nothing of the disappointing quality of the work when it is necessary to change laundresses.

"We have had the greatest satisfaction from our Thor machine, and we look upon it as indispensable to the household. We would advise the purchase of a Thor Washing Machine long before the fine furniture or solid silver, or even gold, is thought of."

"We are so enthusiastic about it that we feel that we could convince the most doubting prospect you ever got hold of. Cordially yours,
River Forest, Ill.

(Signed) MORRIS R. EBERSOLE."
