

Heart and Beauty Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 19 years old. My mother made me marry a soldier boy who is only eighteen. I have to work every day, sick or well. When I come home at night my mother, father, husband, sisters and brothers treat me very badly.

I did not want to marry this fellow, for I did not love him. I loved another boy and I was going to marry him, but he was in another state. He says he still loves me.

I don't love my husband and I don't know what to do.

TROUBLED AND WORRIED. You have told me so little of your case that it is difficult to advise. It seems to me that your whole life should not be spoiled because of this mistake.

If you have the money, consult a lawyer and see if he thinks a divorce is advisable and if you are entitled to it.

Something must be wrong with your own attitude since every member of your family seems to be against you. Even the worst in life can be born cheerfully and some degree of happiness enjoyed.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl who is greatly puzzled in regard to public dances. Although I attend small card parties and other entertainments I get very much disheartened when I hear some of the girls of our crowd discuss the doings of a previous dance. These girls seem to be the most attractive among the other sex and are always having a great time, in which I can see no harm.

Is it true that men's opinions are low of girls who regularly attend public dances? Would you advise me to give up this notion or join the other girls?

DISHEARTENED BUTTERFLY. So many girls who attend public dance halls rouge and flirt that girls who are careful of their reputations will not attend. Besides, men do not want their sisters to attend. I think therefore, that your "notion" is wise and that you will be happier in the end if you merely go to card parties and wait until you are invited to private dances.

Lecturer to Speak Here, Commanded Death Battalion

COL. DAN MORGAN SMITH

Col. Dan Morgan Smith will speak under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League at the Grace M. E. church, Tuesday evening at 7:30. Soldiers who fought in France and served on this side, are especially invited. An offering to finance the world prohibition movement will be taken.

Col. Smith is a lecturer of national reputation, and won much praise as commander of the battalion of death of the 358th infantry. He will tell of his experiences.

Earlham Notes

Granville Barker's "Prunella", popular legitimate stage production, has been ordered by the senior class for consideration in their dramatic appearance this spring. It is thought quite likely that the right to produce it locally will be obtained.

Following a co-operative plan arranged by high school and college officials, the following Earlham students are doing practice teaching in the Richmond senior high school: Miss Marion Mains, Miss Ruth Boyd, Miss Opal Hart, Miss Agnes McFall, Miss Ellen Sherrill, Miss Bessie Reagan, Miss Ruth Harvey, Miss Beulah Bowers, and John Jessup.

The well known Zoellner family string quartet will appear in the chapel of Lindley Hall, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. They are brought to the college as the third appearance in a series of recitals sponsored by the music department of the institution.

Prof. Harlow Lindley spoke before the Saturday Evening Club of Valparaiso, Ind., last Saturday night on the subject of "Indiana in the Civil War." Prof. Lindley spent Friday in conference in Chicago.

The engagement of Oneita Winslow, '16-'17 to Marion Jefferies, '16-'17, has been announced.

JEWS FURNISHED 900,000 SOLDIERS IN WAR, NORDAU

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Dr. Max Nordau told the English Zionist Federation the other day that in the world war the Jews had furnished 900,000 soldiers to the various armies. This, he said, was about 7 per cent. of the whole number of Jews, a proportion equalled by few and surpassed only, he believed, by the French. The Jews had lost 80,000 dead and had about 200,000 casualties.

FIND BODY IN HOTEL.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 16.—The body of Dr. J. A. Blanchard, registered from Shreveport, La., the son of former Governor N. C. Blanchard, of Louisiana, was discovered at a local hotel Saturday with the top of the head blown off by a bullet of a large caliber revolver found in the room. A letter addressed to Governor N. C. Blanchard at Corpus Christi, Tex., was found and the police said it referred to a business transaction. Dr. Blanchard was last seen alive last night when he called at the office of the hotel for the key to his room.

Eyes Inflamed?

If your eyes are inflamed, weak, tired or overworked; if they ache; if picture shows make them feel dry and strained, get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets from your druggist, dissolve one in a fourth of a glass of water and use as an eye bath from two to four times a day. Bon-Opto allays inflammation, invigorates, tones up the eyes.

Note: Doctors say Bon-Opto strengthens eyesight 50% in a week's time in many instances.

Long-Standing Cases of Catarrh—Successfully Treated—With Simpson's Compound.

The insidious poison of neglected catarrh, not only affects the nose, eyes and hearing, but the blood, and the entire system.

Surely a reliable alternative blood remedy is clearly indicated for this condition. Dr. A. B. Simpson's Vegetable Compound, for many years has stood the test of this reliability—as attested by hundreds who have used it with satisfactory results.

Get it at your drug store, and give it a trial.—Advertisement.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY

As we sat this evening in the cozy lamplight of our big living room it occurred to me that marriage had taken on a new seriousness, a permanence I have never felt before.

"Jim," I said suddenly, as I snipped off a needleful of silk to work a briar stitch, "have you always thought of our marriage as permanent?"

Jim laid down his scientific magazine and came over to pinch my ear.

"Well, I should say I have—rather! What put such a weird idea into your head, Carrotsie? Don't you consider it so?"

"Never till now, I honestly believe, Jim. As I look back it seems to me I always lived in the present. I never saw beyond whatever was in hand. I never thought of building anything. I always felt that if our marriage went to pieces it would just have to, that's all, like so many others. And I tried to establish myself in some work that would insure me a living if we separated. I never felt the least bit certain, Jim, that we would make a success of it till lately."

Jim studied me attentively a moment as if to decide whether I was in my right mind or needed the services of a neurologist; then, inclining to the former belief, he answered:

"Then I guess that is the reason we came near making a bungle of it, Ann," said he. "What we don't need permanently is don't build carefully. The bridges and treaties I draw plans for are designed as if they were to stand forever when we place them. Anybody can throw together a plank footbridge—or a trial marriage. It takes a real engineer to make a cantilever or a suspension—and it takes real character to build a lasting marriage. Both the bridge and the marriage serve about the same good purpose—to take people from one side of something, across all sorts of dangers, to the other side. People who always stay on one side of anything are undeveloped. People who try to cross without using the bridge are foolish."

This was a long and complicated speech from old Jim. But it delighted me, somehow. Once on a time Jim would have disposed of my remark with a mere growl or a grunt.

"But, Jim, why do so many couples declare they never could stay together or if they felt they had to always? The fact of feeling bound makes them want to fly apart."

"It only has that effect upon the superficial, selfish people," retorted Jim. "Given a fair amount of congeniality, normal intelligence and no bad vices on either side, any man and woman can make their marriage successful if they keep the idea of permanence in mind. But only if they do. As soon as they begin to regard it as something they can slip out of any time, a thousand differences come up, selfishness grows rampant, characters go undisciplined and quarrelsome tendencies run wild."

"I wonder—I wonder if that is true," I murmured, not realizing I spoke aloud.

"You bet it's true!" said Jim earnestly. "You know Stevenson's line: 'Marriage is a field of battle, not a bed of roses.' He would have called it an outpost skirmish if he hadn't had the permanence idea, Ann."

Jim bent down and raised my face between his hands.

"Do you know, girl, what makes me happiest of all about this—this—well—this chap you're making these duffs for?" I shook my head. "It is because nothing in the world makes marriage so permanent as a kiddie."

Yet a faint little ghost of my old-time doubt and rebelliousness sent a tiny shiver over me.

WOOD AND McADOO LEAD CONNERSVILLE STRAW VOTE

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 16.—Results of a straw vote for preferential candidates, both Democratic and Republican, for President and Governor, show Leonard B. Wood to be the Republican choice while William G. McAdoo is the favorite of the Democrats.

James E. Watson and Albert J. Beveridge are the Republicans' second choice, and James M. Cox is next to McAdoo. Bryan and Wilson have not yet received a single vote.

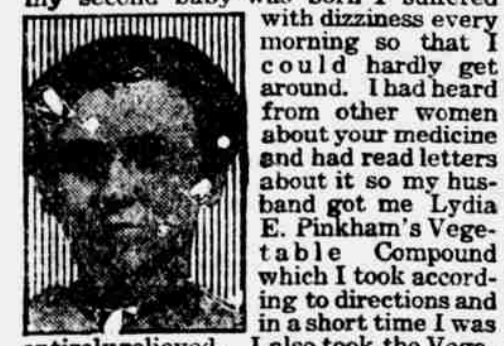

For Governor Warren T. McCray is leading with Edward C. Toney a close second. The Democrats, by a straw ballot, prefer Niblack and Ralston.

Finly H. Gray of this city, former representative of the Sixth District, has been made a candidate in the contest, but so far has only received a few votes. Mr. Gray has never officially declared his intention of becoming a candidate.

MRS. THOMAS' WORD TO WOMEN

Tells of the Great Good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Her.

Morrice, Mich.—"About a year after my second baby was born I suffered with dizziness every morning so that I could hardly get around. I had heard from other women about your medicine and had read letters about it so my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which I took according to directions and in a short time I was entirely relieved. I also took the Vegetable Compound before my last baby came and am thankful to say that it relieved my sufferings very much and I shall never be without it at such times. I have told others of its great worth and shall keep on telling it."—Mrs. Ed. THOMAS, Box 184, Morrice, Mich.

Women should not continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Small Citizen

Likes Hood's Rolled Oats, Too

Hood's Rolled Oats is a simple, hearty, wholesome food. It answers every requirement of the growing child and at the same time it is delicious and satisfying.

Hood's Rolled Oats are different.

Prepared from plump, white grain, and good all the year round.

In the old days rolled oats were a winter food only, because when warm weather came a weevil developed and the oats were spoiled. How different now!

Hood's Oats are electrically sterilized, destroying the weevil bacteria, making them pure and wholesome good every day in the year.

For the morning meal for the school child Hood's Oats as a porridge or made into cakes and browned in butter with a bit of syrup, is a delicious food.

Ask your grocer for HOOD'S ROLLED OATS. Economical, satisfying and delicious—and clean and sanitary.

You will like them.
