

SICK MEN FROZE WHILE PLUMBERS LOAFED AT SHERMAN

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Ill soldiers at Camp Sherman Hospital suffered from cold because steamfitters, supposed to arrange for heating at the hospital, idled.

This testimony by Representative John C. McKenzie, of Illinois, was characterized as the most startling that came before the congressional subcommittee investigating alleged scandals in connection with the building of the cantonment.

It was offered by Joseph E. Poole, city carpenter, who was employed as a supervisor in the building of the hospital. Poole claimed that in the zero weather of October and November, 1917, when surgeons and nurses wore fur-lined overcoats to work with the soldiers in the heatless wards, pipefitters, supposed to hurry the heating of the buildings were in dice games and cooked wieners over their gasoline torches. When Poole pleaded with the pipefitters to hasten their work they told him to "go to hell," he said.

The same tale of alleged waste, inefficiency and graft that characterized former hearings in Columbus marked the closing session of the committee at Camp Sherman.

An increase in membership of 10 per cent is the goal of this church. Interest has been heightened in the Sunday school by the representation of an automobile race from New York to San Francisco, on a large banner in the church. Each class represents an automobile, and each member gained so many miles in the race. This race, with the newly organized orchestra under Ralph C. Sloan, promises much for the Sunday school.
