

The Theatres

MURRAY VAUDEVILLE.
Opening Thursday will be Almont and Dumont in a novel singing and instrumental offering; Weller, O'Donnell and Westfield, three young men with melodious voices, and Blanche and Ray McKay in a comedy singing and talking sketch. Blanche Sweet in "The Deadlier Sex", will entertain on the screen in conjunction with the latter three acts.

MURRETTE.

In "The Heart of a Child," a special production adapted from Frank Danby's novel of the same name, Nazimova comes on the screen of the Murrette Theatre the last half of the week in a role that is different from any of the wide variety of characters she has portrayed so marvelously in previous triumphs.

It is that of Sally Snape, an English girl from the slum streets of London who finds herself orphaned at the most critical period of her life, and left to face alone, without any other aid than her unsophistication, the struggle of maintaining the world's respect.

In her support is an exceptionally able cast, with Charles Bryant, adapter of the novel to the screen, as Lord Kidderminster; Ray Thompson, Neil Newman, Victor Potel, Eugene Klim, Claire Du Brey, Jim Sterling, John Stepling, William J. Irving and Myrtle Ruoff. Ray C. Smallwood directed the production, with Randolph J. Bergquist in charge of the cameras. The effectiveness of the pictorial element in the play is due in great measure to the special art effects by Allen Ruoff.

Is sex recognized in business? Harvey Judson a Wall Street railroad manipulator and business rival of Mary Willard, president of the N. Y. & S. R. R., told her that business recognized no sex, and all the time he was planning a raid that he thought would be easy to put over because she was a woman—one of the "weaker sex."

But this Judson had much to learn. Mary thought the greatest lesson he needed was that money wasn't everything. Aroused to the necessity of protecting her stockholders, Mary kidnapped the young man and put him through a course of training that eventually made of the railroad-grabbing, money-loving Wall Street wolf a tamed young man hopelessly in love with his trainer.

This brief outline cannot begin to do justice to "The Deadlier Sex," Blanche Sweet's newest Jesse D.

Hampton-Pathe photoplay coming to the Murray Theatre for the last half of the week, commencing Thursday.

WASHINGTON

Madge Kennedy, star of "The Blooming Angel," the new Goldwyn picture, which is showing at the Washington theater the last times today, was as much delighted, and got as much fun as any of the children who appeared with her in the street scene in which Eno the elephant was feature.

The elephant used in the picture was obtained from a Los Angeles zoo and had a royal time at the studios.

Miss Kennedy is particularly delighted with "The Blooming Angel" because she has a role that reveals her in her best moods.

"Floss is a typical American girl."

she says, "plucky, loyal and determined to help her husband. I like to play a part like that. It's so wholesome and should teach a lesson to a lot of complaining wives who weep because they cannot have a new diamond ring or sealskin coat whenever they want it. There is nothing saint-like about Floss, but she's just a human, lovable girl who will sacrifice anything to help the man she loves. I like to portray types on the screen which will teach helpful lessons to young girls. And 'The Blooming Angel' gives me that opportunity."

DON'T BLAME YOUR DOCTOR

IF YOU ARE STILL WEAK, NERVOUS AND RUN-DOWN

Medical Science Makes Amazing Discovery Of What You Actually Need To Build Health And Strength And Even Keep Yourself Alive.

That lack of those recently discovered substances in our foods, the vitamines, is responsible in great measure for the fact that there is "somebody sick" in most families most of the time, is the opinion of many experts. Former Health Commissioner John J. Rudolph, M.D., late of the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital and Columbus Hospital of New York, and a Graduate of the University of Baltimore says:

It is certainly not surprising that the diets we physicians have recommended and the tonics we prescribed have failed to come up to our expectations, since they one and all, lack a sufficient proportion of vitamines, which we now know to be as essential to life as air itself. When a person fails to get enough vitamines there is a continuous starvation process going on all through the system. As a result you become generally weakened and run-down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions without ever even suspecting the real cause of your trouble. You may be tired, nervous, depressed, worried, unable to digest your food or to sleep well at night—your skin may be mottled and your complexion sallow, pallid or lifeless. No matter what the symptoms may be, however, there is a lack of strength, energy and vitality which must be overcome before you can enjoy perfect health.

Nature supplies vitamines in various raw foods, but to attempt to eat enough of these raw foods to get the full amount of vitamines which the system requires for health and strength, is almost a physical impossibility. Therefore, vitamines are now prepared in a concentrated, easily assimilated tablet form called Vitamon, and numerous tests by men, women and children have plainly proved its extraordinary merit. From my own personal use of Vitamon three times a day with meals, and from carefully watching the patients to whom I have given it, I am convinced that there is no other tonic or preparation whatsoever to which it can be compared. Not until you have taken Vitamon yourself and felt its upbuilding effects can you form any idea of the vast difference it may make in your health, strength, mental vigor and physical appearance.

NOTE: The subject of vitamines discussed above by Mr. Rudolph has taken great strides since the eminent scientist Dr. Casimir Funk of London named the substance in 1911. Osborne and Mendel of Yale University and E. C. McCollum of Hopkins University perhaps have done most in this country. The London "Lancet" one of the leading and most authoritative medical journals in the world devoted considerable space recently to the subject of vitamines and their influence upon the general health. The concentrated tablet form known as Vitamon is the easiest and best method for getting vitamines into the system and quickly building up the strength, energy and power, and may be taken with benefit by either men or women, young or old. An article has been recently written whereby Vitamon is supplied at a price low enough to be within the reach of all and completely satisfies the desire to have a vitamin on money will be promptly refunded. Vitamon may now be obtained in this city from all leading druggists such as
