News of the Art World

By EMMA L. FETTA.
Members of the Richmond Art Association are reminded that the ball box for the 1920 permanent gallery picture will be closed next Sunday at 4 p. m., when the votes will be counted and the Mary T. R. Foulke prize awarded. A number of members have already voted. Name and choice of picture must be placed on the ballot.

Art circles are astir in preparation for what promises to be the most complete and interesting exhibition of arts and crafts ever displayed in Richmond, which will open in the public art gallery on Feb. 17, with a costume party.

Mrs. F. S. Bates, chairman of the opening evening, is obtaining some charming costumes of other days and nations. It is hoped visitors coming to the opening party will wear some picturesque costume, not a fancy one without historical significance, but a costume which he will wear or loan, as asked to call Mrs. Bates as soon as possible.

Because of the keen interest in jewelry making which is manifest in the community, it has been decided to include in the exhibit of arts and crafts, an array of old and new hand made jewelry of artistic merit.

The pieces loaned will be displayed advantageously with some secured from the east, and it is hoped that a number of people of the community will send some distinguished pieces. Exhibitors are asked to call Emma L. Fetta at the Palladium, who will have charge of the exhibit.

Hand made lace is also to be exhibited. Pillow lace or needle point made in Wayne county, old or new hand constructed foreign laces are desired. Mrs. W. H. Swayne, telephone 1820, will have charge of this exhibit. Persons having hand-woven rugs are requested to notify Mrs. M. F. Johnson, director of the art association.

It was interesting to observe that Granville Barker, English playwright and producer who spoke on the "Artist in the Community," in the First Presbyterian church last week, immediately selected the more imaginative conceptions in the Indiana exhibition was destroyed. Damage to such canvases of full color as those of Francis Brown and Will Stevens immediately caught his eye, although he said some complimentary things about a number of the pictures. Mr. Barker does not trifle with art. He has no foolish prejudices, but likes what is appealing merit in, and likes it strongly.

New York critics have been very good to Maurice Dumesnil, the distinguished French pianist who will appear in his second recital of the season at Aeolian hall, Friday, Feb. 6. Art objects valued at more than $500,000 which had been collected from the country over for the fifty-fifth annual exhibition of the Architectural league which was to have opened at the American Fine Arts Society galleries on West Fifty-seventh street in New York city, were burned last week. Practically the whole exhibit on display in the public gallery, the building was estimated at $250,000.

Dispatches from practically every art community, almost the world over, report the return to peaceful pursuits again, such artists as S. Tressilian bringing with them war scenes which they are immediately using on their canvases. Mr. Tressilian, by the way, was a prisoner of war at Rastatt, near Karlsruhe, where during the last German offensives great concentrations of British and French officers took place. He is exhibiting in London a series of drawings in pencil and water color, in which his past experiences are pungent, it is said.

"Thine is the Glory," a great allegorical figure splendidly exhibited in the Knoedler galleries in New York city is the work of F. Luis Mora, who has exhibited in Richmond a number of times.

"Apart from the greatness of conception and beauty of pigment, the artist with the assistance of Joseph Gray Kitchell, late Major of the General Staff, U. S. A., has created a true type of womanhood, the woman product of the war devoted to service in its most distinguished sense," says The Studio.

Foreign relations were not included in the list, the committee members explaining they considered the question open until the senate had taken a final stand on the peace treaty.

Public opinion on the leading campaign issues will be sought and Will H. Hays, Republican national chairman, who is a member of the conference, will keep the committee informed on the sentiment of the people as he found it on his recent two month's tour over the country.

Delinquent Taxes Being Paid; Court Order Causes Rush on Installments

Following the decision handed down by the appellate court sustaining the horizontal increases in taxes made by the state board of tax commissioners many Wayne county taxpayers have begun to make their spring settlements, County Treasurer Ed Weidner said Thursday.

"The taxes assessed this year on real estate and personal property are," said Weidner, "as a whole, considerably less than heretofore. In my mind when taxpayers receive their appraisal sheets and find out the amount of difference made by the horizontal increase they will never again want to revert to the old system. We have the receipts for those wishing to make their spring settlements now," he continued.

"Many delinquent taxpayers are paying their back taxes for six and eight years and are also settling up their spring settlements, which shows that there is plenty of money in the county," said Weidner in conclusion.

The annual sale for taxes and city improvements will be held at the court house Monday at 10 a. m.
