BRAZILIAN SUGAR CAUSES RIFTS IN DARK SUGAR CLOUD

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch was printed under a Richmond date Friday by an Indianapolis paper.)

Through the importation of a cargo of sugar from South America by an Indiana wholesaler, there is a rift in the sugar cloud that has threatened Indiana housewives and canners.

Recent dealing in imported sugar has attracted considerable attention in trade circles. Until a few months ago imported sugar for table use was practically unheard of, and few manufacturers used it. Its merits are now being recognized by canners and housewives.

The W. H. Hood company, of Portland and Richmond, recently bought a cargo of Brazilian sugar which is being distributed to Indiana trade. The cargo consisted of 1,200,000 pounds of Brazilian cane granulated sugar.

Sugar of Creamy Color

Brazilian sugar, according to W. S. Wood, of the Hood company, has been the most favored of any of the imported sugars, although many housewives, he says, are prejudiced against it because it is not so white nor fine as the American granulated.

This sugar is more of a creamy color than white and, according to government tests, was found to be pure, with a higher sweetening quality than American sugar.

In appearance it is unbleached and it is not so highly refined as American sugar. It has frequently happened, sugar men say, that since the scarcity of American sugar, considerable of the sweetness is removed in refining and is used in the manufacture of table sugars.

Shortage May Continue.

Sugar dealers say that the shortage in American sugar will continue for at least another year, and that Porto Rico, Brazil and Holland will send great quantities of sugar to America.

If this is not done, sugar prices in America will go higher, and the product become even scarcer than it is now, they say.

Recent trading in Brazilian sugar, for example, promoted by American interests, has had a tendency to lessen the demand for native sugars, and raw sugar has dropped considerably in price, with the result that eastern refineries have been making larger shipments of sugar than they have for two years.

This anomalous situation, however, is not expected to last, due to the extraordinary demand for sugar for taking care of the enormous fruit crop.

Effect of Financial Conditions

Financial conditions are given as another reason for the present easy condition of the sugar market, and many jobbers are reported releasing their stocks because it is impossible for them to obtain money to conserve their holdings for higher prices.

The action of the federal reserve board in refusing speculative loans is largely responsible for this, it is pointed out.

While many jobbing concerns are continuing with small stocks, others are interested in sugar imports as a trade saver. It is pointed out that imported sugars sell virtually at the same retail price as domestic sugar.

It is predicted by some sugar men that, in view of the increased demand for sugar, it is only a question of time until this country's sugar imports will be quadrupled.

In any event, it is expected that the Brazilian importations will help save the fruit crop not only in Indiana, but in many parts of the United States.

RICHMOND MEN LOST MANNERS IN ARMY?

The world war has caused the usually conservative male population of Richmond to forget practically three pre-war habits.

In ante-bellum days whenever a feminine acquaintance passed, the hat or cap was lifted entirely from the head. But not today! She gets a sort of sloppy salute or else the brim of the hat or cap is merely touched. Often the old top-tipping is forgotten entirely.

And one hardly ever sees a Richmond man take off his hat while conversing to a girl on the street.

Formerly, to light a cigar or cigarette, Richmond men would scratch a match along the seat of the trousers. Usually a leg was lifted from the ground.

Safety matches or Bill Hart method are now used. The latter run the thumb nail along the head of the match.

Investigation and regulation by the state board of accounts of the fuel supply.

Establishment of a special commission to control the supply of coal and regulate prices.

Appointment of a committee of legislators to investigate measures necessary to assure an adequate and reasonable amount of coal.

DISCUSS COAL SUPPLY IN SPECIAL SESSION

INDIANAPOLIS, July 16.—Three methods of dealing with the coal supply situation in Indiana were under discussion today. All are dependent upon action by the state legislature in special session. The methods are:

Chief of Police Werner has made a request that any householders who intend to be absent from the city for a few days or longer, to notify him to that effect, giving street number of their residence and the place they intend to be during their absence.

Recent robberies in the city has prompted the chief in making this request so that houses temporarily closed can be watched by officials.

DEFENDER'S CREW IS UNDISCOURAGED BY LOSING FIRST RACE

(By Associated Press)

SANDY HOOK, N. J., July 16.—Repaired on the Cup Sloop Resolute, whose throat halyards parted in yesterday's race when victory over the Shamrock IV seemed well in hand, proceeded rapidly today, and there was every prospect that the defender would be in readiness for another just in the America's Cup match of Sandy Hook Saturday.

"We will complete our work of adjusting new halyards today," said Robert W. Emmons, II, managing owner. A new metal gaff was to be hung on the Resolute, and Captain Charles Francis Adams, the cup yacht skipper, did not seem unduly chagrined over the accident that robbed him of a fine victory.

Nat Herreshoff, designer and builder of the Resolute, made a careful inspection of the 70-footer and supervised the repairs on board. Herreshoff had no comment to make on the performance of the Shamrock IV.

Say Lipton Has No Chance.

Sailors on the Resolute declared the Lipton challenger cannot lift the windward yesterday in light airs, pointing out that the 15-mile beat to windward yesterday in light airs, in which the Lipton sloop is supposed to show to best advantage, the American racing machine beat the Englishman, boat for boat, without any advantage that might have come from a time allowance of 6 minutes 40 seconds, which Resolute is allowed over a 30-mile course.
