BAD BREATH

Caused by
Acid-Stomach

How can anyone with a sour, raspy stomach, who is constantly belching, has heartburn and suffers from indigestion have anything but a bad breath? Bad breath is a sure sign of acid stomach. Acid stomach means just one thing—Acid-Stomach.

EATONIC, the wonderful new stomach remedy in pleasant tasting tablet form that you can take a bit of candy, brings quick relief from these stomach troubles. EATONIC sweetens the breath because it makes the stomach sweet, cool and comfortable. Try it for that nasty taste, congested throat and "head feeling" after too much smoking.

If neglected, Acid-Stomach may cause you a lot of serious trouble. It leads to nervousness, headaches, insomnia, melancholia, restlessness, sciatica, heart trouble, ulcer and cancer of the stomach. It makes millions of victims weak and miserable, listless, lacking in energy, all tired out. It often brings about chronic invalidism, premature old age, a shortening of one's days.

You need the help that EATONIC can give you if you are not feeling as strong and well as you should. You will be surprised to see how much better you feel just as soon as you begin taking this wonderful stomach remedy. Get a big 50-cent box from your druggist today. He will return your money if you are not satisfied.

The Woman's Relief Corps will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the post rooms of the court house.

Complimenting Mrs. Ward Dubbs, who was married last week, Mrs. Lyman Lybault will entertain informally tomorrow evening at her home on South Twelfth street.

The Protective Home circle will hold its regular meeting this evening and all members are urged to be present as State Deputy Roberts will be at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Traylor have returned from a week's motoring trip through southern Kentucky.

Miss Elizabeth Marvel has gone to Wilmington, Del., for a visit with relatives.

Mrs. Frank Weissgerber was hostess last evening for a pretty party at her home on North Ninth street, for the pleasure of Mrs. Edith Strattan Dubbs, who was married last week. The evening was spent in costumes, the favor going to Mrs. Bert Overman, and a delightful program of musical numbers was given by several of the guests. A color scheme of yellow and white was effectively carried out in all the rooms and in the luncheon which was served by the hostess. During the evening the bride was given a miscellaneous shower, the gifts being brought in an express wagon decorated in yellow and white. Little Miss Dorothy Snively, dressed to represent Cupid, pulled in the wagon and delivered the gifts. Late in the evening luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Garnet Rothert, Miss Donna Gay, Miss Irene Hayden, Miss Louise Overman, and Miss Marcia Weissgerber who wore aprons and caps of yellow and white. The guests were Mrs. Ward Dubbs, Mrs. Ralph Taylor, Mrs. Ed Crowell, Mrs. Ray Spierling, Mrs. C. R. Edmundson, Miss Flora Edmundson, Mrs. Harry Reed, Mrs. John Longstreth, Mrs. Angie McDivitt, Mrs. Lyman Lybault, Mrs. Cheesman, Mrs. Ralph Snively, Mrs. Ida Dubbs, Miss Iona Dubbs, Miss Wanda Dubbs, Miss Carrie Madlin, Mrs. Myron Crane, Mrs. Myron Keeler, Mrs. Charles McGraw, Mrs. Ernest Bode, Mrs. R. ## A Chance to Live---By Zoe Beckley

MERELY "CASES"

Then the doctor came—a boyish person in a clean white duck uniform. He walked in briskly, but with a weary, bored air, and started down the aisle. At some beds he stopped a considerable time, reading the record and chart that hung at the head of each and doing perfunctory things to the patient—taking temperatures, examining, feeling, listening at chests, holding wrists. The nurse accompanied him, putting in a word here and there. Would he ever get to Bernie's bed? And yet Annie's heart agonized for some of those others who looked even more ill than her own loved one.

Suddenly Bernard opened his eyes, fever-bright and glassy. He looked at Annie, who got up quickly with Robbie and came to the head of the bed.

"Oh, my dear—speak to be, Bern," she whispered, pressing her hand upon his hot forehead.

"Where—what—Oh, it's you, Ann," said Bernie, bewildered. Then, as remembrance came back, he went on more steadily. "Why do I have to be here, Ann? It's a devilish place. I hate it. I want to go home and—"

"Hush, dear," she put in gently, "the doctor's coming. I want to ask him all about you. And if it's all safe and all right, you shall come home, Bern. Look at Rob— isn't he wonderful? See the color he's got!"

Bernard looked at his little son, but his gaze grew vague and wandered back to Annie.

"They don't treat me right here. No one does anything. I'm all right, I tell you, and I'm going back to work."

The young interne and the nurse came up, the former nodding perfunctory to Annie.

"Well, how are we getting along?" he greeted Bernie.

"I'm all right," repeated Bernard, half sitting up. The young doctor pushed him back, saying not unkindly, "There, there, young man, you've got to take a rest. You can go back to work pretty soon."

"I wish somebody'd shut that window," said Bernie, "they're all trooping through, dozens and dozens—I want them to stay outside—"

"It's the fever," said the boyish doctor matter of factly, turning to Annie. "He'll have these semi-delirious spells for nine days or so, then the condition will abate. He'll be all right. Good constitution. No need for alarm. I'll look in again tonight." And he passed on his way.

Not worry, Annie was shaken through and through with distress and misgiving. She went after the doctor, timidly touching him on the sleeve.

"Please—when you've finished here, can I speak to you a moment?" she asked pleadingly. He looked at her coldly, a trifle annoyed, yet somewhat touched, too, at her deep anxiety. He had long hours and much work to do, with little pay. Ward patients meant just so much working material to him. He had to spend his due term in the hospital before he could get his diploma. The men in those beds were to him merely "cases." There was nothing especially interesting in Bernie's case. Ordinary pneumonia. If he stopped to talk with every frightened wife and relative who beset him with questions he'd never get through his day's grind, and have his "leave," and meet his girl.

"There's really nothing to tell you, madam," he said. "The patient is progressing satisfactorily. There is not much to do in pneumonia. It must run its course. He receives all necessary nursing. He'll never get through his day's grind, and have his 'leave,' and meet his girl."

The Call of Colorado and Utah Rockies

Spend your vacation this summer in the heart of the Rockies.

The climatic, scenic and recreational advantages of this outing region annually attract multitudes of summer visitors.

Smooth motor roads lead to high mountain passes; and trails lead to woodland glades "where the ground was never trenched by spade, and flowers spring up unsown."

Lakes and rushing streams full of game fish.

Here are two National Parks, six National Monuments and more than twenty million acres of National Forests.

WAYNE LEGION POST TO BE NAMED; ALL URGED TO ATTEND

Every man in Wayne county who has been in the U. S. army, navy or marine corps, who was in service during the war, is urged to attend the meeting of the Wayne county post, American Legion, to be held next Monday evening in the court house. Nearly 200 suggestions have been submitted to the committee that was selected to name the post, and much interest is being taken in the choice.

The names have already been submitted to the legion committee, which is composed of Dr. George R. Hunt, Joseph Conner, Leo H. Weiss, Don Wright, of Cambridge City, and Frank Brandt, of Hagerstown.

Each member of the committee has been asked to select a name for the legion, from the list presented, and from the five names selected will be chosen the name for the post, at the meeting of the post next Monday night.

To Start Campaign
An active campaign for membership will be started next month, according to F. Strayer, president, and efforts will be made to have every soldier, sailor and marine in Wayne county as a member of the post.

The meeting next Monday night will be for the selection of a name for the legion only, and owing to the warm weather, will be short, according to Strayer. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock.

For light automobiles a detachable support has been invented to enable running boards to carry heavier loads than ordinarily.
