

STATE LAW IS UNEARTHED TO AID COST WAR

Old Indiana Statute Gives County Prosecutor Power to Subpoena Witnesses.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—Bars handicapping the state and county officials from gathering evidence to be used in prosecuting profiteers, were thrown down yesterday when an old Indiana statute was unearthed by Ele Stansbury, attorney general, which gives county prosecutors power to subpoena witnesses and take sworn statements.

The discovery of the statute followed a conference of Governor Goodrich, the attorney general and Dr. H. E. Barnard, Federal food administrator for Indiana, which was called by the Governor to determine if there was some definite way in which evidence could be collected.

The Governor announced late Tuesday that he would provide the attorney general's department with finances from the Governor's contingent fund with which to assist local prosecutors in waging war against violators of the Indiana anti-trust law prohibiting combinations from boosting prices or to restrain trade. The Governor also announced that he would provide revenue from the contingent fund to defray the expenses incurred by the state food administrator in giving publicity to the margins of profit on staples.

Text of Statute
The statute under which the prosecutors will be enabled to gather the evidence of extortion is Sec. 9405, Burns' Revised Statutes, 1914. It reads:

"Whenever any prosecuting attorney shall receive information of the commission of any felony or misdemeanor, he shall cause process to issue to the proper officer, from court having jurisdiction to issue same, directing him to subpoena the person therein named likely to be acquainted with the commission of such felony or misdemeanor, or and shall examine any person so subpoenaed before such court touching such offense, and if the facts thus elicited are sufficient to establish a reasonable presumption of guilt against the party charged, said court shall cause so much of said testimony as amounts to a charge of felony or misdemeanor to be read to the jury, and subscribed and sworn to by such witnesses, whereupon such court shall proceed to issue warrants for the apprehension of the accused, as in other cases."

Violations of the Indiana anti-trust law are misdemeanors. The law provides a fine of $5,000 and not to exceed one year's imprisonment in the county jail.

BEAU BRUMMELL who "taught Wales what a coat was like"—inventor of numberless niceties of dress—gambled himself into poverty. Publicly cut by the King, he had his last remaining finery laid out preparatory to seeking a friend who might save him from disgrace. With Weston, his faithful valet, keeping the door against the bailiffs, the great beau shaved serenely on. Prince of the Dandies to the last, he finished the job with the utmost care. Then, carefully wiping dry the precious blade and affectionately placing it in its case, he turned to Weston with the command: "Now let the rogues in."

The razor that Beau Brummell used was a shaving tool of wonderful balance. Length, temper and correct diagonal stroke were there; all it lacked was the safety and convenience of the double-edged, detachable blade of the
