

WHEAT PRICE RULE WILL RAISE LOWER GRADES SLIGHTLY

Changes in wheat prices in Richmond and Wayne county will follow the announcement Tuesday by the government grain corporation of a schedule of prices to be paid for the grain.

No. 1 wheat will be $2.11, as before; No. 2, $2.08; No. 3, $2.05; No. 4, $2.01, and No. 5, $1.97, according to the local millers Tuesday. This is an increase on all grades beneath No. 2.

The new regulations are calculated to give the producer the benefit of every doubt as to the relative value of the light weight wheats, in order to protect, as far as possible, producers who have suffered unfavorable crop developments with the production of an unusual quantity of low grade wheat.

All dealers will be required to pay producers not less than the proper country point reflection of the terminal guaranteed price for No. 1 wheat.

Schedule of Discounts. For all wheat otherwise conforming to the specifications of No. 5 or better, but deficient in test weight, discount No. 5, price 3 cents each one pound deficiency in test.

Wheat grading below No. 5 for reasons other than deficiency in test weight shall be bought on its relative merits.

Smutty Wheat. To be discounted for 2 cents, for slightly smutty, to larger discounts, according to degree of smut.

Mixed Wheat. Will be taken at discounts ranging from 2 to 5 cents, according to quality, in the judgment of each vice president.

Mixed Wheat and Rye Grading "Mixed Grain." Will be discounted as follows: Estimate the average value of the wheat and rye separately at their proper value and in their proper proportion (figuring the rye at sixty pounds per bushel) making allowance for dockage or other inseparable foreign material and make such deduction as seems justified, but not less than 5 cents per bushel as a penalty for the mixture.

Garlicky Wheat. To be discounted 2 cents.

A Chance to Live--By Zoe Beckley

THE QUARREL

"Well—it's all there is," said Bernard, a sullen note creeping into his voice, "you'll have to economize."

They said no more. The thunders and lightnings passed. But to carry out the similes a sort of steady cold rain went on falling, making things sodden, shrouding the little home in gloom.

To make matters worse, Bernard developed a determined viewpoint in the matter of spending his meager wage. He was not naturally niggardly, any more than Annie was by nature a shrew. But the continued grip of poverty causes strange spasms of a soul. Emotions get criss-crossed and out of their wonted current. Virtues begin to pass the virtue limit and become vices. Strange mixed motives appear.

At all events, Bernie took it into his head to apprortion to his wife a daily sum which he judged adequate for the purchase of food. This sum was 65 cents a day for six days of the week and a dollar for Sundays. He set aside $3.50 each week for the rent and allowed himself 60 cents for carfare and $1.20 for lunches. This left $1.80 weekly for the Carrolls' allotment of clothes and other necessities; while daily the cost of living soared.

Had Annie been in normal mind she would have seen that it was about as fair an arrangement as could be worked out of Bernie's pay. But being in a highly-strung state of nerves and nursing still the pain of their recent quarrel, the mere idea of his daily dole was abhorrent. She felt it to be high-handed and cruel—a reflection upon her administrative capacities. It rankled in her sick mind.

Her love for Bernard became submerged in a feeling of outrage. That she should be so treated—she who slipped food from her own plate onto the plates of her children, she who went without warm clothes in order that they might be protected! It was an outrage.

She voiced something of this to Bernie one night. It was probably broached in untactical words. At the wrong time. Who knows how quarrels start? Who knows the exact point where two persons who love each other drop ideals and pick up truth? Exchange self-restraint for the luxury of frankness?

"I won't stand it an longer!" cried Annie, one point of the painful conflict. "I'm going to leave this—this—" she glanced around in a helpless search for words, "this prison where I have to take what's flung to me, and never get a chance to go anywhere or see anything or have anything!"

Bernard lifted his eyes slowly and looked at her.

"You mean you're going to live somewhere else?" he returned coldly. "Yes—just that! If I've got to sufprey to the artful wiles of a model. Resenting her husband's actions Elinor accepts the attentions of a friend of the family. The husband's jealousy is soon aroused; and, then he learns that the other man had once been a suitor for Elinor's hand, his brain conceives the idea that their child is not his. Her innocence is soon established and, through their love for the child, happiness is found again.

The action of the story takes place in New York and Paris. The night life and art studio atmosphere of the French metropolis are shown in lavish and spectacular success. In the cast supporting Miss Laird are Henry Clive as the husband, Mlle. Elaine Amazar as the artist's model and Warburton Gamble as the friend. Betty Hove, Alexander Herbert and Charles C. Brandt complete the program.

MURRAY.

"To Captain John Hughes and His Texas Rangers." The above caption is the tribute Zane Grey pays to the Texas Rangers in dedicating his great novel, "The Lone Star Ranger," to this body of brave men. He says: "In the North and East there is a popular idea that the frontier of the West is a thing long past, and remembered now only in stories. As I think of this I remember Ranger Sitter while he grimly stroked an unhealed bullet wound. And I remember the giant Vaughn, that typical son of stalwart Texas, sitting there quietly with his bandaged head, his thoughtful eye boding ill to the outlaw who had ambushed him. Only a few months have passed since then—when I had my memorable sojourn with you—and yet in that short time

Russell and Moore have crossed the Divide, like Rangers.

Gentlemen, I have the honor to dedicate this book to you, with the hope that it shall fall to my lot to tell the world the truth about a strange, unique and misunderstood body of men—the Texas Rangers—who made the great Lone Star State habitable, who never knew peaceful rest and sleep, who are passing, who surely will not be forgotten, and will some day come into their own."

MURRETTE.

"The Virtuous Thief." Enid Bennett's latest Paramount-Ince picture, was presented with great success at the Murray theatre last evening. This is a delightful bit of drama with finely drawn characterizations of real human people living in the Flatbush district of New York. In it there is drama, suspense and good comedy relief.

Miss Bennett is charming as Shirley Armitage, a stenographer who goes to work for a scoundrel to save the honor of her brother, who in a moment of temptation took $150 of his employer's money to back a "sure thing" on the Stock Exchange. The weak brother is played with remarkable good taste by Lloyd Hughes.

Niles Welch is convincing and appealing in the part of the timid, yet jealous lover, who has the whistling habit. Willis Marks gives a good interpretation of Major Armitage, an old Southerner—who, despite his residence in New York, still reads the Memphis paper, and writes caustic criticisms to the editor. William Conklin portrays with realism the cherubic stock broker. An especially good bit is done by Andrew Robson as the police captain, and Dorcas Matthews and Lucille Young rise to the requirements of their parts.

The story concerns a young girl

One of the most powerful dramas of the screen is "As a Man Thinks," the Four Star Picture featuring Leah Baird and showing for the last time today at the Washington theatre.

Directed by George Irving, from the original stage play by Augustus Thomas, the dean of American playwrights, tells the story of a man who sees no wrong in his flirtation, but harshly censures his wife for a less offense.
