

SHORT TOBACCO CROP AND HEAVY DEMAND ASSURE HIGH PRICES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—On the eve of the opening of the burley tobacco markets in Kentucky, Representative J. C. Cantrell tonight gave out a statement in which he said: "From every reasonable standpoint, the price of tobacco this year, of the burley type, should break all previous records. It is well known in Kentucky," he says, "that the crop of tobacco grown in the year 1918 was an unusually large crop of burley tobacco, and yet on October 1, 1919, the stocks in the hands of the dealers and manufacturers were practically the same as the average amount during the past eight years. It also is well known to every burley tobacco grower that the crop grown this year is an unusually short crop of tobacco, and, applying the law of supply and demand, there is every reason to believe that there will be an unusual demand for the crop of tobacco which will go into the market shortly, and there is every reason why, owing to the scarcity of burley tobacco and the stocks in the hands of manufacturers and dealers, the crop which is to be sold this winter of burley tobacco should bring a higher price than ever in the history of the tobacco market."

News of the Art World

The appearance of Sascha Jacobson, Russian by birth, but for some years a resident of New York City, in a violin recital at the Coliseum Tuesday evening is of marked interest to the music lovers of Richmond and the community. Although only 30 years of age, Jacobson has made an enviable reputation, not alone in the eastern metropolis, which is claiming him for her own, but in other cities. Ray Weisbrod, local manager, has reported excellent seat sales. A large number of the tickets sold for the first Weisbrod concert were for the season. Season tickets are still being purchased. Because his former sales have proved monumental successes, Frank Girardin, Richmond artist, is opening a small gallery on the third floor of the Union National Bank building where he will conduct a private sale beginning Monday and ending next Saturday. The gallery can be reached by elevator. A number of charming canvases are reasonably priced. Several pictures painted on the Indiana-Ohio state line are among the most interesting. An interesting picture of wild roses painted east of Glen Miller and several woodland interiors are shown. Unique work with sunlight and the introduction of considerable green coloring are features. The artist and his wife will spend the winter in California. Cosmopolitan crowds are visiting the Jonas Lie exhibit of paintings hung in the public galleries in the High School building. The exhibition appeals to both art student and layman. There is something more than fascinating skill in the pictures; they are strongly sincere and real, although the artist is in many respects an idealist. A large number of people visited the galleries Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Maude Kauffman Eggemeyer's "The Girl in the Garden," which hung in the recent Richmond artist's exhibit in the public galleries, has been purchased by William Dudley Foulke. Mr. Foulke purchased several canvases from this exhibit. Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, the great Spanish coloratura who is Italian by birth, and who made her first operatic success in San Francisco, has again arrived in the United States for a continental tour, the complete itinerary for which has not yet been announced. During the war Mme. Tetrazzini was active in allied relief work.

Last winter Josef Hoffman came back after 15 years to give Indianapolis a piano recital. Yesterday afternoon he played again in that city. Again a number of Richmond people heard his recital, and were charmed with his exhibition of technical and temperamental virtuosity. His charm is simple and unforced; he does not attempt to captivate his audience for apparently he does not consider their existence except when made to respond with a third bow. If not the greatest Hoffman is at least one of the few great pianists of the world.

Word comes from Paris that on the occasion of the seventieth anniversary of the death of Chopin, a marble tablet was placed on the wall of the house in the Square d'Orleans in which the composer occupied two rooms from 1842 to 1849.

The class in French art which regularly meets on Wednesday evening in the public art gallery has been postponed until a week from Wednesday which will be the last meeting until after the Christmas holidays. Mrs. M. F. Johnston, instructor, has been called to Oberlin, O., where she is arranging an exhibit of the New York Society of Painters.

"The Artist as a Vital Part of the Community" has been announced as the subject Granville Barker, noted English playwright and producer, will use when he speaks in Richmond on January 28, under the auspices of the literary department of the Woman's Club. Barker will tour the States.

Walter Walger, violin and cello instructor, who is teaching at Earlham college and conducting private classes in Richmond and vicinity, will display a class of cello pupils in public recital in the high school auditorium next Friday evening. Walger has done excellent work with his pupils, who are feeding both Garfield and high school orchestras with excellent material.

The music section of the Woman's club has postponed the regular session of Wednesday morning, this week to Tuesday evening, Dec. 9, which will be an open meeting at 8 o'clock in the Reir Memorial church. A program of Christmas numbers will be given at this time, following the custom of the old music club to give a Christmas recital each year. This is not one of the two open meetings of each section of the club. Arrangements are being completed for a charming program. The public is welcome.

Mail Christmas Presents Early, Postoffice Urges

Are you going to mail your Christmas parcels early this year? Are you going to address them plainly, and wrap them securely? The postoffice staff is asking the public this, while it is making every effort to prepare the most efficient service ever rendered. Every postoffice employee is "set" for the big rush, and the "sooner the better," they say. Endless wear and tear and strain can be prevented if every piece of mail is cared for carefully by the sender. Another important step on the part of residents is the correct numbering of their houses. Delivery at Christmas time must be done in part by auxiliary carriers. They can not guess at the numbers of houses. Packages will not be left there, where there is no number to assure the carrier it is the right place. The usual "lobby rush" at the post-office building will be decreased this year, as before, by the use of cancelled stamps. Patrons presenting uncanceled stamps will pay for their stamps and their packages will be handed directly back from the stamp window.
