SALE DAY WINDS UP BIGGEST FAIR AT HAGERSTOWN

By WILLIAM R. SANBORN

Saturday is farmers' and breeders' day at Hagerstown, the day of all days to the boys and girls of the calf and pig clubs, more especially, and to the exhibitors of fine stock which was to be sold during the afternoon.

Included in today's sales are the calf and pig club exhibits, registered and grade horses, cattle, hogs, mules and poultry.

Not all exhibits are being put up for sale, but every exhibitor having live stock to dispose of is having the benefit of the crowds and the services of the four auctioneers on the grounds. Colonel Fred Reppert, of Decatur, Indiana, is the auctioneer who is "crying" the great exhibit of Polled Angus cattle Saturday afternoon, and the attendance of Angus fanciers is quite large, many hailing from various parts of Ohio and Indiana.

Forty head of this breed were fed by the boys and girls of the Wayne and Henry county calf clubs, and all that were in the cattle pens will be auctioned to the highest bidder before the sale winds up Hagerstown's greatest horse show and free fair.

The sale of black cattle is being conducted by the Henry County Aberdeen Angus Breeders' association of Henry county, of which Harry Modlin of Newcastle is president and Orville Carpenter, the secretary-treasurer. The work of this association is beginning to tell, in both Henry and Wayne counties.

The list of auctioneers at sales include: Colonel Fred Reppert, of Decatur; Albert Hindman, of Hagerstown; Everett Burton, of Spiceland and Clem Conway, of Moreland. They are a busy bunch, this closing day.

The people of Cambridge City showed their appreciation of what Hagerstown has accomplished in the show line Friday. The Cambridge auto parade was an attraction in itself.

They own a lot of good cars in Cambridge and the folks who rode over to enjoy the events staged for Cambridge City today brought with them flying and coat ribbons proclaiming their pride in the city from whence they hail. This auto parade doubled over the course and was generously applauded by the grandstand.

The crowd of Friday was even larger than had been anticipated. The show was a good one, both as display of live stock and from the point of amusement. The grandstand was comfortably filled after noon, and the walks were crowded from end to end of the grand parade grounds. All building streets were parked full of autos, and on all sides were the evidences of a happy and prosperous people out for a care-free day.

The Baby Show. One of the interesting events staged in front of the fair during the afternoon, was the Baby Show. Chairs were arranged for 14 proud mothers, each of which presented the very dearest and sweetest baby on earth for admiration.

While a baby was entitled to a prize there wasn't enough of these to go round, so many had to be content with the applause of the multitude. There were eleven boys and but three girls in the contest, but at that the girls won just as much money as did the boys. The first prize for boys was awarded to Charles Huffman, Jr., and the second to Charles Parsons, Jr. Rosanna Roth took first honors and Grace Cotter the second prize in the girls' contest.

Two Comic Parades. Following the "Suffragette" parade on Thursday night which was a scream according to all beholders, came the "Comic Dress" parade on Friday night. These parades and the various attractions of Paul's United Shows held the crowds until a late hour on both evenings.

There was plenty of good music during both afternoon and evening and the airplane exhibit at 4 o'clock was one of the best of the week. The high wind prevented that attraction being pulled off at the afternoon show.

One of the most important and highly appreciated exhibits of the fair was that of food, made by the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church of Hagerstown, both in the tent near Main and the double building on Main street and in the tent close by.

Mrs. A. R. Jones, is president of the "Aid" and most of the ladies of the congregation assisted in the serving. These women are anxious to assist largely in the building of a new church on the site of the present structure. The new edifice is to be a credit to the community, and the cost approximately $30,000.

The proceeds of the sale of any number of good meals, and the thousands of pies, and sandwiches, etc., are to be donated to this good cause.

Numerous Awards Friday. The men who won prizes in the horse rings during the week made final exhibit on Friday afternoon, and received various premiums. No cattle were shown for premiums on Friday. The list of awards for the week were given in The Palladium, covering the entire cattle show, in Friday's issue. The completion of the premium awards in the Garden Club exhibits Friday, added a number of names to the list of those making the best showing in the contest held in Floral Hall.

MARGARET SMITH HOME ASKS FOR GRAPES

News and Notes of Chautauqua Grounds

President Elmer Bryan of Colgate University, who headed the Wayne County Teachers' Institute this season, left Friday evening for Kokomo to spend a short time with his mother.

This is the first Chautauqua season of Davis, the Magician, and he says it has nearly worn him to a frazzle. Jumping from an Indiana town to King City, Ind., and then back to Indiana over night is more than human magic can stand, he says. He is a stock company manager, private show director and special act man as well as several other things.

The Bertha Farnor company came to Richmond from Alabama. Their stop just before that had been in North Dakota, they said.

PROGRAM GIVEN BY CHILDREN FEATURE OF THIS AFTERNOON

One of the closing hits of the Chautauqua season was to be the children's program Saturday afternoon. The program is under the direction of Miss Bessie Buhl, of Centerville, who had charge of the children's tent and child education work.

The children's tent has been especially popular this year. There have been from 30 to 50 youngsters taking part. Plans for the children's performance have been under way all week and the actual performance promised to be a complete and interesting affair at the final "dress rehearsal" Saturday morning.

Songs Are Sung. The opening song was to be "Welcome If You Keep Right Still," sung by a group of girls. This is followed by "Who Speaks First," a recitation by Martha Ellen Thomas.

Josephine Thomas, Beatrice Smith, Raymond Stiver and James Carson will give "We Must All Scratch" following which Alice Ellen Page will give "Sweet Confidence." Beatrice Owens will also give a recitation. "What Mother Says," followed by another song by little folks, "When I was a Baby."

A group of little boys will give "The Bugaboo," and Josephine Thorne will recite "The Starry Banner."

Alice Stevens will appear in "Our Hired Girl," a popular number after which a number of little girls will give a pantomime to the tune of "Comin' Thru the Rye." Thelma Wilson, of Centerville, Thelma Boswell of Centerville, Ruth Unthank of Richmond and Edith Driver of Centerville will give "Cinderella Interrupted."

Playlette Is Next. The second part of the program was to open with "Hard Times in Playland," the dialogue of two "hard up young men" backed by a chorus of little girls. Evan Parks and Joseph Rust were to be the principals in this. Two little girls will give "The Result" in concert reading after which Dorothy McKinnay will give a monologue, "Reading the Locals."

BRYAN PLEADS FOR HIGHER PAY FOR TEACHERS

Asks Conditions That Will Encourage Youth of Talent to Enter Profession.

Until we give as much time, care and study to the raising of our children, as we do to raising pigs, and sheep, and chickens, I wonder if we can hope for a better race?" Dr. Elmer Bryan, president of Colgate College, in his final address before the Richmond Chautauqua Friday afternoon.

Dr. Bryan said that he understands that the mothers and fathers of this country love their children infinitely more than they love the cattle they raise but that he questions whether or not they give nearly as much thought to the science of raising these tremendously important possessions of theirs, as they do their live stock.

"Only once in a thousand times, does the young man who is a thoroughbred decide of his own accord to go into the teaching profession," said President Bryan.

"This is of course because in this profession they are paid such miserable, puny, salaries, and I hope and pray that the day will come when the fathers and mothers of this country, and all the other taxpayers, will see that they are being cheated unless they provide the best and finest teachers possible for their children.

"I hope the time is not many years off when all the teachers and professors of our children can really be called fine enough to be teachers and professors and this will not be until this kind can afford to enter the profession.

"What do the people of this country love and honor Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln, and the long line of statesmen whose memories they hold dear? It is because they lived at beautiful Mount Vernon and Monticello."

"Surely not, for if it were what should we think of Lincoln? No, it is because we hold dear the ideals for which they stood, and which they made those of our country."

In closing this part of his address, Dr. Bryan said: "He is silly who ignores the high road of living today for we the people must live, but he is wickedly sillier, if he fails to pay the price of high living, the price of right thinking, of right thoughts."

Don't Judge League.

About the League of Nations, the speaker said: "I saw the manuscript of the League of Nations. It was written on good paper, and it was as great as a Monticello. I had catalogued some of you know how large that is. I read several paragraphs of the covenant. I know something about it, but I say to you that I do not know whether or not the League of Nations is right because I have not had time to study it. If I began the study of that volume today with my knowledge of history it would take me at least two months."

"Now do not misunderstand me. We can not all be expected to read the League of Nations through with historical and political understanding and make a perfect decision; we are most of us far too busy with our daily tasks, which we must do in order that we may live, but I do say to you, do not try to disapprove of a League of Nations because of Washington's last speech, or because of the Monroe doctrine for anyone who has read either, knows that there is no reason there."

"Washington said we do not want any entangling alliances because we are a young and struggling nation—that is not true now. And do not let us expose our ignorance by saying that he Monroe doctrine, which was born in the head of an Englishman and handed over to Mr. Monroe, afterwards taking his name, and which since he died, has been kept through the power of the English fleet, stands in the way of us entering a league of nations."

"I ask you not to make either of these foolish remarks in discussing the league. I do not tell you whether or not I think the league is right because I do not yet know."

A decided hit will be "Grandma Days" a costume appearance of several little girls garbed as their grandmothers used to appear. Jeannette Smith, Dorothy McKinnay, Edith Driver, Vivian Sugars, Thelma Wilson, Thelma Boswell, Ruth Unthank, Betty Price will appear in this. Miss Erpha Lundy of Centerville will read, "A Little Bit of Heaven" and "Sunbonnet Days" with piano accompaniment, and Miss Thelma Boswell will give a pantomime to the music of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" with Miss Vesta Roland singing behind the scenes.

Miss Mary Carmen is piano accompanist.

"Kids' Have Athletics Under Direction of 'Y'"

The general headquarters of the Chautauqua will be removed to the Y. M. C. A. building in town the first of next week to wind up the financial affairs of the Chautauqua association.

August After June's Record as Bride Month

August has come very near supplanting June as the month of brides, according to figures in the marriage license bureau of the county clerk's office.

During the month of August there have been 52 licenses for marriage issued, as compared with 54 licenses for June, the month of brides. The August list of marriage licenses issued is the second largest of the year, according to the record.

Dan Cupid has also slipped ahead of the divorce courts during the month, there being only 21 suits for divorce filed during August. There have been 41 civil actions filed in circuit court during the month, and two actions in probate court.

There were 21 criminal actions filed during the month all but four of which have either been tried or set for trial. Juvenile court had 11 new cases filed during the month.

"Olivette," one of the older popular light operas, will be given by the Davies Operatic company on the Chautauqua stage at 8 o'clock tonight with all eight people of the company appearing. The appearance of this organization is one of interest because of its reputation and because of the fact that Harry Davies is a former tenor singer with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Others of the personnel have also experienced success in the field of music. This afternoon the company was to give a popular concert.

Cement Shortage Holds Up South 9th Street

Lack of material has forced the contractors engaged in building the South Ninth street road temporarily to abandon their work, according to County Surveyor Howard Horton.

Failure to receive the necessary shipments of cement has caused a delay of almost two weeks in the construction of the highway. The work, which was to have been finished by Sept. 1, was originally held up about two weeks ago, through a cement shortage, and after the men had resumed work, it was necessary to stop again last week, to wait for a further supply of material.
