

Heart and Beauty Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman, 22 years of age, and have a girl two years old. I have been married four years and my husband and I can't get along. He is jealous of me and won't let me go anywhere. He flirts, and I fear goes out with the girls, although he denies it.

I ask him to let me go uptown and he won't let me go. I don't know what it is to go away.

We separated twice, and I applied for a divorce. He came back both times and promised he would do differently. He always tells his folks everything about me and they believe whatever he says and don't like me.

When my husband is at home he does not talk to me; he just sleeps. He nags the baby and me and his folks always cause trouble between us.

Please tell me what to do. Could I put my baby in good care?

MRS. W. W. DARE.

You seem to lack a spirit of independence. When you want to go to town, do so and do not consult your husband about the matter. When he goes places he does not consider your wishes.

It would be decidedly unwise to put your baby in the care of an outsider. Keep her with you even if you have to put up with unpleasantness from your husband. If you learn to act more independently you will not care so much what he does.

During the day go to places with the baby, so that you will have a change of atmosphere. This will help you to be more contented during the evenings.

Perhaps you do not encourage your husband to talk. Do not try to tell him how fretful the baby has been, or what has gone wrong in the household. Ask him about his work. When you show an interest in him he will be glad to talk.

I think your place is at home with your baby and husband. Your husband loves you or he would not have been so anxious to have you come back when you separated before.

She Married an Average Man

BY ZOE BECKLEY

Jim came home late from the works, his face clouded, has manner tired and preoccupied. As always of late, the thought of Rose Green flashed into my uneasy mind.

"Anything bothering you, Jimmy?" I asked, masking my anxiety under a brisk and cheerful manner.

"No," he hesitated.

"Things all right at the works?" I dared not come any nearer to the haunting topic of Miss Green, yet hoped Jim would mention her.

"Mmmmm—yes, I guess things are all right. Had a heavy day. Man from out of town talked us deaf, dumb and blind on a scheme he wants us to take up. Got kind of a headache and—oh, yes, little Miss Greene is going."

"Jim!" I cried, a great leap of joy and relief animating my voice. "She's really going away from the Corners—going to New York? You've gotten her a position there?"

Jim nodded gravely, looking at me with an expression that said as plainly as words: "I saw I had to do it to calm you. I was reluctant to be the means of her going, but I had to humor you at any cost; you are un-nerved about her and you are not yourself. I must be good to you."

I rushed to him and put my arms about his neck.

"I'm very, very grateful to you, Jimmie. You won't regret it, dear. She will get along all right. And you have made your wife so happy. Has she—has she a good-paying place?"

"Listen, Ann," said Jim, drawing me down into his lap. "You are a sensible kid. Now, you know very well I couldn't guarantee that Miss Green would get a permanent job right off the bat that way. The best I could do was to give her letters of introduction and recommendation and trust to her own ability to make good."

Upthorned Jake Pratt and explained the case. Jake's pretty certain to give her a chance and keep an eye on her. But she is without friends or—funds, Ann. I couldn't have that on my conscience, so I let her have a bit of money to tide her over if anything happened. It was a trifle awkward. I should have preferred not to do it."

Human interest incidents resulting from the Near East Relief for Armenian orphans, frequently come to the attention of the officials in charge. The following story is vouched for by Richmond leaders:

In one of the county churches, an appeal was being made in behalf of the Near East Relief, when a young girl in the back part of the church arose and exhorted those present to raise enough money to adopt one orphan.

She told them that she had been left an orphan in destitute circumstances when quite young, and knew the pangs of hunger and also the experience of being alone in the world.

She then declared that she would contribute a dollar each month from her small wages, towards the fund to adopt an orphan. The required $60 was immediately raised.

Girl Orphan Pledges $1 A Month to Armenia

SUFFERED 5 YEARS; NO RHEUMATISM NOW

Wants to Tell the Whole World How he Got Rid of it

"I want to tell the whole world what Trusler's Rheumatic Tablets have done for me. I suffered with muscular rheumatism for five years. I tried almost every remedy and several doctors. I went to different springs. After using 3 boxes of Trusler's Rheumatic Tablets, I felt so much relieved I purchased 3 more. When they were gone I was well. That has been three years ago and I have been at work ever since."—George Young, East State St., Huntington, Ind.

Why suffer from painful rheumatism when you can try this same wonderful treatment without risking a cent? We cheerfully refund your money if you are not fully satisfied.

Trusler's Rheumatic Tablets are absolutely vegetable and harmless. Yet they are positive in their action and benefit. In most cases a decided improvement is noted the first few days.

This old reliable remedy sold by leading druggists throughout the U. S. at 65 cents and $1.25 sizes. Trusler Remedy Co., Huntington, Ind.—Advertisement.

Miss Anna Glingrich and the other members of the family of Miss Emma Glingrich wish to extend thanks for the beautiful flowers given by the Milton schools and the Christian church.

BONBONS SUPPLANT BOOZE IN NEW YORK HOTELS

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Chocolates, bonbons and other candies have been added to the menus of many leading New York hotels and the change is credited to prohibition. "Candy sales have more than quadrupled in the last few months," one manager said today.

"Near everybody asks for candy as part of their luncheon and dinner orders and many have candy served with their breakfast."

Over 77 per cent of the world's supplies of nickel is mined in the British Empire.
