Secretary Lansing's Dismissal

Public sympathy is lively with Secretary Lansing in his sudden withdrawal from the cabinet. Subsequent developments may throw a new light on the circumstances surrounding the differences that arose between the president and the secretary of state, but from the correspondence that passed between the two men, it is apparent that Secretary Lansing, far from usurping power, manfully tried to promote the national welfare at a time of stress and strain.

When Secretary Lansing called the cabinet members into session to consider the welfare of the republic, President Wilson was physically in no condition to consider the weighty matters of state that were pressing for attention. Some one had to act, and especially so since the rumors of the president's illness were of such menacing nature that the whole country was alarmed.

Secretary Lansing did not stand alone in his decision to call together the cabinet. Others of that body concurred with his opinion. If there had been any semblance of usurpation of power by the secretary of state, it is reasonable to assume that his colleagues would have opposed his step.

If the cabinet erred in meeting to discuss matters of national importance, who else would have the power to do so? The dismissal of Secretary Lansing for summoning the cabinet into session, and the grounds upon which his action was condemned, naturally impel us to wonder who is to consider our national welfare when the president is ill. If his official family has not the right so to do, under the president's condemnation of Secretary Lansing, the time has come when this right and privilege should be fixed and determined.

No act of President Wilson has provoked such bitter condemnation as his request for the resignation of secretary of state. The press is almost unanimous in its criticisms of the president and its warm praise for the work done by Secretary Lansing. The country need not be surprised if disclosures of grave importance and significance follow his removal.

Dinner Stories

Observing that the eaves over his kitchen had become clogged by autumn leaves, Mr. Higgins, vaillant head of the family, climbed a tree that stood near the house, while his beloved Sophia watched him from below.

Just as he was about to scoop out a handful of leaves, the dead limb on which he was standing gave way and he started to fall.

Instinctively grasping at other limbs, he managed to check his fall, and hung there, head downward, his face the color of a boiled beet.

"Sophia, quick!" he gasped.

"Oh, Arthur!" she yelled.

"Quick, a chair!"

In a flash it was there.

"Now stand upon it."

"But, Arthur," she expostulated, "I'm not strong enough to help you down!"

"I'll get down all right—soon as I can get right end upward," he panted.

"But what I want you to do is to take this fountain pen out of your pocket. It's leaking like the dickens!"

"How did you get on?"

The sweet young maiden breathed the words into her lover's manly ear as he lay in the passage.

He had been "seeing father" and she wanted to know the result.

"Oh, your father is heartless!" said the young man indignantly. "I told him I could not live without you, and—"

"Yes, yes!" impatiently said the girl. "What did he say?"

"He merely offered to pay funeral expenses."

THE BROTHER HAS FALLEN UPON A GREAT TRUTH

(From the Portage, Pa., Dispatch)

It seems to be an incontrovertible fact that when the great mass of the people demands a change, or a new condition of things, there is little use for the minority to oppose it.

A liquor dealer, an undertaker and a druggist were among those first arrested in the roundup of dispensers of wood alcohol beverages. Somebody wants to know why a coroner was not also included in the air-tight corporation.

ROYAL PAIR HONEYMOON LIKE PLAIN FOLK

Prince and Princess Axel of Denmark enjoying a spin in Copenhagen.

The honeymoon of Prince Axel of Denmark and Princess Margaret of Sweden shows the rapid advance along democratic lines in European countries. No royal car or stately coach is called into use. They have been touring Denmark and Sweden in a very up-to-date chic looking roadster, such as John and Emma might pick out at the auto show for their honeymoon. The photo shows them during their travels.

factured products we need or use. Second, the extravagant way of living, higher wages and less hours. The quickest and surest way (but I would not like to see it) would be to produce less and quit buying. That would make labor more plentiful and cheaper on the farm.

C. J. K.—It seems the government has wanted lower food prices. If so it must see that everything that enters into the cost of producing food or stock must be lowered. When hogs sold for $22 per hundred, they were high and now everything the farmer has to buy to produce a crop is still high. If a farmer counted the hours of hard labor he puts in he is poorer paid than any other class of laborers. Yet the government created a high price of labor on railways, thereby taking help from the farm.

The price the farmer must pay for fertilizer, feeds, etc., are still very high, but his need for these things have not diminished in the least and he must continue to buy or else he must curtail his business. If he takes the latter course he will be obliged to reduce his live stock and omit many things that ought to be done. I think there will be less produced in 1920.

GREAT RELIEF FOR KOKOMO MAN AFTER YEARS OF TORTURE

Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gas in the Stomach, Pains in the Bowels, Heartburn and Dizzy Spells Bothered Him.

ALL GONE NOW

"Dreco Has Put an End to Them and I Feel Fine Again," He Says.

"I've had stomach trouble for over two years and it seemed I could not obtain relief, but fortunately I read about Dreco," and now I am one of its strongest boosters," said Mr. Ezra M. Warfield, of 708 N. Bell St., Kokomo, Ind.

"While in the army these ailments annoyed me very much. I'd fill up with gas, which made me very uncomfortable, often had gripping pains and felt like I was choking, yet I could not swallow it down nor spit it out. My back often ached and I was nervous and couldn't sleep sound—would get dizzy and have spots before my eyes."

"One of my friends said Dreco would do me good and he was right, for I've taken two bottles and my troubles have passed away. The gas does not collect any more; my food seems to do me good, giving me strength; pains in my back, over my kidneys, are all gone. My bowels act regularly and I never have a dizzy spell. Dreco brought relief after other things had failed."

Dreco, the herbal tonic, aids the stomach in digesting the food properly, puts a stop to gas, strengthens the kidneys, rouses a sluggish liver, keeps the bowels moving and overcomes rheumatism and catarrh.

All good druggists now sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Richmond by Thistlethwaite's Drug Stores—Advertisement.

MANY NIGHTS WITHOUT WINK; MRS. THOMAS TELLS LOCAL STORE HOW PEPGEN RELIEVED

Mrs. Henry Thomas, of Arba, Randolph County, Ind., during a recent visit to this city, called at Thistlethwaite's drug store, 6th and Main streets. "I want to relate my experience with Pepgen," she said to them, and then Mrs. Thomas told the following story:

"It is impossible for me to think of anything that will completely destroy nervous force any more than loss of sleep. Many a night I have gone to bed and not been able to secure one wink of sleep. In the morning when I arose I felt more tired than when I went to bed, often with a headache, and with my eyes burning like coals of fire."

"I have not been a sound sleeper for a long time and I notice that I am especially distressed in this way when I eat a hearty supper. I attribute my nervousness to indigestion. Rich foods were very hard for me to hold on my stomach."

"Since taking Pepgen I do not have any trouble with my stomach and can go to bed and sleep two nights till morning. I seldom wake up unless something unusual occurs."

"When I get up I feel refreshed and rested. I consider that it was a lucky day for me when I saw Pepgen advertised in the Richmond newspapers and decided to try it for it has been the means of making me a well woman.—Advertisement."

"What's in a Name?"

BY MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; its meaning; whence it was derived; its significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

OLICIA.

This Name is derived from the same root as Alice, and represents an attempt at greater euphony. The curious part of it is that the name, in its original form, is really not that of a woman at all, but of a man. It is derived from the Anglo-Saxon Adelgis, of which the feminine form was Adelgia, but was not frequently given to women. Instead it was sacred to the sons of the house, principally among the nobility. The name of itself means noble, in both the masculine and feminine forms.

The name is purely English having however, a slight Teutonic flavor. An argument is put forward by some experts that the name is derived from the Frankish Adalbert or Adelchen, meaning "daughter." Alix or Alisa in Lombardy was naturalized in England when Alix la Belle married Henry I. The name, originally masculine, according to the best authorities, however, represents Adelgis, and not Adelgia, making the proper feminine form Aliza. Some believe that Eliza, generally believed to be a derivative of Elizabeth, is this missing form. For proof of Aliza as the representative of Adelgis, the Liber Vitae of Durham records the change in Adelgis from the first noble lady of that name, who laid her gifts upon the altar. By contraction it became Adeliza, Aaliza and Aliza.

The talismanic stone of Alicia is the Alexandrite, a Russian gem. It is found in the emerald mines of that nation, being of a beautiful green shade which changes to columbine red. The Russians believe that it brings great good fortune. When the subject of its favorite's dream it signifies hope. Monday is Alicia's lucky day and seven her lucky number. Her flower is the white hawthorne, a beautiful bud.
