

MYSTERY MAN MAY BE BROTHER-IN-LAW OF NEWCASTLE DOCTOR

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 18.—Dr. H. R. Parker, of Newcastle, Ind., was to summon his sister from Henderson, Ky., Wednesday in an effort to identify as her husband the stranger who has been at the city hospital since last Friday night, suffering from a loss of memory.

Dr. Parker visited the hospital twice yesterday, in the afternoon alone and in the evening with his daughter, Grace, 13 years old. Both are convinced that the stranger is R. F. Shepard, Dr. Parker's brother-in-law who formerly lived in Indianapolis and disappeared Nov. 18, 1918, leaving his wife and 4-year old daughter.

Dr. Parker said he could not identify the man positively because he had not seen him for two years before he appeared. He questioned him for two years before he disappeared. He questioned the man closely, but could not cause him to remember anything about his life before he wandered into police headquarters and asked for assistance. The man's features are identical with Shepard's, he said. Shepard suffered a broken right arm several years ago; the "unknown man" as he is called at the hospital, also had a broken arm at one time, an examination disclosed. The fractures were at the same place.

Tries to Recall Name.
The stranger showed no signs of recognition when he saw Dr. Parker or later when he saw the physician's daughter. Thinking the name of his own daughter—if he is Shepard—might stir his memory, Dr. Parker asked him if he had ever heard of Margaret Frances Shepard. Margaret Frances is now six and is with her mother in Kentucky.

The man studied a moment and then replied that the name Frances seemed to be familiar, but he could not associate it with any one he knew. Dr. Parker then recalled that Shepard's middle name was Francis and this aroused his further belief that the stranger really is Shepard.

Dr. Parker said that in every way he can recall the stranger at the hospital and his brother-in-law resemble. There is the same general contour of the features, curly hair that incline to stand out from the head and a similar profile and similar age. The man's eyes are considerably swollen, and Dr. Parker was not able to see them well. He said, however, that all other appearances indicated that the man is Shepard.

Employed as Machinist Here.
R. F. Shepard was a tool maker who came to Indianapolis from Newcastle in October, 1917. Before that time he was employed in various machine shops and automobile factories and followed the same line when he came to Indianapolis.

He married Miss Dora Parker, Dr. Parker's sister, eight or nine years ago. When he first came to Indianapolis the family lived on Lasalle street and later, when Shepard disappeared.

Use Coconut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisided coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get multisided coconut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

Pig Growing Contest

The various Hog Associations of Darke County and the Board of Directors of the Darke County Agricultural Society are holding a Pig Growing Contest and Sale at the Darke County Fair, Aug. 23 to 27th. The Fair Board is holding a contest of their own and the three associations of the County are each holding a contest of their own breed. The contest of the Fair Board is held for the purpose of educating the boys and girls of the County to fatten their hogs for market while the association contests are held to educate the youngsters to feed their pigs for breeding purposes only. There are 174 head of pigs entered in these contests and there is sure some rivalry among the contestants. The Poland China Association will hold a public sale of their pigs at 1 o'clock p. m. employment. That was the last he was ever seen. When he did not return his wife closed their home here and went to Kentucky. Dr. Parker saw an item in a newspaper about the stranger's appearance at police headquarters Friday night and came here as a result of a similarity in the description of the man.

MURRAY.

Coincidence is a wonderful thing. At any rate it often works to bring desired results. When Charles Maigne, director, and Faxon Dean, cameraman, were assigned to make "A Cumberland Romance" for Realart, those who made the assignment chose better than they knew.

"For 'A Cumberland Romance,' which will show at the Murray Theatre for the last time Wednesday as the latest starring vehicle for Mary Miles Minter, is a John Fox, Jr. story of the Cumberland Mountains. And as it happens both Maigne and Dean are born and bred Virginians, raised right among the people and scenes they are called upon to screen.

One result of this familiarity was that both were extremely hard to locate for the picture. Dean traveled for weeks through all parts of the country before he found a spot which suited him. He said the location was "more Cumberlandy than the Cumberland!" And the cabins seen are exact duplicates of mountaineer homes which Mr. Maigne saw in his boyhood.

An excellent cast has been chosen to support Miss Minter. Monte Blue is her leading man, while John Bowers, Guy Oliver and Martha Mattox are seen in big roles.

Mr. Maigne prepared his own script. He will be remembered as responsible for "The Copperhead," one of the year's great screen triumphs.

MURRETTE.

"It is always a source of amusement to me" confides Miss Norma Talmadge, whose latest photoplay success, "Yes or No" will be at the Murrette, Wednesday, "to hear some one speak of an actress' temperament. How absurd such a thing is. Why should a player have outbursts of temperament any more than a lawyer, doctor, artist or any other professional? Why is it necessary for them to give vent to these exhibitions of the eccentricity of genius any more than it is for a cook or a chambermaid to have similar outbursts.

"To my mind temperament means temper—nothing more, and I would blush to have any one accuse me of being temperamental. Although you could not get them to admit it, temperament has been the ruin of many prominent stars in the theatrical world. I recall one case off hand of one of the most prominent of the musical comedy stage possessed a few years ago, who through this so-called temperament lost her popularity with theatre goers to such an extent that she was finally forced to appear in a cabaret in order to obtain a livelihood. She realized her mistake before it was too late and finally re-established herself in the public's good graces and now—after wasting several years of her life, she is gradually regaining her popularity.

"As for me I am too busy to give vent to temperance when I had the desire. To me work is the surest preventative for this dread malady and I go in for this cure."

WASHINGTON.

"Dorothy Dalton, the pretty screen star, doesn't know when she made her debut as an actress. Somehow, she says, she seems to have been acting all her life. She cites incidents in her early childhood to prove it.

It was a favorite stunt of hers, for instance, when a little girl, to retire secretly to the family garret, array herself in some old cast-off garments belonging to adult members of the household, and then, scurry out of doors without being seen. A few moments later the doorbell would ring and Dorothy's mother would answer, only to discover her small daughter standing there in outlandish costume and pretending to be "Mrs. Jones from the Children's Mission" or "Miss Hopkins, a book agent." Generally Mrs. Dalton entered into the spirit of the game, and it was no surprise to her when, arrived at a debutante age, Dorothy revealed her ambitions to go upon the stage.

After a season or two in stage stock in Chicago, Miss Dalton received her chance in motion pictures from Thomas H. Ince, and the rest is well known. She is at present starring in "The Dark Mirror," which will be the photoplay attraction at the Washington Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday.
