

The Diary of an Engaged Girl

By Phyllis Phillips

July 21.—My life has become so tumultuous that I find that I have but little time for reflections. That is good and bad at the same time. Resting now after a most strenuous day. It is exactly half after midnight. I am alone, in the sheerest of night-gowns, plus a filmy negligee, and I feel like everything in the world but a bride! That means that I am not in a sentimental mood, but am filled with sterner thoughts and ambitions. (Don't know just what connection there is between ambition and being a bride, but—)

Got most of my work done before three o'clock today; it happened to be one of those lucky days. Made some funny sketches of a western bride arriving in town for her honeymoon. Saw her up at one of the big hotels. She was evidently a miner's bride, and was properly dazed and impressed by all about her. I caught one of these same dazed expressions.

Each day has its new type for me and my little pen. I certainly have all the variety that my heart has ever longed for, and then some. It keeps me on the move, and it sure does keep me amused. I never knew what hands could do (with apologies here to the composer of that charming little song), and mine are flying over the old Bristol board every minute, seems to me.

This is a great game. It keeps you on the qui-vivi and makes you observer. Oh, all of that! I find myself straining to catch every little detail of everybody's face and figure, not to mention peculiarities, on the street, and in the subway; in fact just wherever I happen to be. The "Leader" gives me more or less of a free hand, and that helps wonderfully.

Mr. Reade and I understand each other perfectly. We are in fact, quite attached to each other, if that is possible, in such a short space of time. And he seems to appreciate everything I do.

Some editor-persons are the grandest in the entire world, I'll say. And I don't need to go into any long explanations for this statement—it is self-evident!

Managed to get off at about three-

Heart Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: The average modern male person is full of egotism, is vain and silly. This fear of women that they may not capture one of these wiley creatures, their vain chasing of romance, is surely ruining men and boys.

Wake up, mothers! Why not teach your daughters a little independence. Teach her to earn and make her way in the world for herself. Teach her that she doesn't have to accept the attentions of any unworthy cad that comes along.

As one young man expressed himself, "You don't need a good character nor a clear name to make a hit these days. All you need is an automobile and you can go with any girl." High ideal that is, is it not, mothers?

Let's brace up and chase work a while and give romance a rest. My dear girls, widows and bachelor girls, let me assure you that you can buy automobiles of your own, likewise, stocks, bonds and real estate. You can go when you please and come back when you please. Let me assure you that will enjoy your romance less and life immensely. Take some vanity out of your brother man. It will teach him to respect himself and also you, and that character and not automobiles count with you, not money or position, but just clean manliness and modesty, a clean name and clean health.

The so-called romance of today needs to be sent to a good laundry for decency and respect and be washed. Then stenographers will not think themselves in love with their employers, mothers will not forget their motherhood and fathers their fatherhood. This is vital for a nation or a town of broken homes and broken hearts.

A BUSINESS WOMAN

Your letter is most interesting. It comes as a spur to better character and a halter to backsiding. I believe that women are beginning to accept your advice. Business women have increased and are increasing rapidly in numbers. Many of them feel that they can be happier earning their own luxuries than by marrying without love some man of unworthy character. I agree with you and the young man who expressed his opinion that the automobile ranks too high as an asset. In reality the man himself should count and not the fact that he owns an automobile.

Want To Keep Your Hair Perpetually Curly?

Perpetually wavy or curly hair is now within the means of every woman to possess. One need only get a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine from the druggist and apply a little of it occasionally with a clean tooth brush before doing up the hair. When this dries the most beautiful and natural looking waves and creases imaginable are in evidence. Wind and heat do not affect the curliness as where a heated iron has been used.

Liquid silmerine is so pure and harmless there is not the slightest danger of spotting the scalp or streaking the hair, and it leaves no sticky or greasy trace. It will also be appreciated as a beneficial dressing, as it keeps the hair so soft, silky and lustrous.—Advertisement.

is not nearly so pretty as its French equivalent, Jocelyn. It signifies—sportive or merry.

Etymologists tell us that it comes from the French Jole which was meant to express an inarticulate shout of ecstasy. The original cry is preserved in the Swiss Jodel or shout of the mountaineers. A number of feminine names have come from this happy source; among them the well known Joy, Jadoca which is frequent in Wales and Jacosa still in common usage among the English.

Nessa was awfully glad to see me, and do you know, now that I am on my own, so to speak, and on the way to becoming a real woman of the world, economically independent and all that, why I feel that people like Nessa and her gang will and do appreciate me for my own worth and not just as an attachment of Jack's. It's grand that!

I had the shock of my young life, when during the course of our conversation we got onto the subject of my Prince Charming, and quite naturally Nessa told me that he was married! Horrors! I felt my hair positively rising at the news. And he so romantic! Oh, dreamy eyes to be so deceiving. Not that he ever deceived me, for we hardly knew each other, and it never occurred to me to ask him as to his state, whether married or single. I just took it for granted that anyone with such a pair of dreamy brown eyes must naturally know that he by right belongs to the whole world of woman—not to one especially as he is an experienced man.

Bachelor Girl Sayings
By Helen Rowland

Oh dear! A woman never can express her true opinion of a man—not even on his tombstone!

It takes a lot of actual cleverness to write a brilliant and effective love-letter—but it takes a lot of actual brains to refrain from writing one.

When a couple are matched but not mated, they are as lonely and ineffectual as two left-hand gloves.

Three men are necessary to every charming woman's education; one who teaches her to love; one who teaches her that she is lovable; and one who teaches her how to inspire love.

Of course, I am only a poor, weak woman—but it looks to me as though the noble ambition of each political party is to "save the Country"—from the other party!

As a man grows older, you never can tell whether he will begin doing the things at which he used to be shocked or begin to be shocked at those who do the things he used to do.

A wise woman is one who knows exactly what a man means, when she knows that he is saying a lot of things that he doesn't mean.

If every gentleman were as polite as his chauffeur and every lady were as courteous and considerate as his husband's stenographer, there would be fewer romantic triangles of the drawing-room-office-garage variety.

A man's first love is always an "angel"—perhaps that's why it so seldom happens that he has the courage to marry her.

Some husbands are forever "turning over a new leaf"—and then blotting up the page.

SMART OUTING TOGS FOR A SUMMER IN THE MOUNTAINS

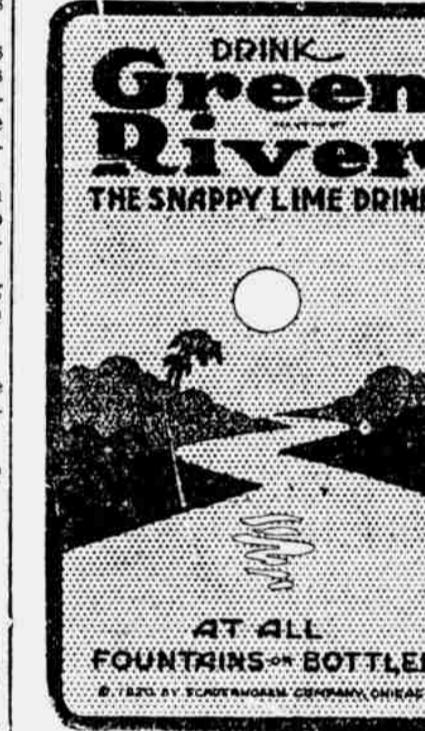

The girl who plans to spend her summer in the mountains must have a very different wardrobe from the girl who is to live in the country, in town or at the seashore during the hot months. She must have first of all plenty of warm clothes, warm coats, wraps and heavy skirts. Then there is always a necessity of heavy walking shoes. This year the separate skirt, usually a plaid of some kind, a sweater, short coat, or heavy topcoat, and a blouse to suit one's fancy is the accepted garb. Here are three outfit sets, every one featuring a plaid skirt, which would be ideal for the vacation at a mountain resort.

State School Board May Lengthen Day; In Meeting

It seems they are always doing something to make life miserable for the kid who is unfortunate enough to be compelled to go to school.

Now the state board of education is thinking very seriously of lengthening the school day to 4 o'clock instead of 3 o'clock as at the present time.

The matter was to be taken up at the meeting of the board Wednesday. Superintendent Williams attended.

JOINT BUYING PLANNED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 28.—A publisher's buying corporation, which ultimately will act for about 400 newspapers in the buying of newsprint paper, has been authorized by 25 members of the Midwest Newspaper league in conference here. The league includes publishers in Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Colorado and Nebraska.

Newspapers, which, according to plans will be served by the buying corporation, have total requirements of 75,000 to 100,000 tons of newsprint yearly.

CASTOR OIL
NOW MADE
TASTELESS

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil
100% Pure Castor Oil

The chemists of Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc., one of the world's largest manufacturers of castor oil, have perfected a remarkable process by which all nauseating taste is removed from this good old family remedy. Nothing is removed except the nauseating taste. Strength and purity remain the same—a 100% pure castor oil. You don't have to shudder when you take Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil. Doctors have always recommended castor oil, but everyone has dreaded taking it. Mothers can now give children castor oil without their even knowing what they are taking. Grown-ups will also appreciate this new form of the good old remedy. Sold by all good druggists. If you want a castor oil absolutely without nauseating taste, insist on genuine laboratory filled bottles, plainly labelled Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil. Three sizes, 15c, 35c and 65c.—Advertisement.
