The Earlham College Endowment

Earlham college has been an integral part of our community life for many years. Hundreds of young men and women from this city have enjoyed its educational offerings, completing courses that granted them diplomas or attending classes for two or three years.

Earlham's development as an educational institution has been along sound and conservative lines. Quality has been the aim of the heads of the institution. And it is gratifying to know that the college ranks among the best of the small colleges in the Middle West.

The institution has not escaped financial worries and troubles. Even the big universities have been hard pressed in the last four years to pay expenses from the tuition and endowment funds, the only two sources of revenue an educational institution has. To prevent annual deficits and put the college on a sound financial basis, a campaign to raise $500,000 is under way at Earlham.

Richmond will be asked to contribute generously. Besides the material advantage of having a college in its confines, Earlham spending about $300,000 here annually, the presence of an educational institution has cultural aspects of the highest order. The college is a force for good in our own community which few of us estimate rightly and appreciate fully.

If we had no college and an offer of locating an institution here were made, unquestionably the whole community would welcome its coming.
By the same token an institution, fully organized for many years, executing its mission faithfully and successfully through the decades, with many illustrious men numbered among its graduates, should receive encouragement and support to ease its financial worries and troubles. Earlham college is a going concern, an asset to our community, an advertisement of our city, an organized influence for good, an institution within our own midst where boys and girls may obtain a good education at reasonable cost.

The sum of money needed by the institution should be raised here in quick order. Earlham's development ought not to be hampered by the lack of a few hundred thousand dollars that can be raised quickly and without entailing hardship on anyone.

Closing the Milton Bank

Investigation of the condition of the Farmers' Banking company at Milton has not progressed far enough to warrant the fixing of blame, but it seems that the irregularities are of long standing and should have been caught by the state banking department.

It is almost inconceivable that between $75,000 and $100,000 of the bank's resources should have disappeared within a few months.
Nothing has been disclosed to show that a suddenly inspired thought led to the appropriation or spending of a huge sum at one time or within a comparatively short time.

If the investigation by the receiver discloses that the books were in bad condition for a long time, one may inquire with propriety about the worth of the examinations periodically made by the state department. If these examinations were only superficial, the state banking department will lay itself open to criticisms for not guarding the interests of the stockholders and depositors. The latter are protected in this instance, because the stockholders will make good their losses. The faith of the public, however, is shaken every time a financial institution is forced to close its doors, and depositors in and about Milton will not be immune to this feeling.

Examinations of financial institutions are futile if they do not succeed in preventing conditions such as existed in the Milton institution.
The records of the bank are in a chaotic condition, reports say, suggesting again the possibility of inadequate examination by the state department.

Developments may soon tell exactly how the institution was wrecked, and the explanation may exonerate the department from any implied criticisms of its methods of examination. But the question of how the cashier succeeded in hiding his irregularities for many months will not down until this report is made.

THE UPWARD CLIMB

Take the upward climb, Boy! It's the hardest one, I know, and your feet will get sore and your back will ache and your heart will thump and the water will roll off your head and down your chest in little rivers.

But take it, Boy—take it!

Your friends will tell you to "cut it out" and to come and play and leave your work—that there will be "plenty of time to do it later." But don't you mind them, Boy, don't you mind them.

Sometimes you will get very tired—climbing all alone, Boy. And when the day is done, you will not think that you have gone very far. But the years will tell you that you did. And years never lie.

And as you climb, keep looking up to the top, Boy.

Pay no attention to the cries of those below you, who seem to be having such a good time. The day will come when most of them will envy you and wish that they too had climbed. And many of them will be hungry when you will have plenty.

So take the upward climb, Boy—the upward climb.

But as you climb, Boy, play the game square. Encourage those about you who seem weaker, remembering that he climbs highest who helps another up." And don't get impatient.

You will slip a lot of times. Some days will look totally lost, but don't you mind, Boy. Keep climbing.

You will learn, Boy, that the higher you climb, the surer your footage will become.

Starts are always hardest. No one ever became a leader who was not first a follower. Infinite ease is a development from infinite pains and labor, Boy. And don't you ever forget that you owe the world vastly more than the world could ever owe you.

So take the upward climb, Boy, and climb and climb and climb!

A watchmaker's apprentice at play discovered the principle of the telescope.

Dinner Stories

"Is this all you've got to eat?" the traveler asked dejectedly, as he looked over the counter display in the restaurant.

"Oh, I haven't got to eat it, thank goodness!" replied the attendant, who was under notice, "I only have to sell it."

An irritable dyspeptic was advised by his physician to take up golf to improve his health, and went to purchase an outfit.

"I suppose I've got to play the game because it's doctor's orders," he remarked ruefully; "but I never could make out what the attraction of the game is."

"Well," replied the dealer, "there's one thing about it—so far as I know it's the only game in which you can praise a lady's form without being impudent."

Male spiders are much smaller than females.

Inside as well as out, Du Pont Paint is the best there is

That's the only kind of paint you want—and that's the only kind we want to sell you.

Look around your home today and see the number of places that a coat of paint will cheer up. This is the time to do it, and Du Pont is the paint to use. Maybe it is the woodwork that needs attention, or the screens are a bit brown, or perhaps the house itself needs a new Spring suit, but whatever you need in Paints and Varnishes we have it on our shelves, with the Du Pont name guaranteeing quality and wearing satisfaction.

DuPont has been in business over a hundred years now, and the name has been associated with nothing but success.

See what needs paint at home—then see us.

Phelactine, New Wonder Worker for Hair Growths

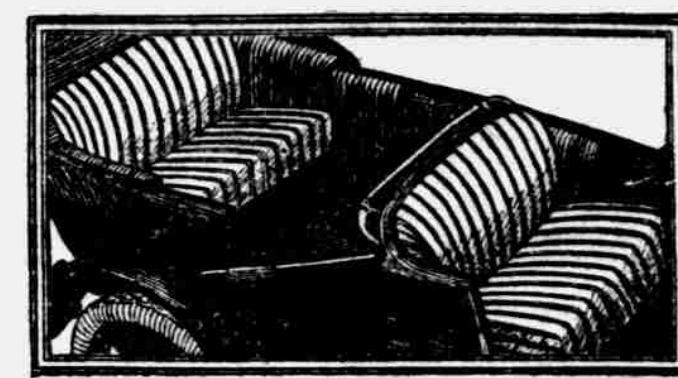

Causes Even the Roots to Come Out

By an entirely new and perfectly harmless method, any woman afflicted with a growth of superfluous hair can now remove the disfigurement completely—roots included—in just a few seconds. Isn't that glorious news?

The recently discovered phelactine process is altogether different from electrical, depilatory and other methods heretofore employed for the purpose. It is the only thing that enables one to remove roots and all in one's own home without expert assistance. The result cannot be doubted, for the user sees the hair-roots with her own eyes. A stick of phelactine, with simple instructions, can be procured at any drug store. It is odorless, non-irritating, non-poisonous (a child could eat it without injury). The method is so thorough that the skin is left perfectly smooth and hairless, bearing not the least evidence of its former blemish.—Advertisement.

Mothers of yesterday baked bread in big, generous loaves. Mothers of today are urged Small loaves mean waste—they require more labor, more greater delivery expense. It costs your grocer more to handle small loaves.
