

GARFIELD TEACHER QUILTS; SAYS SALARY IS NOT SUFFICIENT

W. W. Cottingham, who has been a member of the Garfield faculty for several years, has presented his resignation, effective June 1, to the board of education. Mr. Cottingham is one of the first local teachers to take definite action during the spring semester because of low salary paid in his profession. He explained Thursday that he will enter business, for no other reason than that it pays more.

In his address to the High School Commercial club Thursday morning J. J. Harrington, Jr., spoke highly of the worthiness of teachers and said he was perfectly willing to pay more taxes that teachers might be paid justly and be able to live in a way fitting to their service to the community.

A dispatch from Marion, Ind., states that the petition of the teachers in the Marion city schools for an increase in pay has been met by a ready response by the local school board, which has granted an average salary raise of 25 per cent, and made the school year ten months in length instead of the customary nine. The raise in pay goes into effect April 1 and effects 127 teachers.

Increase at South Bend
After weeks of agitation on the part of the South Bend Teachers' Federation, the board of school trustees has adopted a new salary schedule, which fixes the minimum salary of the lowest class teacher in the city at $1,000 a year and the maximum of the highest class teacher at $2,400.

The new schedule which was drafted by Superintendent W. W. Borden and a committee of six teachers from the federation, provides for an approximate increase of 33 1/3 per cent in the salaries of all teachers over and above the increase of $400 granted recently and payable at the end of the present school year.

Flower Sales Increase, Prices of Blooms Drop, Say Richmond Florists

While nearby cities have seen the price of flowers fluctuate and soar, Richmond's flower lovers have been unusually fortunate, florists declare, in having numerous greenhouses in the city which are a continual source of supply without the addition of shipping expenses.

Prices everywhere are high. They are high in Richmond, but they have never been as high here as elsewhere. Never in the history of any local florist have as many flowers been sold as during the past year. Increase in sales during the past year is estimated at from 50 to 100 per cent.

For some uncertain reason people have suddenly since the war come into a realization of the acute pleasure of flowers. People laboring under sorrow, people blessed with many joys have felt the same emotion stir them according to the florists.

Prices are not going up, but down, and in Richmond this tendency is already noticeable, it is said. Prices today are not as high as a month ago and the time is at hand when they will be considerably lower.

For the most part flowers are plentiful. They are American flowers, too. Since the national quarantine on importation of plants for fear of spread of plant diseases prevalent in some foreign countries, American growers have set about supplying the demand, which they had before filled partly with imported blossoms. At present only a few types of bulbs can be brought into the country. Azaleas and other Belgian plants have not appeared on the market for some time, except in cases where advance supplies were on hand.

Marne Statue Drive to Be Presented to Children; Teachers To Be Appointed

The board of education, at the High School Wednesday afternoon, authorized the school to collect from one to 10 cents from every pupil in Richmond who wish to assist in erecting a statue to France a statue to be placed on the river Marne.

To each child will be explained the significance of the friendship of France and America and the fact that France presented to this country the statue of the Goddess of Liberty.

Principal Keener, of Baxter school, who has been making mental measurements in the public schools, reported on Star, Baxter and Seavast schools favorably. He will continue his investigation.

The request of the Federation of Teachers made recently, asking the board to make all appointments for the coming year by April 10, was taken under advisement and considered favorably. Charles W. Jordan, president said Thursday, that every effort would be made to make the appointment at the earliest possible time.
