The marriage of Miss Fannie Horrell, daughter of Mr. James C. Horrell, and Mr. Albert Gilmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gilmer of Economy, was solemnized at high noon Saturday at the suburban home of the bride, in the presence of 25 friends and relatives. The double ring ceremony was used, the Rev. Andrew F. Mitchell, pastor of the South Eighth Street Friends church, officiating. The bride was simply dressed in blue tulle and wore a corsage bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. There were no attendants. The rooms were arranged with large bouquets of hyacinths and jonquils. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the guests. The dining room was attractively decorated with amaranth, pink and white carnations. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. John Wright of Toledo, Mrs. Samuel Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Parks and Miss Elsie Vouds, all of Lafayette, Mr. and Mrs. Gilmer left for a short wedding trip and upon their return will be at the home of Mrs. Gilmer. Mrs. Gilmer is a graduate of Indiana university and is president of the Wayne County Better Homes association.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Clara Gross, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Gross Hockett, and Earl C. Bone, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bone of Portland, Ind., was made at a pretty Easter party given Saturday afternoon by Miss Letha Chow, at her home on North Tenth street. During the afternoon cards were played at four tables. The favors were corsage bouquets. The house was attractively decorated with daffodils and ferns and Easter rabbits. Before luncheon was served large baskets of Easter eggs and rabbits were placed on each table. In the baskets were rabbit favors to which were tied yellow and white ribbons on the end of which was a proclamation of Daniel Cupid which proclaimed the announcement and approaching marriage, which will be solemnized in the early summer. Miss Gross is a graduate of the Richmond high school in the class of 1918 and is a member of the Delta Theta Tau sorority. Mr. Bone is manager of the When store and is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity. Following the announcement a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess. RATHER DARING IS THIS DANCE FROCK

Rather daring but striking is this debutante dance frock which was designed by Elizabeth Hines, the pretty little actress playing in "See Saw" this season. Whether it will be accepted by any other than professional women is doubtful. It is fashioned of cherry and silver striped brocade cut in one piece with draping to show the stripes in different directions. Tulle forms a yoke which takes the place of shoulder straps. It is flesh colored and quite startling in effect.

young couple left for a wedding trip through Kentucky and upon their return will reside in Richmond.

Mrs. Anna K. Fisher, a former resident of Richmond, is seriously ill at her home in Indianapolis.

Miss Ruth Keeler was hostess for the H. H. club at her home on North Nineteenth street Thursday evening. The evening was spent in games and dancing, after which a luncheon was served by the hostess. The members present were Miss Isabelle Ayres, Miss Pauline Mansfield, Miss Mabel Fisher, Miss Gladys Arnett, Miss Josephine Washam and Miss Ruth Keeler. Tea was poured by Miss Mary Jones, Miss Gertrude Williams, Miss Mildred Whitely, Miss Dorothy Lebo and Miss Ethel Tillman.

American Legion

The proposed state war memorial is of sufficient importance to warrant Governor Goodrich in calling a special session of the legislature at once, according to State Senator George L. Laney, who has sent a letter to American Legion officials in Indianapolis expressing his views.

"I wish to assure you of my hearty co-operation in any laudable measure which has for its purpose the assisting of the boys who so grandly and nobly did what was imposed on them," his letter says.

The Diary of an Engaged Girl

By Phyllis Phillips

Jack and I have had "words." We are very much like the ordinary run of mortals and engaged couples after all. However, I refuse to let my individuality be swamped without a murmur right from the start. We went to dine at the apartment of some of his best friends yesterday. People totally different from the Sloas, a most conventional couple who live up on the river and keep up a complicated establishment, such as I dislike.

Mr. and Mrs. James are plain enough young people who are absorbed in themselves, their baby and just enough of the outside world to keep them from being absolute bores. Jack seemed to enjoy his visit there, but I was uncomfortable. It was all too much like home. Mrs. James is a smart, neat young woman, with one of those satiny skins that remind you of the ad. for "A skin you love to touch," a calm exterior and no interest whatsoever in art or even music. I can forgive the former more than the latter.

Mr. James sat through a formal though excellent dinner and then Jack and Mr. James smoked and discussed their business affairs until I positively blushed for them both.

Mrs. James "entertained" me. That is to say, she sat and explained the intricacies of housekeeping and baby raising till my head ached. Of course it's lovely to be an exemplary wife and mother, but I do maintain that there are more things to live for in this delightful world than that. Perhaps I am too modern for my own happiness!

Young mothers are apt to be so superior. They seem to think that through their motherhood they have suddenly become the elite of the earth and that no other human being is quite so truly human and perfect as they, if you know what I mean!

They are also irritatingly patronizing, without realizing it at all. I touched on various subjects outside of these pet ones of hers, but invariably she managed to wave them aside quickly as though all others were, after all, minor matters to her. We were most polite, but that's all.

After we left Jack turned to me and told me that their home was his idea of a perfect paradise. I sniffed.

Then we went to it hammer and tongs!

He got quite pettish as I drew my picture of a home and paradise for him, and once he smiled in an aggravating way and informed me that I had a lot of romantic ideas in my pretty head which time and taste would eradicate. Cade! you read!

I explained to him right then and there that I should expect my home to reflect my personality somewhat as well as be "perfect." He shrugged and said that I was welcome to have it reflect most anything as long as the reflections did not interfere with his ideal of comfort and happiness.

Naturally, after that, we had words. I may add that neither of us came out victor.

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Being The Confessions of The Seven-Rowland Wife.

By Helen Rowland

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

My Daughter, a saccharine damsel is as sugar upon eggs; but a caustic woman is as a green persimmon to the teeth.

And a female CYNIC, who can bear one?

Why then, doth a Flapper yearn always to appear world-weary and sophisticated?

Why would she rather be BLASE than President?

Go to! I charge thee let no woman call herself a "Cynic," until she hath been married, at least once!

For a spinster, though she be disappointed in love, seven-times-seven times, yet always believeth that somewhere there existeth an Ideal Marriage, and a Flawless Man.

Moreover, thou Foolish One, if thou wouldst be a sincere Cynic, thou must first have been a sentimentalist!

For lo, a Cynic is but a Sentimentalist, in whose heart, the wine of love hath turned to vinegar—a dreamer, whose sweetest dreams have soured on her hands—an idealist, who hath been caught gathering the flowers of imagination by the wayside, when the thunder-shower of Fate broke over her.

Likewise, if thou wouldst be an honest Cynic, thou must have LOVED much and often.

For, thus only shalt thou learn that one man's words are as smooth as another's, one man's chin is as rough as another's, and one man's promises as brittle as another's. Thus only shalt thou discover that masculine "love" is but a fantasy of spring, consisting mainly of moonlight, curiosity, and imagination; and that a man's love of pursuit is greater than his love of ANY woman!

Likewise, if thou WILT be a Cynic, thou must first have been a "platonic friend," unto more than one youth. For, how else shalt thou discover that, unto a man, "platonic friendship" is but the short cut to an end—and the end a KISS!

Verily, verily, thou shalt have hearkened unto the honeyed words of beauty specialists and milliners—and BELIEVED them; thou shalt have put thy trust in the golden promises of many beauty cream advertisements; thou shalt have tried an hundred "hairdressing" and been disappointed; thou shalt have placed thy faith in many "reducing diets," and waxed fat thereon!

Thou shalt have dallied with a Ouija-board—and been deceived thereby!

How then, shall any Damsel hope to be a Cynic?

For life is like unto a cream-puff, at which a simple maiden gazeth hungrily. But a CYNIC is one that hath opened the puff and found it hollow.

And is it not better to be happy, than wise?

Is it not sweeter to be loved, than cynical?

Yea verily! Selah.

What's in a Name

(Copyright)

Though LUCRETIA was the name borne by the notorious daughter of the Borgias, it is one of the quaintest and most old-fashioned of names in this country. It is a far cry from ancient Rome to modern New England, but the name has completed the transition with very few changes to mark the successive stages of its evolution.

There are two theories among etymologists in regard to the original source of Lucretia. Some contend that it comes from the Latin word lucrum, meaning "gain," and for that reason, Lucretia is said to signify gain. On the other hand, there is much evidence to prove that its real source was in the Latin word for light, lux. Many feminine names have been derived from this root and the same word has supplied surnames without number.

It is believed, therefore, that the noted old gens Lucretius from which Lucretia is directly descended, was only another of the derivatives of lux. "Lucrece," combining the fleece, under the midnight lamp," the famous old Roman tale, inspired Shakespeare to write one of his earliest poems. Deeds, her name, Lucretia Borgia probably established the name of Lucretia in Italy and in early modern times it was one of the few classical names to be revived.

France has a Lucrece which is popular and England imported Lucretia in the eighteenth century.

Lucretia's talismanic stone is the red-hearted ruby. It has the power to bring her strength of body, an invincible spirit and success in every undertaking. Tuesday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

Angelica, a name of much more substance than the pallid Angelica, is still one of the "angelic names" which feminine fancy delights to bestow on its girl children. It means, of course, "angelic," and seems difficult to reconcile with the behavior of some of the small daughters whom one finds bearing the name.

Angelos was a Greek word meaning "heavenly messenger," hence "angel." It first became a name in the Byzantine Empire when it was bestowed as an epithet upon persons of surpassing beauty.

It was applied most often as a masculine name and there was a Carmelite saint called Angelo who established it as a baptismal name. In his honor, the feminine also became popular and Italian history records many instances of its use.

Angelica sprung to fame since it was the faithless lady of romance for whose sake Orlando lost his head and his senses. Though she was the invention of Boland and Ariosto, the romantic flavor which the story gave her, brought Angelica to instant favor. England liked the name and adopted it.

At present, it is the name of a young girl and Italy produced the other forms of Angelica and Anzolella, though Angelica continued the reigning favorite.

Angelica's talismanic gem is the pearl. It guards the purity and sweetness of her, brings her friends, and much charm. Sunday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.

Oxford Presbyterian Church Elects Officers

OXFORD, O., April 3.—The annual meeting of the congregation of United Presbyterian church was held last evening. These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Edwin W. Stephenson; clerk, William L. Coulter; treasurer, Miss Marie Marshall.

Dr. Arthur M. Ramsey was chosen superintendent of the Sabbath school, Miss M. L. Lanchette McDill, who retires after five years of service, Samuel B. Douglass, Hugh W. Stephenson and James L. Sanders were elected trustees, the latter to take the place of Richard Gard, recently removed to College Corner.

The treasurer's report showed nearly $5,000 collected from all sources during the year, and no outstanding debts. There were 22 accessions to the church during the year under the pastorate of Rev. S. R. Jamieson.

Rehearse for Play

Under the direction of Miss Emma Cone, superintendent of music in the high school, students are rehearsing for their annual opera. This year "The Gypsy Rover," by John Hewes Dodge, will be given about the middle of May. Those students who will have the leading parts are Miss Edna Beck, Miss Edna Johnson, Miss Margaret Lowrey, Miss Gertrude Sloneker, Mervin Clough, Robert Shook, Philip Shera, Thomas Nagel and Myron Bunnell.

FORSAKES SOCIETY TO WORK FOR U. S.

Miss Minnie Seaman.

Miss Minnie Seaman is the first woman in Arizona to be appointed a deputy marshal and as far as is known she is the only woman in the United States to hold such office. She was educated in a convent where she received special instruction in music and art. After completing her course she notified her wealthy Arizona relatives that she did not intend to lead a butterfly life and she secured a position as a clerk in the legislature. Her new work as a deputy will be largely stenographic, but she may sometime make a raid on stills or perform other dangerous duties.

From Thin To Plump—Girls

The expressions of happiness and gratitude of several of his young lady patients for whom he prescribed the recently successful flesh forming product known as three grain hypodermic tablets is related by a physician in one of the medical publications and it comes as a surprise to the ordinary layman to learn the heart throbs of distress which seems to effect so many young people who are abnormally thin. Also to know that the weight can be so readily increased by the use, regularly for several months, of this peculiarly named preparation, now obtainable of the best apothecary shops in sealed packages with complete instructions for self-administration.—Advertisement.

Heart and Beauty Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 16 years of age and am a sophomore in high school. I am as popular as any of the other girls and am as well liked by the boys, but somehow the boys seem to like me just to talk to and nothing more. They never ask me for dates and never put themselves out any to take me places. Some girls seem so lucky and still they seem to me loud and forward. Why is this? Do you think it right for a girl to draw a fellow to her side when he is talking with a crowd of people? I am anxious to know what to do.

PATIENCE.

It is impossible to say definitely why the boys do not ask to take you places. Probably, however, they consider you too young and do not think of you as a possible sweetheart. At the age of sixteen you have little cause to worry.

Do not be critical of other girls. If a boy leaves a crowd of people to talk with some girl, he probably does so voluntarily and not because she draws him away.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl and in love with a young man of 18. We have been keeping company for about ten months. He tells me he loves me very much, but when there is another girl friend of his around he gives her all his attention and leaves me.

Please advise me whether I should keep company with him and how I could attract all of his attention.

HOPEFUL.

You are too young to think seriously of love. Do not permit the young man to talk to you on the subject. At the age of eighteen it is only natural that he should enjoy more than one girl, but under the circumstances he should not talk of love to any one. Give up all thought of having his undivided attention and enjoy him as a friend and not a sweetheart.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 years old and have been keeping company with a fellow 22 years old. He is very nice when in my company, but when I am not around he goes with some other girl, but when I do the same he gets real angry.

I like another fellow better now, but would like your advice with which one I should keep company. I have my choice.

It is not necessary to give up either. Tell the young man who objects that you are too young to go with only one person.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of fifteen and wish to ask some of your advice. At different times several of the girls at the school where I go, have told me that they thought that I was one of the prettiest and nicest girls of that school. As I have pimples on my face, they said that spoiled my looks a little but other ways I was very pretty. Do you really think they meant it? Could you suggest anything that would be good to remove pimples and not make my skin rough? I do not go or have anything to do with the boys much. Do you think I should? PUZZLED.

Don't always believe what the girls of your school tell you about your beauty, as they are trying to make you vain. For your face use a good soap, skin cream, acne cream and tissue builder. It is always best to have boy friends.

Explaining the Loco Weed

The meaning of the poison in the loco-weed of the western plains seems fairly clear. It protected the plants from extermination by the herds of wild buffalo, which evidently had learned to avoid it, for none of the early observers speak of finding "locoed" buffaloes.

SEVERE ITCHING BURNING PIMPLES

On Face, Neck, Chest, Caused Disfigurement, Scratched. Cuticura Heals.

"Pimples broke out over my face, neck, and chest. My face was so sore I could hardly touch it. The skin was sore and red, and the itching and burning were so severe that I scratched, and would lie awake three or four nights out of five. The pimples later took form in scales and peeled causing disfigurement."

"I was bothered about three months when I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement, and after using six cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. J. E. Griffin, Blaine, Kansas, June 7, 1919.

Delicate, sensitive skins with tendency to pimples, redness or roughness, should not be irritated by strongly medicated soaps. Why not use for every-day toilet purposes, Cuticura, a delicately medicated soap, touching the first signs of pimples with Cuticura Ointment?
