QUOTA OF BANKS
FOR CERTIFICATES
OF U. S. $75,000Eaton Financial Institutions
Absorb All Offered by Government—Issue Aug. 1.

EATON, O., Aug. 26.—Combined quotas of the Eaton National and Preble County National banks in the $500,000 certificates of indebtedness issued by the government is approximately $75,000 semi-monthly.

The first issue was August 1 and both banks have absorbed its quota at the periods stated. Entire quota of all the banks in Preble county is $128,000 semi-monthly. Each is expected to absorb one and sixteenth percent of its total resources.

Rev. Yingling to Conference
Rev. J. Elmer Yingling, pastor of the United Brethren church, expects to leave today or Wednesday to attend the Miami United Brethren annual conference, which opens Wednesday in Dayton in the Euclid avenue church.

Rev. Yingling conducted his final services for the conference year at his church Sunday evening, at which he read his annual report, which is the same as he will submit to the conference in Dayton. It is quite generally believed that Rev. Yingling will be returned to the local church.

Ogden Files Bond
Bond in the sum of $2,000, with a fidelity and casualty company as security, has been filed with the county commissioners by Thomas F. Ogden, county recorder elect, who takes office next Monday. His bond has been approved.

Richmond Company to Open
Eaton will be the distributing point for a branch tea and coffee house of Richmond, Ind., for sections of Preble county, according to report in local business circles. The Richmond branch house has leased Mrs. Sallie Kelligan's business property, North Cherry street, for its local quarters. James M. Patterson, deceased, Mrs. McKelligan's former husband, for several years operated a saloon in the property. It is said the branch will be under control of the Great Central Tea company.

Soft Drink Place Sold
Sale of the Birl Foreman soft drink place, North Cherry street, to Lou Weaver, Jr., is announced. The business was at one time operated as a saloon by Charles C. Pollett.

Cocoanut Oil Makes
A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisulfed cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get multisulfed cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. —Adv.

What are Substitutes
For Old J. B. Corn?

A nationally exploited soft drink is the substitute most Richmond men have taken up for the real stuff, since prohibition went into effect is the opinion of several drink dispensers.

This drink, mixed with a little lemon makes a mixture that most young men and girls, too, call for and the sale of this drink has noticeably increased since John Barleycorn, died and was buried.

Next to this chocolate milkshake are said by some dispensers to be the most popular substitute with the men. Lemonade is also popular.

Near beer, has not gained much favor with the men, as it makes them think of what it used to be, and is no more. Also near beer looks like tastes like, but does not act like, real beer. Men don't drink it much, for they say that they don't like to be kidded.

The Theatres

WASHINGTON. The last Screen Classics, Ind., production in which Harold Lockwood will be seen, and which played at the Washington theatre yesterday to a capacity house, is a thrilling adventure drama of arresting strength and beauty. It is a screen version of Henry Kitchell Webster's popular novel.

It tells the story of David Smith, a virile young American who is sent to a tropic island by a clique of unscrupulous men to concoct a false report on property there to swindle thousands of unsuspecting stockholders.

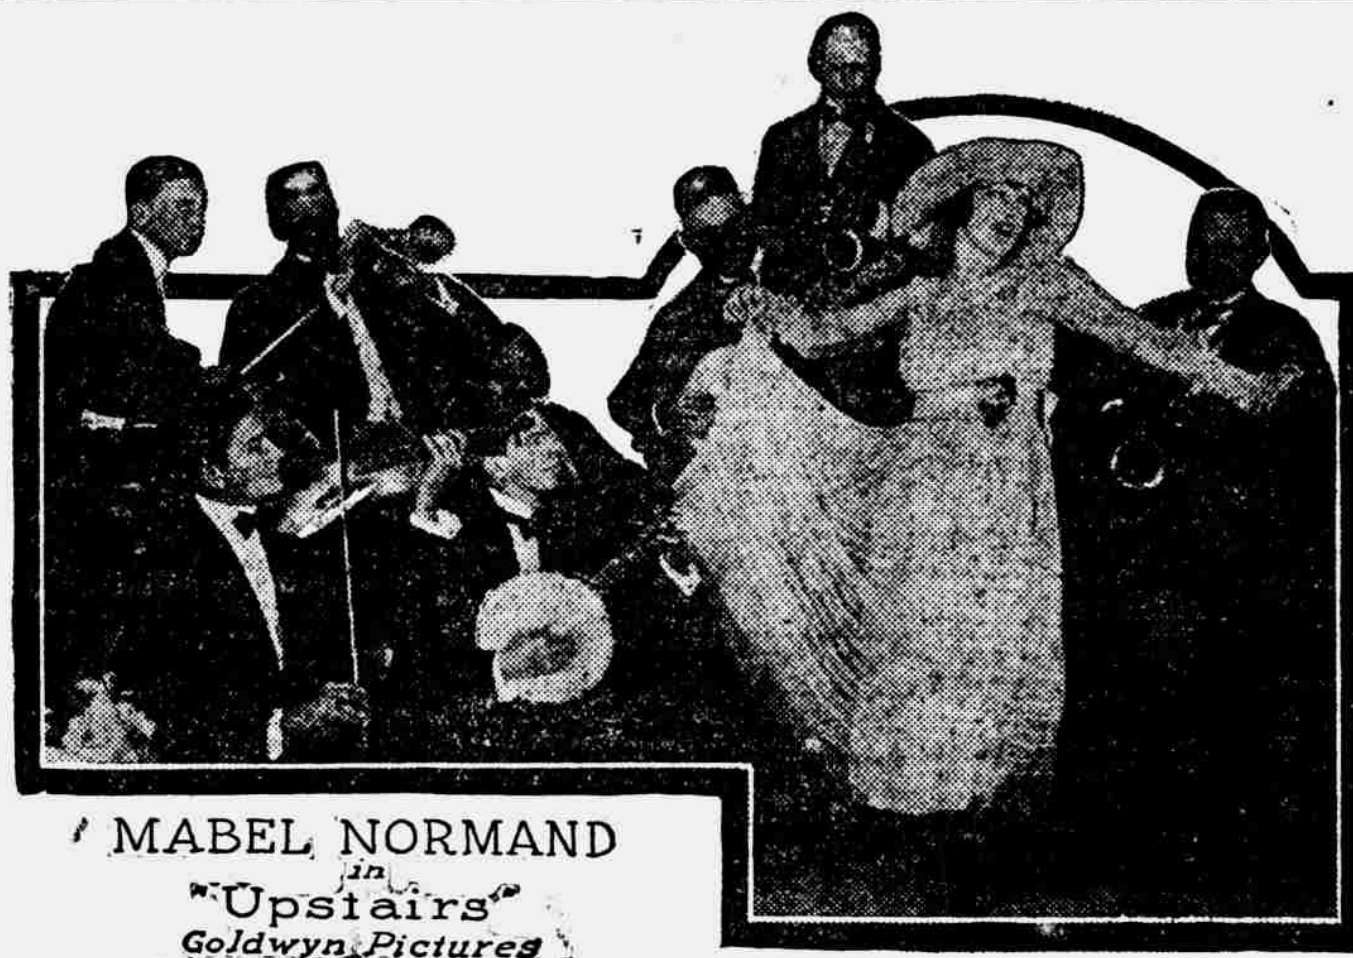

How David refuses and how he determines to retrieve the deteriorated property and make it pay is shown, as are his many adventures and hair-breadth escapes while accomplishing

FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very small cost. Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.—Adv.

this seemingly impossible task. Mixed with the daring of his undertaking is the romance which unexpectedly came into his life on this remote island and how a wealth of pirate gold and treasure is also discovered by the happy pair.

One of the unusual and interesting incidents of the play occurs when Mr. Lockwood is seen as the handsome, dare-devil buccaner, Calico Jack. This is brought into the story through the imagination of the girl he loves, who fancies she sees him in this fantastic garb of the terrors of the sea.

The supporting cast includes such artists as Bessie Epton, Stanton Heck, William Clifford, Bert Starkey, Gordon MacGregor, and Fomerey Canon. The direction was done by Fred J. Balshofer with Edwin Carewe as managing director.

She didn't know a soup ladle from a salad spoon, but oh, how she could shimmy! She used to bathe dishes in a sweltering hotel, but every time that zippy jazz band started syncopating, she just couldn't make her feet behave. Then she decided to show the high-kickers upstairs in the cabaret some new wrinkles in the gentle art of fast living. She "borrowed" a swell Lady Duff Gordon outfit and onestepped into the cabaret. An eloping heiress who looked like our hapless heroine;

a bungling detective; a million-dollar bellhop and then the fun started. It all happens in "Upstairs," Mabel Normand's latest and best Goldwyn picture.

What I Know About The Girl "UPSTAIRS"

Scandal

WHILE I have always tended strongly toward a close adherence to the Golden Rule, "With malice toward none and charity for all," I have in my possession some facts concerning a certain young lady of this town that, in the interests of the community, I feel morally obliged to divulge.

Something of a mysterious glamour surrounds this young lady, for although she has been in our midst for a number of weeks, and her escapades are well known to the habitués of a certain local hotel, I have been unable to find a person who knows something about her, other than she styles herself the girl from upstairs and from some ulterior motive refuses to disclose her name. I have spoken to the girl and find her to be a conceited, meddlesome hussy of the "Wine, Women and Song" type frequently seen in New York cabarets. During my conversation I was greatly shocked to hear her confess an ambition to lead the so-called "wild" life.

This girl from "Upstairs," I learn, recently secured a position as kitchen maid in the hotel, and in order to satisfy her ambition to be a "wild woman," deliberately took a hat and evening gown belonging to a guest. This theft, I have every reason to believe, was committed by the girl, with the help of a certain well-known young man who is the son of one of the wealthiest citizens and who has fallen a victim to the girl's wiles to the extent of working as a bellboy in a hotel to be near her.

Dressed in the stolen garment, the girl went upstairs to the ballroom and proceeded to disport herself in a most unladylike and scandalous manner. It is now rumored at the hotel where the young lady works that she plans an elopement with her wealthy bellboy admirer. I trust that the young man's father will read this letter in time to prevent this calamity, and sincerely hope that my letter will come to the attention of every person who holds the welfare of Richmond at heart so that they may be duly warned of the harmful influences resulting from the presence of the girl who went "Upstairs" and there found a real Rag-time Romance!
