CHEESE PRICE DOWN AS STOCK SURPLUS CHECKS PRODUCTION

By WILLIAM R. SANBORN.

If you are fond of cheese, buy it regularly, and don't care what it costs; that is your business. Cheese has been gradually working down from its proud pinnacle. Good American full cream, than which there is none better, has been quietly slipping.

The passing of the season is held partly responsible for the break in cheese. Cause? Well, saloons, cafes and drinkeries of every class and caliber have had the habit of putting a plate of cheese on the bar or the side table, with a bowl of crackers, and mayhap another filled with pop corn, in order to give the patron a little something extra for his money. In the aggregate the daily cheese tonnage thus consumed, between Portland, Me., and Los Angeles, was enormous.

Overproduction Here.
And thus the milk farmers of some of the southern Wisconsin counties are now paid so little for milk by the cheese makers that they are turning their milk over to the condenseries. In the meantime there is "an overproduction of cheese in Wisconsin", and also in New York. Fred Marty, of Monroe, Wis., says so. He is president of the Cheesemakers' and Dairymen's association. This overproduction is based on high priced cheese.

The Home Garden

Many city gardeners while sprinkling the lawn in the evening will turn the hose for a minute or two on the garden. This practice does little good. A thorough soaking helps, even if only a little of the garden is covered at one time. Then, as soon as the ground is dry enough to work, possibly the following day, it should be gone over lightly with the hoe. The dust mulch on top will keep down weeds and help retain the moisture.

A method used by many successful gardeners is to take the nozzle off the hose and let the water run in the garden where it will not wash out any of the products. Another method commonly employed is to take the circular spray or similar attachment for the hose and place it in the garden, moving it from place to place as the ground becomes thoroughly soaked.

GARDEN DIVIDENDS

Home gardens are declaring dividends, regular, extra and midsummer specials all being included in the distribution. These profits have been coming to the home gardener from the time the first lettuce, the first radish, the first green onion was ready for the table. The variety of dividends is limited only by the garden.

The man who has prepared the garden plot, who made the soil ready, who laid it out, planted the seed, but out the plants and gave care and thought and attention each day, has already had his investment back in greater health, to say nothing of the pleasures that have been his in helping and studying the productive forces of Nature. Now he gets the special dividends in delicious table offerings, everything tasting better because of the toil and thought he gave it. And he can laugh and grow merry over some high prices quoted.

The Farm and the Farmer

By William R. Sanborn

E. G. Proulx, state chemist at Purdue, having made an analysis of the hog tonics which has caused so much trouble to Wayne farmers, writes E. F. Murphy, county agent, as follows:

"Regarding the analysis of the Columbia Stock Powder sampled by Mr. Carter, this material has the following ingredients:

"Sulphur, charcoal, wormseed, sodium thiosulphate-hyposulphite, of soda, sodium sulphate-Glauber salt, Ferrous sulphate-copperas, sodium bicarbonate, sodium nitrate, magnesium sulphate-epsom salt, small amount quassia, sodium chloride, common salt, a small amount.

"This material, no doubt Mr. Carter advised you, does not come under the jurisdiction of this department. We have, however, taken the matter up with both Dr. Craig of the Veterinary Department and Dr. Northrup, State Veterinarian. I have some hopes that they will bring this matter to the attention of the prosecuting attorney."

FARMERS' CONVENTION PROBES LIVE STOCK AND GRAIN MARKETING

CHICAGO, July 24—Two groups of delegates gathered today for the second day of the convention of the American farm bureau federation. One meeting took up the problem of marketing grain; the other that of live stock. Delegates represented grain growers and meat producers of the United States and Canada.

Organized agriculture was represented by farm bureaus, farmers' unions, grange and equity associations. J. R. Howard, president, explained that the bureau did not intend to go into the marketing business, but that the aim was to help form the market organization in order to encourage production and stabilize prices and "get a square deal for the farmer and consumer."

The new plan will eliminate the broker and middleman that go between the farmer and consumer, he said.

Mr. Drake told how the farmers of the northwest had been forced to cooperate in selling their grain, explaining that the whole situation had grown out of a monopoly which resulted in a loss to the producers.

"The business turnover of the farmers' co-operative body in Minnesota was more than $40,000,000 last year, and the estimate is placed at more than $100,000,000 for this year," he said.

"We are taking over the local elevators charging for the cost of selling the farmers' grain. We buy their grain on a margin sufficient to carry on the business and turn back the excess at the end of the year."
