By McManus Terre Haute Teachers Ask for $200 Bonus

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 6.—The Teachers' Federation of Terre Haute has petitioned the local school board that the $200 bonus be paid each teacher for this year's work. The local minimum salary of $700 a year is not in keeping with the cost of living and the "personal appearance" required of a city school teacher, the petition states.

Members of the board have indicated their sympathy with the demands, but are at a loss to know where the funds will come from. The teachers are said to have proposed to sit in with the school board and the city officials or even the state tax board if necessary to ascertain by what process a budget could be authorized.

SCIENTISTS SENT TO STUDY COAST TOWNS OF BRAZIL

(By Associated Press)
PARA, Brazil, Dec. 6.—A party of physicians, engineers and naturalists sent by the Brazilian government arrived here to investigate conditions of health and industry. They are to report on the sanitary and health of the cities and towns of the Brazilian coast from Para to Rio de Janeiro, study health conditions of the fishermen of that coast, collect specimens of fish and consider the possibility of developing the fishing industry.

The expedition is under the command of Captain Frederico Villar of the Brazilian navy, who is a journalist as well as a sailor and is to be joined at Para by "an American scientist, Dr. Field, who has been engaged for this work by the Ministry of Marine," according to the local press.

The government, it is said, plans the installation of up-to-date housing accommodation for men engaged in the fishery industry along the coast among whom, according to Dr. de Moura belonging to the expedition, there is much intestinal disease and hookworm due to present living conditions and entire lack of sanitation.

Organization of this expedition is in line with the intelligent manner in which the Brazilian government has been working for years past to improve the general health of the nation. These efforts have resulted in entirely eradicating the plague of yellow fever from such ports as Rio, Santos, Pernambuco, Para and Manaus which were once known as "fever holes" dreaded by ocean sailors. The general health conditions of the Amazon Valley have been improved beyond recognition during recent years and yellow fever is as rare today in Para and Manaus as in New Orleans or Galveston. And malaria is no more prevalent here than in the southern part of the United States.

The greater part of the valley is now healthy, and the so-called "malarial" districts could be made healthy if attention were paid to the instructions of the authorities in the matter of living conditions, sanitation, hygiene, food and clothing. As these regions are far from the centers of population it is difficult to enforce the public health laws.

The sanitary regulations today in large cities like Para, Manaus, Santarem, along the main Amazon river, are very strict. At Para, there is rigorous examination and fumigation of incoming ships from ports known to be unhealthy and the public markets are under daily supervision by sanitary inspectors who are prompt to condemn meat and fish not absolutely fresh. After the markets close, about noon each day, the buildings are disinfected and washed from ceiling to floor.

Second—Public health, $1,255,990.

In addition to its own departmental work the Rockefeller Foundation has contributed, the report says, to the accomplishment of work undertaken by other and unaffiliated organizations.

MEXICO IS TOYLESS AS CHRISTMAS APPROACHES

(By Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—The approach of Christmas finds a dearth of toys in Mexico with no apparent means for greatly increasing the supply. In former years Germany has provided unlimited number of gimcracks which found ready sale here but this source of supply was closed by the war. Other countries have been slow in entering this field of industrial activity. United States manufacturers have shown intentions of putting their toys on the market here but the goods have not arrived in appreciable amounts. The buyers of toys in Mexico have a special liking for novelty design, such as dolls that dance when a string is pulled. They prefer what is known to the trade as the "active toy."

The Theatres

WASHINGTON
Leonore Parrot, after completing his photodramatic version of "The Thirteenth Chair" of the Pathé picture co-starring Yvonne DeLo and Orestion Hale that came to the Washington Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, complimented Bayard Veiller, the author, on the value of his title.

"Yes," asserted Veiller, "The Thirteenth Chair" was hardly a title to write. The play was purchased and rehearsed and up to a few days before its initial try-out, it was still unnamed. Many suggestions were made, and when William Harris, Sr. and Jr., and myself sat down to make a final decision, it was found that exactly thirteen suggestions had been offered.

It was believed that if thirteen could be worked into the title it would be a winner, but the title, naturally, must have some connection with the story. It was the next morning before inspiration came. Rushing into the Harris office, Mr. Veiller said, "We'll call it 'The Thirteenth Chair.'"

And so the play got its name, even though it meant putting an extra character in the cast, for the thirteenth chair of the story is the one in which a man is killed at a spiritualistic seance.

From sordid slums of New York's Chinatown to the grandeur of high mountains and the majesty of the ocean—that is the range of the setting in "The Miracle Man," a big new Paramount-Artcraft picture, which is coming to the Washington theatre. The same expansiveness of vision is reflected in the absorbing story, written by Frank L. Packard later dramatized by George M. Cohan, and produced with striking success on Broadway.

The central figure is a white-haired patriarch, who lives in the hills near the sea and who has reputed power to heal the sick and crippled. Tom Burke and his band in their hunt in the New York underworld read of his miracles and conceive the idea of capitalizing them for their own gain. So they go to the town where the old man lives and frame up a miracle for him. To their surprise they discover that he really possesses the healing powers accredited to him.

Gradually under the beneficent influence of their new environment there is worked a transformation in the hearts of the crooks that makes those, the greatest, best and dearest, the charming girl she is at heart, evolves a farm hand out of a dope fiend, and finally, brings out of the best nature of even the hardened, sophisticated Tom Burke himself. In the hands of such capable artists as Thomas Meighan, Elliott Fair, Joseph J. Dowling, Betty Compton, and others of similar merit, this powerful story becomes a vital, living thing and one of the greatest dramatic spectacles the screen has yet revealed.

MURRAY
In his newest picture, "Nine-tenths of the Law," which is being presented at the Murray Theatre, for four days, Mitchell Lewis goes a long way towards strengthening his claim to a high place among the screen character actors.

In roles of this type (the hunter, the trapper, prospector, more or less uneducated, except in the lore and traditions of the great woods, robust, hale and hearty, accepting battle under provocation, but never seeking it, endearing himself to women and children in the same way that he becomes a terror to certain classes of men about him—men who laugh at great tragedies and weeps at trifles) Mitchell Lewis after a diversified screen career in character roles has found his proper place, with the likelihood of permitting no second man to approach him. Twice in this picture he battles savagely with "Red" Adair, and lovers of a good fight will find their fondest expectation fulfilled in "Nine-tenths of the Law." The second fight pictured here is one that will take rank with his very best, and the "fans" know what this means.

WATSON ANNOUNCES INTENTION TO RUN FOR SENATE AGAIN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 6.—Indiana Republicans today received the following letter from United States Senator James E. Watson, announcing his Senatorial candidacy:

"I am writing this letter to you as a fellow Republican and worker in our party organization to say that it is my intention to seek renomination and re-election to be Senator of the United States from Indiana.

"Social and economic questions today are most acute and are pressing for solution as never before in the history of our country. Citizens everywhere are aroused over the tendencies that threaten the existence of our national life, and are interested tremendously in policies of government to be applied at this time.

"It is my firm conviction that in the coming campaign the discussion of every question must be based upon the principle of stalwart Americanism. We must re-emphasize the patriotic impulses and purposes that brought our party into being. Its constructive principles make the Republican party the one national agency that is so indispensable in the present period of national stress. In the coming campaign it is my intention to devote myself to the vigorous presentation of these principles to the voters of Indiana.

"I hope my candidacy will have your support, and I shall appreciate greatly a report from you on political conditions in your community."

Senator Watson will open headquarters in Indianapolis next week.

Detachments also will remain with the Supreme War Council and the American commission to negotiate peace. General Connor will ship all records of the S. O. S. and the A. E. F. in France on or before December 31.

"Military activities in England will be turned over to Colonel Oscar M. Solbert (engineer), military attaché at London, who succeeded General Biddle."

Life Insurance Companies Invest Billions in Farms

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Information showing that more than $1,000,000,000 of life insurance assets are now invested in farm mortgage loans and that an increasingly larger proportion of policy holders' funds is being invested in furthering agriculture in this way, was presented to the Association of Life Insurance Presidents here by Louis Brelling, treasurer of the Union Central Life Insurance society, of Cincinnati. Such investment, he argued, will be a leading and positive factor in the pending agricultural readjustment from war to peace conditions.

"Life insurance companies which, either in whole or in part, invest their annual increase of assets in farm loans," he said, "are not only true to the interests of their policy holders, but also of inestimable service to the country at large in contributing to the agricultural development by stimulating increased production of the necessities of life, grain and meat for food, hides for shoes, wool and cotton for clothing, and hemp for rope to strangle the I. W. W.'s and Bolsheviks."

Central America, Southwestern and Northwestern states are, said Mr. Brelling, the favorite fields for investment of life insurance funds in farm loans. The principal companies had placed $856,245,000 in farm mortgages in these sections.
