

LIQUOR AMENDMENT IS NOT SUBJECT TO DIRECT REFERENDUM

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The supreme court, in an unanimous opinion, Tuesday, held that Federal constitutional amendments can not be submitted to popular vote for ratification by states having referendum provisions in their constitutions.

The method of ratifying amendments, the court held, is a national power specifically granted by the federal constitution and the states have no authority to provide otherwise. In so holding, the court declares inoperative provisions of the Ohio state constitution authorizing submission of federal amendments to a referendum for ratification, and overturned state supreme court decrees dismissing injunction proceedings brought by George S. Hawke, Cincinnati attorney, in a taxpayer's suit to enjoin submission of the prohibition and woman's suffrage amendments to a referendum vote.

Next to the cases involving the validity of the prohibition amendment and the enforcement, the Ohio referendum cases were considered the most important before the supreme court.

Would Have Affected Dry Rule.

Had the court ruled otherwise, the decision would most likely have resulted, according to court officials, in the reopening of the suffrage question in approximately a dozen states and the filing of petitions for a referendum vote. With 35 states, one less than the constitutional three-fourths, having already ratified the suffrage amendment, an opposite decision would have banished all hopes of ratification prior to the November elections.

The decision, however, does not affect the pending prohibition cases, as none involved that question except in directly. In view of the fact that 45 of the 48 states have already ratified the liquor amendment, attorneys in recently arguing those cases before the supreme court, conceded that even if the court held that the prohibition amendment could be submitted to the voters, enough states without referendum provisions in their constitutions would remain to provide the required three-fourths.

The court's opinion, however, puts an end to any controversy as to whether Ohio has ratified both the amendments and puts Ohio definitely in the list of states approving each of the amendments.

WOMEN THRUST OUT AFTER HECKLING OF SENATE ON IRELAND

WASHINGTON, June 2—Both the senate and house were thrown into an uproar Tuesday by an outbreak of women sympathizers with Irish freedom.

There were evidently two parties to the demonstration which started first in the senate during a speech by Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, opposing acceptance of a mandate over Armenia.

Later, a woman eluded guards at the house chamber door and with friends in the gallery, shouted a challenge to members to deny their appeal in behalf of Ireland.

Answering a demand from the floor that they be thrown out and locked up, the women defied the entire house to attempt it, and guards started after them as they raced around the gallery, creating great disorder until they were subdued and ejected.

No Charges Lodged

Although the offenders were escorted to the capital guardroom, no charges were lodged against them and they were permitted to go.

Breaking suddenly on the proverbial dignity of the senate, just after Senator Brandegee had referred to "the ravages of the Hun," a woman's shrill voice from the gallery startled senators and attendants alike.

As the woman shouted "Why not eject the English Hun from Ireland?" gallery guards made a rush in her direction, while the strident command from Vice-president Marshall to "put her out" led instantly to heckling from other parts of the gallery.

For a moment a whirlwind of questions swept down from the galleries, while the vice-president, laying aside his gavel, shouted sharp, peremptory orders to the attendants to remove the women.

Senator Brandegee Patient.

Meanwhile Senator Brandegee, still holding his ground, waited patiently for order.

Spectators who took no part in the outbreak seemed more startled than the members.

Order was finally restored and the senate went back to its work.
