MURRAY.

William Mong, the famous character actor, in "The Luck of Geraldine Laird" which is to be seen at the Murray theatre for four days starting Thursday, illustrates in this picture, arranges Bessie Barriscale, how he means to be famous. He tries another new character, after his many years new ventures, and makes a success of it.

Mr. Mong, who had many years of age experience before he faced the mera, and who also had written and produced many scenarios, never had any of the character of a Jewish mercantile before he was cast for "The Luck of Geraldine Laird."

MURRNETTE.

John W. Noble, who directed "The Birth of a Race," coming to the Murray theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, has to his credit such productions as "Romeo and Juliet," starring Francis Bushman and Beverly Lyne, which he directed for Metro; "The Ethel Barrymore features," and "The Wakening of Helene Ritchie"; the patriotic features, "A Man Without a

MURRAY.

Everyone who has ever been in the woods remembers the smell of the pine needles, and it is perhaps this one thing that grips one more than any other in the great outdoors. One of the true-to-nature things that "get" the audiences attending David Belasco's production of Willard Mack's melodrama of the Canadian Northwest, "Tiger Rose," at the Murray next Monday, is the smell of the pine that is wafted out from over the footlights.

The last scene of "Tiger Rose" depicts in a most realistic manner, a deserted log cabin, in the depths of the primeval woods, in that far-away Great North Land, and Mr. Belasco has gone to infinite pains to have the stage literally covered with pine needles. As the players walk over them, grinding them beneath their feet, their pungent odor is wafted into the auditorium, and ere long, the audience forgets that they are in the theatre and feel as if they are in the forest deep themselves, and part of

RESTFUL RESULTS FOR MEN

Only a person who has experienced that awful "all night" cough that sometimes follows influenza can appreciate what a good night's sleep can be. Mrs. Annie Davison, 2039 Myrtle St., Long Beach, Cal., writes to the rest of the world: "Foley's Honey and Tar has a restful one for me. Foley's Honey and Tar checks harsh, racking coughs; eases wheezy breathing; stops tickling in throat; covers up irritated surfaces with a soothing, healing coating. For sale by A. G. ECZEMA

IS ONLY SKIN DEEP

No internal medicine will cure Eczema. Only by the application of CRANOLENE, a new, safe, non-toxic, non-irritating cream, can the Eczema be destroyed. Prove the statement for yourself at our expense. Science has discovered that the acid-like juice of the cranberry kills the tiny skin parasites that cause Eczema, and mild acid has now been combined with soothing, cooling, healing oil. The kids do their work in ridding the system of the poisonous waste matter that causes so many aches and pains. For sale by A. G. Luken & Co.—Advertisement.

the veritable action of the play itself. Everything, with the exception of the wind machine, is worked by keys from a huge switchboard, placed just back and to one side of the scene. Here the stage director stands, and his three assistants take up their positions at other parts of the stage. Besides these four expert stage managers twenty-four men are required on the stage to operate the rain-storm and its thunder and lightning effects, in addition to the regular company crew of a half score of highly specialized theatrical mechanics.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Advertisement.
