A beautiful wedding of much interest to Richmond residents and particularly to the Eastern college colony is that of Miss Belle W. Bream, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. William Bream, of Gettysburg, Pa., and Dr. Lindley Richard Dean, son of Mrs. Alma Dean, College Avenue, which took place at the bride's home Wednesday at 11 a. m.

The ceremony was performed on the porch which was surrounded by vines, a lovely background for the striking color scheme of white and gold. An elaborate bower of yellow and white daisies was arranged, an arch of golden daisies overhanging the spot where the ceremony was performed. Masses of daisies were used for a background with large bouquets of cut flowers surrounding the bower while suspended from the ceiling was a huge ball of ferns with festooned ropes of flowers extending to the edges of the porch.

Dr. J. E. Baker, pastor of the St. James Lutheran church, performed the ceremony, the single ring service being used. The bride wore a stunning gown of ivory tulle and carried a huge shower of Ophelia roses. There were no attendants. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. The dining room was artistically decorated with snapdragons and rhododendrons. Dr. and Mrs. Dean left on a wedding trip to Princeton, Lake George, Long Point and other places on Lake Champlain.

LIBERTY HEARING SET FOR FIRST OF WEEK BY SERVICE BOARD

The public service commission of Indiana will hold a hearing beginning at 1:30 p. m., Monday, in the court house, Liberty, in the matter of the petition of the Liberty Light and Power company for authority to increase the rates charged by the municipal utility for electric energy supplied to the people and industries of Richmond and also to the Liberty Light and Power company.

On Monday of this week the commission approved, after hearing her, the petition of the city of Richmond for increase in rates charged by the municipal utility for electric energy supplied to the people and industries of Richmond and also to the Liberty Light and Power company.

The petition of the Liberty Light and Power company sets forth the fact that rates and charges made by it are excessive and that it is asking for a reduction in rates.

The commission has made the new rates effective as of August 1 and is expediting the hearing in the Liberty Light and Power company's petition so that the order may be issued effective as of that date.

MADGE

The numerous names which come from the Persian word for pearl, Murward (child of light), include the very charming Madge. It made its first appearance as Marguerite and named the virgin martyr who became, before the fifth century, the recipient of the allegory of feminine innocence and faith, overcoming the dragon. Though the legend was Greek, it did not flourish in the Eastern Church, but Cremona laid claim to the maiden's relics and Hungary, in its first Christianity eagerly adopted the name. Curiously enough it reached Scotland almost at once and from there it went to Norway with the daughter of Alexander, whose bridal veil, the life of Sir Patrick Spens. It nearly came back from Scandinavia with her child, the Maid of Norway, but the Maid died on the voyage and her name reached England through France and Germany.

There were many English forms of this 'pearl-name'. Marguerite was the general favorite, though Margery ran at a close second. It is from the latter that Madge is descended. It found great popularity in England but it remained for its appearance in this country to mark the zenith of its vogue.

The pearl is of course Madge's talisman gem. The Persian notion that a pearl is formed from a drop of dew on which the moon's rays shine, imbues this gem with the power to bestow its charm and its exquisite purity on its wearer. Sunday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

Heart Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl and until of late have been keeping company with a boy two years older than myself. We were supposed to be going together steady, but several times he went with other girls and talked about me to them and then came to me and talked about the other girls.

Whenever I would tell him how he was acting he would either lie out of it or say I was jealous. I think a good deal of him as he has always acted a gentleman around me, but I don't want him to think he can run over me.

At present we are pined at one another, as I told him I didn't care to go with him. Please tell me what your advice is. BLONDIE.

I believe your decision was a good one. Now consider the matter settled and forget about him. You are mistaken when you say he always was a gentleman when with you. He was not a gentleman when he talked about the other girls. Such a man cannot be trusted and does not know the meaning of the word "friend."

The Diary of an Engaged Girl

By Phyllis Phillips

At five o'clock this afternoon I blew into Mother Edmonds' house a wee bit weary from my recent labors, but it's such a glorious weariness, this kind that attacks you after a day of the work you adore. It's a slow, exciting languor, like no other, that steals insidiously through your whole being, rendering you totally unresisting, and floatingly numb in every limb (some description that). You stretch out on any couch or bed that happens to be handy, and drift off into the great spaces peopled by silver silences most soothing. Mother Edmonds' mother and yet you are vaguely conscious of all that is going on about you, despite the fact that your eyes are closed, and your spirit in communication with the hushed corners of the world.

Mother Edmonds must have realized just how I felt, for she made no fuss about the chaise longue and rest without talking for half an hour before we had tea. It was sweet of her.

While I was lying there, awake as I thought, I suddenly heard a low, familiar laugh, and looked up to see Cecil heading over the stairs. He came and took me in his arms, as though I belonged to him, and kissed me hard upon the mouth. I kissed him back, and felt on fire. Then he held me tighter than ever, and his grasp hurt my arms cruelly, and I cried out. And then Jack rushed in, and stood at Cecil, and I cried out loudly. And awake to find Mother Edmonds bending over me in a concerned manner, and calling my name.

It had been all a dream, but the thought of it made me feel queer for a long time after. Mother Edmonds told me that I had signed my sleep and then groaned. She said that I must be very tired indeed.

S. in the Olympic games when in the final tryouts at Manhattan Beach recently she twice bettered the world's record for the 300-meter swim for women in open water. Asked whether the C. & O. lines were open to the receipt of wheat for Baltimore on Saturday, the local agent said: "I find no reason for refusing shipments of wheat over our line to Baltimore today."

The fact is there are so many points and gateways embargoed just now, that agents are not advised fully as to what they can or cannot do, except by referring to the higher-ups, besides conditions are changing from day to day.

Conditions are unchanged on the Pennsylvania lines. Some wheat is filtering into Cincinnati, depending on billing and destination, but wheat for the long haul east is not being taken via Columbus or Pittsburgh, from any central western point. How long this condition will exist is a railway problem, depending on the clearance of cars at point of congestion, also as to conditions of traffic at seaboard loading wharves for export.

Mr. Elkenberry says that so far they have had all the cars needed, but have none in sight after today, and if none received soon the elevators will quickly fill. Railroad refused two cars for the east on Friday, there being an embargo on wheat to go through Columbus. This is in line with the closing of the Pittsburgh gateway, to grain, during the past few days.

BIG DROP OF WHEAT IS FACTOR IN PRICE DURING LAST WEEK

CHICAGO, Ill., July 24.—Optimism in regard to a big yield of wheat this season despite black rust has helped to ease the wheat market.

Compared with a week ago, wheat quotations this morning were 1/2 cent lower. Corn showed gains of 1 1/2 c to 4 1/2 c and oats varied from half cent decline to 2c advance.

Official estimates that the Kansas wheat crop would be 37,000,000 bushels larger than had been expected last month was regarded by many traders as more than an offset for whatever damage might be done by black rust in the northwest. Later, too, there were forecasts by a leading expert that regardless of rust the spring wheat yield would total as much as 300,000,000 bushels.

Winter wheat was figured by him at 550,000,000 bushels. Timely rains in western Canada together with a surplus of export buying for Great Britain tended further to unsettle the confidence of bulls.

Persistent buying on the part of a big elevator company was largely responsible for the strength of corn. Besides, the market for wheat and rye receipts would soon be greatly curtailed. Rapid harvesting made the oats market weak.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The stock market continued under professional guidance this week, shorts making further inroads against quoted values, mainly as a result of fresh complications in the foreign situation.

Latest conditions in central Europe with special reference to Russo-Polish affairs, precipitated general weakness in the foreign exchange in the rates for bills on London falling to the lowest price in over three months. Sympathetic declines were recorded by remittances to almost every continental European center.
