grief when "Bare-Fisted" dangles him by his legs with his head in a creek after a desperate fight, and then gets shot up when he tries to rob the stage and place the evidence on "Bare-Fisted," and some humorous types of the Southwest cattle-country.

Murrette last time today.

MURRETTE
"Don't go to history of the distant past for knight errantry and romance. Go to the Texas border," said William Farnum, the noted actor, who has won the plaudits of millions in heroic roles of the west and southwest. "The Texas Rangers, those brave defenders of the border of Texas, could furnish a new Sir Walter Scott with material for a lifetime—and a long one."

"These men, the Rangers, are made of the stuff of which America will be proud—a band of the bravest and boldest men that ever made history in this country; and they are still making it in their modest way."

"The Rangers were organized in 1835," Mr. Farnum continued, "and bore the brunt of the conflict when Texas separated from Mexico. Without the Rangers there would hardly have been any cattle business in some parts of Texas. Along in the '70's and '80's cattle rustling became rife, and whole herds were driven off by the thieves."

"The Rangers, chosen for their absolute fearlessness, carried terror to these outlaws. They were and are the real gun-fighting men of the world—men who drew first, who never wounded."

"Davey Crockett and the other heroes of the Alamo were Rangers," Captain McNelly's famous band of forty alone made two thousand arrests, besides many killed in fights between '75 and '78 when cattle thieves were a tremendous menace. Along with the splendid Canadian mounted police, led by those brave fellows self-sacrificing patriots the true knights errant of America," Mr. Farnum said.

In "The Lone Star Ranger," a William Fox production of the famous novel of the same name by Zane Grey, Mr. Farnum has a character that is a vehicle for his heroic and romantic powers. This photoplay appears at the Murrette theatre next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. It is said to contain some extremely sensational episodes.

The result of the director's artifice is emphatically illustrated in the Thomas H. Ince-Paramount picture, "Bill Henry," starring Charles Ray, which will be shown at the Murrette theatre Wednesday and Thursday next. In this production the script called for a negro porter to jump quickly with a frightened look. Jerry Storm, the director, put Luke, the character, through the scene a dozen times without getting the desired look.

Then he whispered to his assistant director and turning back to the scene conducted another rehearsal. The cameraman started turning the crank. The negro was standing close to the back of the set. When the time came that he was to jump and look frightened, a gun exploded right behind the scene. The assistant director came forth with the shotgun in his hand and inquired, "Well, did you get it?" "We sure did," replied Mr. Storm.

Strong Vaudeville Bill Opens Fall Season at the Murray

An exceptionally strong vaudeville bill has been booked by Manager Frank Holland, of The Murray theatre to inaugurate the regular season which opens Labor Day matinee, Monday, September 1. Heading the bill will be "The Black and White Revue," a modern minstrel creation featuring Alma Neilson, "The Girl on Her Knees," with an all-star cast including Ivan Ely, Andy Harris, Joseph Warden, Laura Neilson and the Jeanette Sisters. This act comes here direct from Keith's, Dayton, where they appeared last week, and is a distinct novelty, being a minstrel show and a musical comedy combined. Special settings are carried, and from all advance reports, this set is one of unusual merit. This big offering does not comprise the entire show, as two other feature acts and a feature picture will be added for good measure.

The opening act will be The Norvelles in their novelty sketch entitled "In An Artist's Studio." This is a camouflaged aerial act with all the apparatus hidden in artistic designs of vines and flower boxes. Mr. Novelle as the artist, assisted by Miss Novelle, who possesses a beautiful figure, then offer a very fast aerial exhibition which brings forth continuous applause. Walzer and Dyer, a youthful young couple in "Originality," a singing, dancing and talking act, will complete the bill. In conjunction with the foregoing, Enid Bennet will appear on screen in her latest Paramount production, "Virtuous Thief."

Two of the prominent acts opening Thursday will be Austin Goetz and Fay Duffy in a "Variety of Oddities," consisting of singing, talking and comedy whistling, and Edmunds and Rogers, two blackface comedians in "Ethiopian Nonsense." The headline act will be announced later, while Lila Lee in her newest Paramount production "Rose of The River" will be the pictorial attraction. Commencing Monday the admission for daily matinees will be 25 cents for adults and 15c for children. Owing to the limited seating capacity, and the high priced bills booked for this winter, it is necessary for the management to charge all children occupying seats for the evening performance the regular full price. This change will also go into effect Monday.

Local Theaters to Observe Paramount-Artcraft Week

Paramount-Artcraft week, which has been set for September 1 to 8, all over the United States, will be observed by Richmond motion picture theatres. The Murray theatre has booked all Paramount-Artcraft pictures next week, and the Murrette has several of the productions listed for the near future.

All three of the leading theatres here, the Washington, Murray and Murrette, have announced that they intend to feature the Paramount-Artcraft pictures during September.

MONARCHY RULE IS SEEN FOR HUNGARY

(By Associated Press)
VIENNA, Aug. 28.—News dispatches from Budapest and editorial comment in Hungarian newspapers every generally express the belief that events in Hungary presage a return to the monarchical form of government, it being declared that the Christian nationalist party are thinly veiled monarchists. There are indications that there is a closer censorship of dispatches from Budapest.

Advices received here from Budapest indicate that before the formation of the new Hungarian cabinet by Stephen Friedrich there were suspicions that the Rumanians were intriguing against the formation of a new government. It is stated that as late as Monday the Rumanians had declared they would not recognize any ministry that did not favor their interests.

Elements favoring a political and economic union between Rumania and Hungary are said to have been very active in Budapest and it is alleged that Hungarian politicians seemed to be completely under Rumanian influence, there being some skepticism as to the possibility of the peace conference affording Hungary any relief.

Body of Nashville, Tenn., Lawyer Found in Creek

(By Associated Press)
NASHVILLE, Aug. 30.—Bearing bullet wounds and other marks of violence the body of Robin J. Cooper, a Nashville lawyer, who after a sensational trial was acquitted of the murder of United States senator Edward W. Carmack in 1908, was found today in Richmond Creek, near here. Cooper had been missing since Thursday and his body was recovered about 100 yards from a bridge where his deserted, blood-spattered car was found early this morning.

LABOR AND H. C. L. GUIDE ON MARKET

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—This week's market was again guided to an extraordinary extent by the trend of developments in the field of labor and the further extension of the living costs movement.

Trading was little more than moderate in comparison with the high pressure maintained in mid-summer, but the net result, while somewhat confusing, disclosed numerous substantial advances.

Higher prices averaged were effected in the final days of the week on the firmer stand taken by the railroad administration in the matter of the Pacific coast strike situation and the dismissal of oil land cases long pending against the Southern Pacific company.

The latter decision had the effect of booming oil shares as well as Southern Pacific stock and the issues of minor railroads traversing oil bearing territories, extreme gains of 3 to 12 points being registered.

Rails in general manifested further restraint, however, and leading industrial also reflected the unsettledness in labor circles, although a few pooled or closely held issues made sensational gains.

International conditions, as expressed in terms of foreign exchange, were better for a time on the rally in Sterling exchange, but London rates subsequently reacted, while Italian remittances fell to a new point of depreciation.

Y. M. C. A. Board Considers Successor to Brunson

The executive board of the Y. M. C. A. met Saturday to select a successor to O. M. Brunson, former secretary, whose resignation took effect August 1. A number of applications have been received for the position and it is probable that a new boy's secretary will be here next week.
