

AUTO MEN HARD HIT BY SHORTAGE OF FREIGHT CARS

Richmond automobile manufacturers have been hardest hit by the freight car shortage, according to railroad officials here.

Although the entire car supply is only about 30 per cent of normal, automobile cars are more scarce than the ordinary freight cars, and some difficulty in distributing their production is being experienced by manufacturers here.

With the exception of the unusually long hauls, all automobiles made here are being driven to their delivery point. The traffic manager of the Motor car company said Saturday that the plant was receiving from one-third to one-half of their normal supply of automobile cars, although production is not being curtailed on account of the shortage.

According to W. H. Cummins, of the Davis Motor Car company, only deliveries to sea coast agencies, or other distant points are being made by rail, and the rest are being driven overland to their destination.

By Road and Boat.
One dealer in Memphis, Tenn., recently drove a consignment of cars from Richmond to Cincinnati, and there chartered a river boat to take the shipment on to Memphis.

There is little demand for grain cars or gondolas, and the demand for stock cars is being met. Ordinary freight cars are being delivered to manufacturers as rapidly as possible, but the supply is still far short.

The same condition exists, not only in Richmond, but over the entire division, and the shortage is particularly felt in Kokomo, Hamilton, and other points on the division where there are many factories. The relief is slight, and it may be some months before conditions are anywhere near normal.

NEARLY BOUGHT STOCK FOR $20; IS SOLD FOR $4

A local man who came very nearly buying stock in a corporation outside of the city for much more than it was worth, told of his experience Saturday as a warning to other Richmond investors.

He was approached by a salesman for the O. K. Giant Battery Co., of Gary, Ind. The salesman tried to sell him stock in this concern at $20 a share, par value being $10. It looked good, he said, but he asked for time to write a Gary friend.

The man in Gary wrote back that the company had been continually in a wrangle, that injunction suits had been filed by one side against the other, and that it was not selling stock in that town and that he thought the battery was good, but that it had a bad start.

A few days later he saw a want ad page of a Gary newspaper on which many persons were offering to sell Giant stock at a low figure. One offer was to sell for $4 a share. The stock had been offered to the Richmond man at $20.

"This salesman told me," said the Richmond man, "that he had sold this stock to many local persons. I am giving my experience in the hope that it will head off a sale or two."

"This, and many other experiences we know of, drive home the lesson that every outside stock-selling proposition should be thoroughly investigated before you put money into it," said a banker Saturday.

FARM-LABOR BODY URGES EXTENSION OF R. R. CONTROL

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Two year extension of government control of railroads and retention of all necessary shipping was urged in committee reports today before the several hundred delegates attending the Farmer-Labor cooperative congress. Proposed enactment of peace time session laws was assailed as a restriction on civil liberties and "provocative of violence."

The president was urged to appoint a national commission to inaugurate a system of insuring the farmer against crop losses over which he has no control "in view of the hazards and hardships of farm life" and of the comparatively low prices the farmer is receiving.

Concentration of one third of the country's wealth in the hands of one forty-sixth of one per cent of the people was condemned and a tax on the capital value of property to pay off the war debt within a few years was urged. This tax should not include any estate of $25,000 or less, should amount to ten per cent of million dollar estates and should gradually rise to 75 per cent for estates of half a billion dollars, the resolution set forth.

The committee on direct trading advised an organization between farmer, labor and co-operative societies to lower the cost of living by instituting a just and more economic system of distribution and by eliminating the middleman.

It was recommended that a committee be appointed to obtain unused army trucks from the government for road work and for hauling farm produce to market.

EFFICIENT TEACHER IS ADDRESS THEME BY C. S. PENDLETON

"We teachers are the 'experts' hired to develop boys and girls, and to make them think, but do we really stand up to our job?" questioned Dr. Charles S. Pendleton, head of the teachers' training department of Wisconsin university, in his address on "Teaching the Individual Pupil Within the Class," delivered to the joint session of Wayne County Teachers' association and Richmond City Teachers' Institute, in high school auditorium, Saturday morning.

He pled for the socialization of the school room, and stated that while great leaders were not unnecessary, he feared the same results in school which came in industry when the workers themselves looked only to their managers, and ceased to love their work, but rather to live outside of it.

Efficient Teachers Needed.
"What we need is teachers who though they work but a year, are as efficient as possible. The average teaching generation is estimated to be about three years. There is a great deal of coming and going in the profession. It is used as a bridge between definite plans. This is all right if the teacher while he teaches, uses all his ability, if it is only for a year."

Dr. Pendleton pointed to the crime of inefficient teachers, who lie under the general heads, he said, of lack of interest, disregard of job; love of scholarship to such a degree that pupils suffer, and the teacher, who by "examples," and the "process of teaching" forgets really to train her charges.

Miss Bell O'Hare, of Indianapolis, president of the State Teachers' association, was to speak to the teachers of Richmond and Wayne county at 2 p. m., Saturday, on "The Teacher of Tomorrow."

1920 YEARLY MEET IS SCHEDULED FOR EARLHAM'S CAMPUS

At the time of its one hundredth anniversary, after 36 years annual residence except, of one year, in the East Main Street Friends' church, Indiana Yearly Meeting is to be held at Earlham College next August 10-15, according to announcement made Saturday by the board arrangement subcommittee.

The subcommittee voted unanimously to make the change, and is now entering into contact with the Earlham College officials for care of the delegates and other details.

Suggestion that the 1920 Yearly Meeting be held in August was made in the 1919 session together with a suggestion that meetings be held at Earlham during vacation. In this way, it was suggested, sessions could be held in the open and in the assembly halls of the college. The plan met with approval.

Would Have Been 100.
To many older Friends the change will break a continuous chain of meetings in the East Main Street church since 1874, except in 1905, when the meeting was held in Marion, Ind. With the exception of this session the Indiana Yearly meeting would have met 100 times in the city of Richmond, the coming season, if Earlham were within the city limits, which it is not.

The 1920 session will be of particular importance because of the world conference of Friends which will be in session in London at the same time, and which over 400 American delegates will attend.
