An Internal Treatment For Piles (Hemorrhoids)

Gives absolute relief from all pain and suffering. Has never failed. Guaranteed.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was no remedy for their case.

Go to your druggist and get an original bottle of Miro Pile Remedy, the discovery of a clever Ohio chemist, that taken internally, passes unchanged through the stomach and intestines, and thus reaches the source of the trouble where, by its soothing, healing antiseptic action, it first allays and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles causes them to heal and disappear forever.

It's positively marvelous how speedily it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two or three days, even in cases that have resisted all previously known treatments really wonderful results have been accomplished. It is one of the wonderful discoveries of recent years and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded.

All pharmacists dispense Miro or can get it for you on short notice. Surely it is worth the little trouble to obtain to be rid of piles forever. IMPORTANT—What is known as itching piles are not piles in the true sense of the word, although this condition may accompany a true case of piles. For this condition Miro Pile Ointment has been prepared as in such cases it is not necessary to take the internal prescription.—Adv.

BOSSERT ATTENDS MEET OF INDIANA G. O. P. WORKERS

Walter Bossert, of Liberty, chairman of the Sixth District Republican organization, attended a meeting of Republican chiefs of the state, held Wednesday in the Hotel Severin, Indianapolis.

Means by which the woman's vote might be brought out in the national and state election of next year occupied much of the time. In addition, plans for organization and conduct of the campaign were touched upon by the leaders.

That the Republican primary next year would be a free-for-all was assured by Edmund W. Wasmuth, state chairman, in a statement to the conference which pledged the state committee to act the part of umpire only. Mr. Wasmuth sees a "smashing" Republican victory in Indiana next year.

Committeemen present were: L. A. Folsom, Booneville, First District; Bert Fuller of Vincennes, representing David R. Scott of Linton, chairman of the Second District; Bert Thurman of New Albany, Third District; L. W. Henley, secretary of the state Republican committee, representing John G. CLINGING TO HOPE

Annie did not dare detain him longer. She could think of nothing else to ask at the moment that would wring further information from the young interne. With heart of lead she went back to Bernie's bedside and tried vainly to read from his blank face and wandering eyes how great the danger was. Bernie sometimes answered her; sometimes not. Unless she roused him he did not seem to know she was there.

She stayed as long as she dared. But Robbie grew hungry and fretful and she had to go. Bernie said, "Good-by. Tell Simms I'll be in early with the mail, rain or shine."

Annie wiped her eyes on the baby's coat, stricken with the utterly helpless pity that is roused by the wanderings of a fever-disordered brain, and left the place.

That evening she went to Aunt Margaret's to tell her cheerless news and hear from the older woman hers. "Ann," said Aunt Moggie, when the story of Bernie in the hospital and of her own lost position had been told, "I want you to promise me to worry over me. Simms let me know how he found a girl of nineteen at a smaller salary who could do my work. Maybe she'll do it better, I don't know. I shall find another place, as I did before. Perhaps it won't be easy—the older you grow the harder it is to find work—but I'll get something."

"Meaning I have a bit saved. But that isn't the point, dear. The point is there's a lesson in all this. I'm too old to profit by it. But you are not. When Bernard gets well you must see to it that he fits himself for something beyond mere clerical work. My fingers were all I had to earn my living with. They're getting stiff and slow now, so I'm steadily going down. I was always too timid, too lacking in confidence, to push to the front. Bernard has different qualities. He is bright and self-assured. He must have his chance. It can't be managed in a minute. We can't see far enough ahead yet even to guess what it should be. But when this trouble is over we're going to begin working toward it. Do you understand, dear?"

"Yes," said Annie softly. "But that hospital is—is terrible, Aunt Moggie. I'm so afraid."

Chautauqua Program Is Opened at Camden

CAMDEN, O., Aug. 21.—Dr. Frank Elwood Gordon of Okmulgee, Okla., was the speaker at the opening of the chautauqua here Thursday. Dr. Gordon spoke in the afternoon on "Six Cylinder Living" and this evening will discuss "Shooting the Goal." An entertainment and concert was given by the Victory Girls, an organization of four young women.

A play festival and chautauqua fun hour was held Wednesday afternoon at 7:30 o'clock, under the direction of the junior supervisor. Four hidden tickets were hunted by the children. A pageant will be given by the members of the Junior chautauqua on the sixth day of the program.

Friday will be Red Cross day, with Miss Bessie Baker, who served as Red Cross nurse with the American troops in France, as the main speaker. She will discuss "Community Service and Health." Friday's program follows:

10:00 a.m.—Athletics and games. Conducted by Junior Supervisor.
2:30 p.m.—Concert, Williams Male Quartet.
3:15 p.m.—Lecture, Miss Bessie Baker, American Red Cross nurse, A. E. F., "Community Service and Health."
7:30 p.m.—Popular Concert, Williams Male Quartet.
8:15 p.m.—Lecture, "Sovereign Power," Hon. J. Claude Youdan.

"Don't be, dear. It's only because it's all new to you. Tomorrow it will not seem so dreadful. The next day it will seem even less so. Just keep going, Nance, keep hoping. It will all come right."

Annie found it was so. The terror of the hospital, the fear that Bernie would die, decreased day by day. Annie presently bore her burden of privation and anxiety as a matter of course—as the poor do bear their worries. She fell gradually into the routine of straightening her house, going to market and taking the baby up to the hospital, sitting with Bernie as long as she could—all as a part of her day's work.

At the end of the second week of his illness his employer sent him fourteen dollars with a brief note that said the company regretted it was unable to continue his pay indefinitely, but would hold his place open.

It was from this time on that Annie learned what the depths of poverty meant. Aunt Margaret, her lifelong source of help and courage, was no longer able to hold out financial aid. Annie reached the point of actually denying herself nourishment, that Robbie might have his milk and that a few dollars might remain to fend off the groceryman and the rent collector.

But her landlady answers an advertisement in the Matrimonial News, the consequence of which is that the unfortunate girl goes west. But out in the cow country the fury of a woman, the jilted postmistress of a sidewalk town, has caused the insertion of the advertisement to humiliate the man who was blind to her charms.

However, when the eastern girl met the man who knew nothing of the spiteful plot in which he was to appear as a lurer of innocent girls, the two victims found a way to thwart the postmistress's evil designs. That way led to the altar.

Alice Brady, the popular and charming star, who has gained the reputation of permitting no one to "double" for her, will be seen in a dual role in her latest Select Picture, "His Bridal Night," a racing, rollicking farce, which comes on Friday and Saturday to the Washington Theatre.

"His Bridal Night" is the story of twins, Vi and Tiny. Miss Brady, with her charming grace and manner and adaptability, gives a delightful characterization of the twins. In the role of Tiny she is demure, thoughtful, conscientious, and a bit goody-goody. But as Vi she is vivacious, headstrong, mischievous, daring, lovable, and a bundle of "pep."

Miss Brady gives each of the twins a distinct personality of her own. They are twins in age and personal appearance only, but not in disposition. Each is a separate character, with a gripping vivid, irresistible personality. You will love Alice Brady in this picture, and incidentally the twins.

Edward Earle plays the lead and James L. Crane has another important role. Kenneth Webb directed "His Bridal Night."

MURRAY

Billie Rhodes, the sprightly little star, has in "The Love Call," now showing at the Murray a role that proves the clever little ingenue possessed of unusual talent for character acting.

Miss Rhodes is always at her best when she is unhampered by conventionalities. As "The Kid," in "The Love Call," the vivacious little actress plays the part of a western girl who has been brought up in a frontier town by her drunken, crusty old father, an ex-mate on a sailing vessel, known as Mate Allen, whose favorite hang-out was O'Keefe's primitive saloon in Chugwater.

The Mate is killed by O'Keefe, and the Kid starts out into the world alone to carry out her murdered father's old repeated wish that she get an "education." "I don't know what the blazes an 'education' is," but dad wanted I should get it, and I'm goin' after it," was the Kid's comment.

The Kid's quest leads to a romantic meeting with Joe Emory, a sheepherder, and later an exciting and humorous adventure with a husky, good-natured cowboy, Nick Horton, who pulls the whiskers of a college professor when the professor refused to admit the Kid into the university without some preliminary studying.

There are a couple of exciting rough-and-tumble fights in the production, one between the "Mate" and O'Keefe in the frontier saloon, and another when Nick grabs the professor by his hirsute barrage and mops up the classic floor of the college with the dignified high-brow.

The photography is striking, especially the shepherd scenes showing the flock coming down the mountain trail.
