The Revolt in Berlin

Press dispatches from Berlin do not contain enough details to warrant a final judgment on the substitution of the Kapp government for the Ebert regime. But a scrutiny of the records of the leaders of the movement suggests its reactionary character.

Dr. Kapp, a former conservative member of the Reichstag, was one of the deputies who urged the government to speed up U-boat building. He was president of the Fatherland party, a notorious Pan-German organization, which urged that Germany carry on the war to the bitter end.

Maj. Gen. Baron Luettwitz, who has been appointed to be commander-in-chief, served in Belgium and on the Verdun front, and was one of the leaders of the military party that opposed Germany's acceptance of the peace terms.

Associated with them, as one may easily infer, are other reactionaries whose sympathies are linked with the old monarchy and who have been waiting patiently for an opportune moment to overthrow the Ebert government and restore in power those sinister influences for whose nullification the civilized nations spent money without stint and sacrificed men without restraint.

Rumblings of the impending storm had reached the allied governments weeks ago. Their request that Holland increase its watchfulness over former Emperor William whose retreat in Amerongen is near enough to German soil to make him a menace to the spread of republican ideas in his former realm, was only an indication of the suspicion felt by allied statesmen over the ability of Germany to redeem herself.

The discourtesies shown to French missions traveling in Germany on official business showed that thousands still dream of "Germany's place in the sun", and of their dissatisfaction with the government that replaced the Hohenzollern dynasty. Although dispatches so far indicate no connection between Amerongen and Dr. Kapp, the fact remains that he and his associates are Pan-Germans, consequently obsessed of the same mania that in 1914 plunged the world into the most memorable, costly and bloody war recorded in history.

No one believes for a moment that the new government will dare to employ the military to oppose the execution of the terms of the Versailles treaty, for Germany lacks both the transportation system and the munitions and supplies to engage in war. London and Paris are not worrying about such an eventuality. The successful coup of the reactionaries does show, however, that Pan-Germanism, lust for conquest, and desire for world power still persist in the hearts of many Germans. The glitter and tinsel of the old monarchy still attracts the hearts of a deluded people, accustomed to pay homage to royalty and more capable of receiving orders than making laws for themselves and electing officials for themselves. It seems to be an obvious deduction that the German must be ruled. He cannot rule himself.

The declaration of Dr. Kapp that the revolution does not mean the restoration of the Hohenzollern family and that his regime would stand for strong republicanism with a view to re-establish law, order, discipline and honest government sounds very progressive and liberal. The world hopes it is an honest declaration of honest men. But the records of the men at the head of the new government invites a close inspection of the real meaning of the phrases and prompts one to wonder if subsequent events will establish in fact what Dr. Kapp says in words.

Americans are not holding a brief for the Ebert government, neither are they inclined to condemn the Kapp government, but they are very positive in their decision that no Pan-German or militaristic government shall threaten again the peace of the world. A return of the old monarchial party, with its war lords, perfidious ambassadors, sinkers of hospital ships, violators of sacred treaties and despoilers of international laws, cannot be tolerated.

The world does not care what form of government the German people select, but it does object to the restoration of militarism and the creation of a centralized power to propagate and foment principles radically at variance with the highest ideals of civilization.

Answers to Questions

Farmer—Have many rural schools been closed because of the shortage of teachers?—Miss Mabel Carney, of Teachers College, Columbia University, recently estimated that 35,000 rural schools have been closed and that 500,000 children in rural districts have received no schooling in the last six months.

MODERN CRUSOES.

PLYMOUTH, Eng.—Adventures reaching here from the Pacific Islands show that when the New Zealand, with Admiral Viscount Jellicoe aboard, visited Christmas Island they found three men, an American, a Frenchman and a Tahitian, who had been alone on the island for two years. They were living on coconuts and fish. They had not heard the war was over. They were given passage to Panning Island.

Young Harriman

UNLESS all signs fail, William Averill Harriman, son of Edward H. Harriman, has set out to play a leading part in the steamship world akin to what his father did in the railroad industry.

Within the last few months young Harriman has acquired extensive interests in a fleet of some 250 steamships, large and small, and achieved an eminence already which would stamp him as his father's son.

Averill Harriman, however, has one big advantage over his father. The elder Harriman was considerably beyond his son's twenty-nine years before he came to be hailed as a great organizer and consolidator. Age counts for nothing in the game the way the younger man plays it, and he has gone out to gather in steamship lines in a way which promises much of interest for the future.

The career of young Harriman in the steamship business, as in everything else in which he has interested himself, has been meteoric. It was only a few months ago that he organized the investment banking house of W. A. Harriman & Co., opened offices in New York, and really entered the shipping business. True, in 1917 he was chairman of the board of the Mercantile Shipbuilding corporation, which later took over the Chester Shipbuilding corporation and built forty 9,000-ton fabricated steel freighters for the Emergency Fleet corporation, but that was only a tryout for the bigger development in which he is now interested.

Those who know Mr. Harriman predict he will not stop with his present achievements. That is not his method. All of his life he has done things on a big scale. Even though he had never been an oarsman of any sort, he convinced Yale, while still a student there, that he was equipped to train a crew and after a visit to England to study British rowing methods he came back to this country and was named the first undergraduate rowing coach Yale had ever had.

In September, 1915, Mr. Harriman married Miss Kitty Lanier Lawrence, granddaughter of Charles Lanier.

NEW ALBANY WOMAN IDENTIFIES ASSAILANT

NEW ALBANY, Ind., March 15.—Mrs. Alva Summers, 21 years old, and the mother of two small children, is in a serious condition today, the result of an assault at the hands of a negro in a lonely spot in the outskirts of the city. Charles Pearson, a negro answering the description given by Mrs. Summers and identified by her, is under arrest.

A PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the people of our city have been led to purchase so-called remedies from which they have received no benefit whatever, and having thus wasted so much hard-earned money, it has come to pass that they know not what to believe.

Inasmuch as this unsatisfactory state of affairs exists, KNOW, THEREFORE, ALL PERSONS who are in need of such a medicine that we will supply them with VINOL on a POSITIVE GUARANTEE that if it does not succeed in benefiting them we will refund the entire amount of money paid us for it.

There is no one medicine that will cure everything, but there are some we know to be honest, reliable, and of great curative value. Such is VINOL; it is not a secret medicine,—just peptonate of iron and all the curative extractives of cod liver oil, combined with other body-building and strength-creating ingredients. The complete formula is on each label. We KNOW that it should benefit every one who uses it.

Could any offer be more fair than this? You are ill; we offer you medicine which we believe will help you, and if it does not we will return your money. Is there anyone foolish enough not to accept this offer? You owe it to your family, to your friends, and yourself to try this medicine which we give you our pledge is a genuine cod liver and iron preparation of great merit.

We unhesitatingly recommend Vinol as a Body Builder and Strength Creator for Feeble Old People, Delicate Children, Frail Women, All Run Down Persons, and Those Needing a Good Tonic after any Severe Illness, and for Coughs and Colds.

Do you think we could afford to lend our name to its praises, as we have been doing in the newspapers, if we did not know VINOL to be an honest and unusually valuable remedy for the ills for which it is prescribed? We certainly could not; we therefore ask you, our neighbors, friends and acquaintances to accept our assurances that this is a genuine offer, and that any and all persons who need a medicine of this character should feel a sense of security in accepting it.

Call and get a bottle to-day. You won't be sorry.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

SELF-CONFIDENCE.

This is a very commonplace subject—self-confidence—but it is the one thing that we must all have if we would be worth our salt.

For without it we become mere dependents.

Everyone loves the leader—but there never was a leader who did not have self-confidence. And the greater the self-confidence, the greater the leader.

Self-confidence is belief in yourself. And you never know what you are made of, or are capable of, until you test yourself out. We are all created on quite an average. It is our self-confidence that raises us up.

I recently heard a father tell his boy that he would gladly get the youngster a bicycle if he felt that he could trust him with it. The boy's reply was very significant—"How do you know that you can trust me until you try me?"

The boy got his bicycle. No one can tell us our abilities, no one can tell us the heights to which we may climb, or even aspire. We are our own. We must try all that we think that we are. We must believe that we can do what we want to go down.

Self-confidence is often confused with conceit. Conceit is thinking without having done, whereas self-confidence comes with the doing.

Let no man rob you of your greatest inheritance—your self-confidence.

Go to the thing which you want to do—do it with a whole heart and a conviction that no discouragement or setback can change you. Believe in every ounce of yourself. And then there will be plenty who will believe in you.

Dinner Stories

Brown, who weighed two hundred odd, had at last succeeded in getting a house. Unfortunately the house was not built to meet such an emergency as Brown, for the whole place shook with his tread when he walked about.

When he climbed into bed that piece of furniture gave a groan of despair and collapsed on the floor. His son, in an adjoining room, rushed to the door of his father's bedroom.

"What's happened, dad," he said.

"Can I help you?"

"It's all right," came the cheerful reply, "only if you don't find me here in the morning, look in the cellar."

"Yep," said the honest ex-buck, "I spent 14 months in the lines without any relief."

"But I didn't know you were at the front at all," said his uncle.

"I wasn't," replied the buck, "but I spent eight months in the most intensive months in the inspection line, and one month in the pay line."

Memories of Old Days

What Is Rheumatism? Why Suffer from It?

Sufferers Should Realize That It Is a Blood Infection and Can Be Permanently Relieved

Rheumatism means that the blood has become saturated with uric acid poison.

It does not require medical advice to know that good health is absolutely dependent upon pure blood. When the muscles and joints become sore and drawn with rheumatism, it is not a wise thing to take a little salve and by rubbing on the sore spot, expect to get rid of your rheumatism. You must go deeper than that, down deep into the blood where the poison lurks and which is not affected by salves and ointments. It is important that you rid yourself of this terrible disease before it goes too far. S. S. S. is the blood cleanser that has stood the test of time having been in constant use for more than fifty years.

It will do for you what it has done for thousands of others. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable. It will do the work and not harm the most delicate stomach.

Is Acid-Stomach Sapping Your Strength?

Have you any idea of the great number of ailments that are directly traceable to Acid-Stomach? Few people have. When they are bilious, have severe headache, or an attack of indigestion, rheumatism, lumbago or sciatica; or when they begin to feel run down and are nervous and mentally depressed; or have dizzy spells, vertigo and pains around the heart—little do they think it may have its origin in an Acid-Stomach.

You know how it is with acid-mouth—how the acid which is created as a result of fermentation of particles of food lodged around the gums, literally eats through the enamel of the teeth and causes them to decay.

How, then, can anyone expect to "feel right" when Acid-Stomach is making digestion more and more difficult, causing food to sour and ferment in the intestinal tract, filling the system with poisons?

And then there are thousands—yes, millions—of people who, without having any well-defined ailment, are always complaining. They can't say exactly what is the matter with them. All they can tell you is that they "don't feel right." They are "all in, tired, sickly."

Is it any wonder that there are so many people who, while not downright sick, show plainly in face, figure and action that they are anything but well? They are despondent, weak, listless, unfit. Aches and pains in practically every part of the body. Lacking in physical strength and mental vigor. Little or no inclination to be up and doing. Just dragging out a weary existence.

A wonderful remedy now makes it possible to get rid of Acid-Stomach without the slightest discomfort. It is called EATONIC—a compound in tablet form—good to eat—like candy. EATONIC brings amazingly quick relief from flat, heartburn, belching, food repeating, sour, gassy stomach and the pains of indigestion. It makes the stomach cool and comfortable—keeps it sweet and strong. You can eat what you like and digest your food in comfort without fear of distressing after effects. It puts you on the road to bounding, vigorous, vibrant health.

Thousands upon thousands of people who have used it are enthusiastic in its praise. They say they never dreamed that anything could bring them such quick relief.

Every druggist is authorized to guarantee that if EATONIC fails in any way he will refund your money.
