(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—Christian faith as a cure for the world's ills, was advocated by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, in an address to commissioners of the Presbyterian General assembly Sunday.

"Every conceivable explanation of the unrest, dissatisfaction and disorder that prevails throughout the world has been proposed except the one that is deepest and most important," he said. "Having come to feel himself quite superior to all that has gone before, and being without faith in anything that lies beyond, man has tended to become an extreme egotist. The wisdom, the justice, the morality of an act or policy are now tested solely by its immediate results, and these results are increasingly measured in terms of material and emotional satisfaction of the moment."
