Fragal Housewives Grind Own Coffee; Buy Mills

Coffee mills are generally supposed to be in the same class as spinning wheels, corsets and bonded liquor. But a Main street hardware dealer says more coffee grinders are being sold now than were sold five years ago.

A Main street coffee dealer is of the same opinion. He says that since coffee has gone up in price (fragal housewives purchase large quantities of roasted coffee beans, and grind the coffee as needed).

Some grocers tack an extra cent to coffee prices for grinding. And the housewife would rather purchase a coffee grinder and "grind her own" than to permit the grocer to make an honest penny.

Others believe that the home coffee mill grinds the coffee in a manner that retains much of the flavor lost when ground by the large electric grinders.

Richmond Folks Buy Autos, —But They Buy Homes First

If your neighbor happens to blossom forth in a new flivver or automobile next Sunday, don't grow envious and remark to another neighbor that Mr. So-and-So must have mortgaged their home to buy the car. You probably will be telling an untruth.

An official of a loan company says that practically every mortgage taken by his concern this year was to permit the householder to purchase other real estate.

He does not believe that Richmond residents have to mortgage homes to buy motor cars. He believes that the person in Richmond that purchases a car has saved money enough to do so, or else is purchasing it on payments.

CHICAGO ART INSTITUTE HELPS ARTISTS SELL WORKS

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, July 10.—Artists exhibiting at the Chicago Art Institute the past year, have received encouragement through the museum's delegating one of its staff to stimulate sales. Several pictures sold at $8,000, one at $11,000 and another at $15,000. The total ran into a substantial sum. The man working on sales has been given an assistant during exhibitions.

Eulogy for Swayne

By FRANCES M. ROBINSON.

The following eulogy was read at the funeral service held for George B. Swayne here, at the residence of his brother, S. E. Swayne.

In the very center of our innermost Being, God, the creator of Man, has enshrined Himself, a witness for Himself, and the most unlearned cannot be wholly without knowledge of Him.

The sinner knows Him as something within that reproves him as he goes about his ministrations.

Were it otherwise, it would be hopeless for us to endeavor to come into closer and yet closer relationship with our Heavenly Father, and to learn more of Him and of the "well beloved Son," whose mission it was and still is to reveal God, our Heavenly Father, to us. It is needful that we should know them intimately, as we know our best earthly friends, in order that we may have life, abounding life, springing afresh as from an ever flowing fountain.

There have been men who have endured many hardships and risked their lives in the effort to find the fountain of perpetual youth, supposed to exist in the southern part of our country, where the flowers live on and on, growing and developing from day to day. How much more earnestly should we, if we are wise, devote our best energies of mind, heart, soul, and body as well, to finding the Source of this perpetual peace and satisfaction of soul, the fountain from whence flows the water of "Life."

No man knoweth the things of a man, except by the spirit of a man which is in him; and no man knoweth the things of God, except by the spirit of God, which is also in him, placed there by the Creator himself.

"We shall never do any better than we expect to do, nor be any better than we expect to be."

Our colleges and universities were established that all may have the opportunity to have their mental and physical powers educated and trained to the highest degree of efficiency, presumably for service.

There are many religious organizations and inspired teachers who are endeavoring to afford like opportunity for all to get "in touch" with the teachings of Jesus Christ that we may have our spiritual powers developed to the highest possible degree of efficiency; but we cannot reap the benefit of either college or spiritual training, unless we are in earnest, first to acquire the knowledge and then to apply it everywhere to benefit other human beings, primarily, and incidentally and consequently ourselves. "Knowledge is power," but the power may be used either as a destructive or a constructive force, but woe to him who misapplies it, and uses it to the destruction of that peace which passeth all understanding, for sorrow, regret, and remorse lie in that direction, while life and peace and joy are to be found on the path that uplifts and uplifts. It makes all the difference in the world, whether we are seeking "relief or release from trouble," or "Satisfaction of the Soul." We may or may not find the former. That depends on the wisdom and right attitude of mind and spirit on the part of all concerned—ourselves and our fellow men.

While it will eventually be accomplished when the mission of Jesus Christ is fulfilled, it may not be ours to "gather the harvest" of peace and good-will to all men. It may be God has only assigned the preparatory work in the vineyard to us, which, if well done, will insure the harvest in due time. But satisfaction of soul, joy and the peace that passeth understanding are to be had by each individual worker as he labors from day to day. While this may seem to us impossible, we have only to listen to the words of Jesus to know that this is attainable.

"I do always the things that are pleasing to my Father in heaven."

"The Father who dwelleth in me."

THE PRICE SHE PAYS

There is hardly an American woman nowadays who can keep pace with the demands made upon her time and energy without paying the penalty of ill health. It may be that dreadful backache, dragging pains, headaches, nervousness, or the tortures of a displaced. It is the price she pays placement. It is the price she pays. To women in this condition, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound comes as a boon and a blessing. A simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which brings glorious health to suffering women.—Advertisement.

He speaks the words and he doeth the works.

"The works that I do, shall ye do also." "As many are led by the spirit of God, they are the sons and daughters of God."

Then in the midst of the greatest trials, persecutions and sufferings that could come to anyone, he said: "My peace, my joy, I give unto you. Not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your hearts be troubled neither let them be afraid." "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."

Precious words! Wonderful light-bringers in the midst of great darkness and confusion of spirit! That it is well worth while "to bind them upon our foreheads" and "ponder them in our hearts," we know, because the voice of God was heard bearing testimony: "This is my well-beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

By doing our own souls will be blessed beyond our greatest expectation. Let us cast our cares (whatever they may be) upon Him who so abundantly cares for us with loving kindness and tender mercy, saying: "Thou knowest, oh, Father, even better than I can tell the needs of my heart and the needs of all those with whom my life is associated. Give us as we have need in order that we may be able to enter Thy Kingdom. Strengthen us to bear our part of the load as we journey along. Give us wisdom to know what to do, what to leave unsaid as well as what to say, in order that peace and harmony may reign in all the manifestation of what Thou hast been pleased to accomplish in the lives of Thy children."

Increase our faith, give us patience to wait until this great work can be accomplished by our feeble efforts co-operating with Thy all-powerful efforts. It is comforting to know that we need never work alone, for Thou art ever with us, "nearer than breathing, nearer than hands or feet." For Thy name is simply "God" and "God" is Thy name forever. Amen.

What greater honor could come to any man than to have it truthfully said of him, a friend of God and a friend of man. We all know the measure of his worth by the consciousness of the great loss we have individually sustained by his passing away.

Such a one is entitled to "Wrap the drapery of his couch about him and lie down to pleasant dreams."

News of the Counties

CAMDEN, O.—Mr. Jasulek, manager of the tobacco warehouse, met with a bad accident Wednesday. While coming down the road from Eaton his automobile was struck by a south-bound train near Wayne Trace, and the machine was demolished. Mr. Jasulek escaped with minor injuries and will soon be able to be out on business again.

LEWISBURG, Ohio.—Community services are to be held in Lewisburg during July and August.

The church yard of the Reformed Church will be fitted with platform and pews and the meetings will be held there every Sunday evening at 6:30, beginning next Sunday, July 11. The speakers for these services will be the local pastors alternating with outside speakers from the denominations represented. Congregational singing of the old familiar hymns. Special music by local talent will also be provided. These services have been especially planned for the benefit of the whole community and a cordial invitation is extended to all who live in and near Lewisburg. Rev. Jos. Bennett will be the speaker next Sunday evening.

LOOK OUT FOR CANNING

"PRESERVATIVES," WARNING Reports that the use of canning compounds is becoming general in many parts of Indiana, have reached I. L. Miller, state food and drug commissioner, who has issued a warning to housewives.

Under fancy names, large quantities of borate and salicylic acids are being sold for preserving fruits and vegetables.

The use of these acids encourages careless methods. Commissioner Miller declares, while their excessive use may be attended with serious results on digestion and health.

Don't Blame the Weather Too Much

If you are feeling lazy and languid, even dull and stupid, lacking in strength and ambition, do not blame it altogether on the weather. The hot sun will not oppress you so much if the bowels are regular and the liver active and healthy. Foley Cathartic Tablets banish biliousness, gas, bad breath and other results of indigestion and constipation. They cleanse the bowels, sweeten the stomach and invigorate the liver. For sale by A. G. Mrs. Solomon Says—

Being the Confessions of The Seven-Hundred Wife. By Helen Rowland

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Who is this, my Daughter, that cometh sighing through the sad wind through the Cypress?

Who is this, that greeteth thee with the meek of a pall-bearer and the face of a martyr?

Who is this, that claspeth thine hand for comfort, and gazeth into thine eyes in search of sympathy?

Lo, it is he, the LONELY HUSBAND!

Yea, it is HE, the "Summer Widower," whose wife hath left him with only the Cat for company and the Outboard for diversion.

Yet, behold how subtle he hath grown with the years.

For, once upon a time, he celebrated his wife's departure with joyous feasting and loud huzzahs, crying:

"My wife's gone to the county—Hurray! Hurray!"

Once he boasted of his "freedom" and bragged of his iniquities.

Once he went forth boldly, in search of gaiety and adventure, arrayed in his sportiest vestments and his gaudiest cravats.

But the damsels of the city turned away their heads and smiled, saying: "Poor simp! He is a school-boy who hath just heard the bell ring for recess. He yearneth to get into mischief. He longeth to break all the RULES. But why shall we waste time upon him, when the land is full of Eligibles? He is giddy with his own conceit! His 'nerve' is exceeding great!"

But the Summer Widower of 1920 is WISE to his own folly.

He goeth amidst the multitude, sadly and softly, as one that is greatly afflicted. He seeketh out the tender-hearted damsel and telleth her of his "loneliness." He leadeth her unto the pink tea-room and discourseth of his empty life.

He speaketh sweetly of his wife as of one dead and departed.

He praiseth the damsel's "charity" in consenting to have pity upon him.

He pleadeth with her to "be kind" to him.

He reveleth in his own misery, and greatly enjoyeth his sufferings.

Yea, he is SO sorry for himself!

And lo, she that was moved to smiles by his brawling is moved to tears by his pleadings; she that was adamant is softer than drug-store ice-cream on a July day.

She permiteth him to hold her hand!

She melteth as a starched collar at a graduation dance.

For, behold, he hath discovered that the way to a woman's heart is not a highway, where the Conqueror Here cometh with the blowing of trumpets and the fanfare of a brass band; but a Secret Way, through her COMPASSION.

Verily, verily, every woman yearneth to "mother" some man.

And he that hath succeeded in winning her sympathy may be assured that in time her heart will follow after it!

Then, beware of the Summer Widower, my Beloved.

For he goeth softly—and is WISE!

And it is meet that the Lonely Husband be pitted—but not that he be PETTED!

Selah.

BOND PLACED AT $1,000

RAVENNA, Ohio, July 10.—R. A. Stillwell, president of the Rayon Rubber company, of Ravenna, gave bond of $1,000 today for his appearance in the Portage County Common Pleas Court on a charge of having issued a check for $46 for which he had no funds in bank upon which the check was drawn. To Stop Coughing, Sneezing, Wheezing

Unseasonable spring weather left a number of coughs and colds. Now comes the time of hay fever and asthma and more people than ever will be coughing, sneezing and wheezing. No wonder there is a tremendous demand for Foley's Honey and Tar, that old reliable family remedy for coughs, colds, hay fever, asthma and croup. It heals and soothes that raw, rasping feeling in the throat, clears the passages and makes breathing easier. For sale by A. G. Loken & Co., 629 Main St.—Advertisement.

Eaton Woman May Die As Result of Suicide Attempt

EATON, O., July 10.—Mrs. Louise Shields, 65 years old, attempted to take her own life shortly after seven o'clock Saturday morning by drinking carbolic acid. She is in a critical condition and not expected to live. Mrs. Shields has been mentally unbalanced for some time, it is said, and had threatened several times to kill herself.

She was found lying on the bed in her bedroom by her daughter, Mae. Physicians were called at once and they worked all morning Saturday to overcome the effects of the poison.

Mrs. Shields and her daughter were the only occupants of the house. Her husband, whom she divorced several years ago, is also a resident of Eaton.

American Legion

Greetings of the French nation to America are contained in a Bastille day message appearing in the current issue of the American Legion Weekly. The message, written by Jules Jusserand, French ambassador to the United States, likens the assistance the Americans gave France in 1917 to that the French gave the United States in 1778. It points out that in each instance, "the helper said in advance he was fighting for a principle and would accept no recompense and he remained true to his word."
