

SUCCESSFUL CHAUTAUQUA CLOSING SUNDAY; HAS HAD BIGGEST CROWDS OF CAREER

Successful in every way was the 15th annual Chautauqua which closed a two weeks' session Sunday. Crowds have been good at every session, that of the first session exceeding all previous records, the attendance nearing 8,000.

On each of the succeeding Sundays the crowds exceeded 5,000 despite the inclement weather. The attendance during the two weeks has exceeded that of any previous Chautauqua.

Financial returns will be good, the management states, although the report will not be ready until the first of next week.

Have a Varied Program
Musical attractions and light entertainments were exceptionally good this year, including the Adanac Male Quartet, the Welsh Glee Singers, Crawford Adams and his company, the Chicago Operatic company, the Davies Light Opera company, Strickland Gillilan, Leon Cope, Sidney Landon, and others.

From an intellectual viewpoint, Dr. Arthur Rees, of the University of Pennsylvania, exceeded all other attractions. Dr. Rees had a remarkable fund of historical facts which he gave to his audience in an interesting way. He was unusually well informed on international political, historical and economical conditions and his lectures were invaluable to those who heard him.

An effort will undoubtedly be made to secure Dr. Rees for next year in response to a large number of requests which have also been made for William Lyons Phelps of Yale university, who lectured here last year.

Billy Sunday and Pussfoot Johnson drew out record-breaking crowds on the first and second Sundays.

America Unique, He Says
Governor W. L. Harding, of Iowa, was the headliner for the last Sunday. His subject was "America," our nation, he said, is unique in that here the individual is sovereign, the fetters of class and caste being broken and brain power reigns supreme. There is no aristocracy of blood in the American republic, he said, but there is in the United States a true aristocracy, that of brain.

The sooner America recognizes the power of the brain the sooner she will take the position she was intended to hold, said the speaker.

Our government, which Governor Harding said he believed had been created on the western hemisphere by God to solve the difficulties of man, is the same one with which we started, and is the oldest established government without change, on the face of the earth. The speaker advocated an educational campaign for the purpose of showing the people the advantages of its form.

Urges Everyone to Vote
As good citizens, Governor Harding urged every man and woman to vote. The person who does not cast his or her vote he termed a contemptible slacker. Dirty politics he attributed to a lack of clean men in politics which in turn is due to the vote of the people. The slacker, he says, has no right to raise his voice in complaint. When a man has been voted to a place of responsibility in America he is deserving of respect, not because he is the man but because of his office. There is no reason for class distinction in America.

The government, he continued, is one worthy of serious defense by every citizen whose duty it is to fight for it, which means putting into office clean men.

Persons who are advocating a change of government do so with selfish motives or through sheer ignorance. One flag and one language were appealed for by the speaker, who believes foreigners should, after a certain length of residence in this country learn the language and be good American citizens or be returned to the country of their allegiance.

An effective means of creating an American campaign is the school of America, which the speaker said is the 100 per cent institution of America, a purely American institution, and the outgrowth of American ideals.

Must Furnish Opportunity.
It is the duty of the state to furnish every boy and every girl an opportunity to find out early in life what they want to do and prepare them to do that thing well and in order to build up an institution which will accomplish this the speaker declared that the community must take it upon itself to build up the right kind of a school.

Governor Harding told that in his state they are housing the teachers of the rural communities, paying them twelve months in the year and giving them three year contracts.

The schools, he said, must give the boys and girls a chance to think for themselves. The happy man or woman he said is that one who has found the thing that he can do best and loves to do and in this lies the real success of America. As a second American institution which is a defense against anti-American movements, Governor Harding named the home. Again he said it is the duty of the state to furnish long time easy money for the man who wants to build a home.

In conclusion he declared America to be the land of opportunity and the hope of the world.

Landon, as Always, Delights.
Sidney Landon, impersonator, delighted his audience Saturday evening with his "likenesses of great men." "Making up" before an audience is always a good holding card. The first character was Victor Hugo, the genius and egotist, as he appeared, when he made his farewell speech in Paris on his 80th birthday. Victor Hugo's fame was cosmopolitan and his literary influence was not alone felt in France but spread over the world.

Mr. Landon as Edgar Wilson Nye gave a part of the speech "Our Boy". In a third impersonation of the well known Hoosier character of so many of Riley's poems, Mr. Landon created a great hit with his audience. In his last impersonation he appeared very well, as Longfellow as an old man.

The Hadley concert company gave four performances on Saturday and Sunday. The good selection of composition was the outstanding feature of the company. The company was composed of Grant Hadley, baritone, and manager; Karl Kraven, tenor; Laura Thiel, soprano; Agnes Kears, contralto; Lela Lowe, violinist; Rosie Rosini, cellist; and Carl Coleman, pianist.

As a Woman Thinketh

A CYNIC'S SERMONETTE
"Whales can swim at the rate of ten or twelve miles an hour."

At least, That's what the newspaper says. And, perhaps, it's right.

But I'm not a whale! And, for years and years, I've been desperately trying and TRYING to learn how to swim!

And, every summer, a different man has offered to "teach me."

And every summer, a different man has offered to "teach me," LET him.

And, every time, the cheerful volunteer has grasped the back of my bathing-suit, and held me like a kitten, that the family didn't want.

And said, "Now kick!" And I'd always kick, and go down head foremost.

And splutter and choke and struggle and sink—and be "rescued."

And find myself clinging fatuously around the man's neck!

And I'd be raving MAD—Mad at myself, and at the water, and at the man, and above all, at everybody who dared to laugh!

And so, at last, I determined to go "way off by myself, and simply SWIM—if it drowned me!"

And, little by little, my courage came, and I reached the point where I could paddle around with my feet off the ground, and was getting very conceited about it.

When a Human Fish, in a purple silk bathing-suit and Titian hair, flashed past me, and turned around to LAUGH, and to sing out,

"For Heaven's sake! Don't struggle so! You can't swim UPRIGHT! Just lie on top of the water and relax—as though you were in bed."

"You CAN'T sink—if you aren't afraid."

"God didn't make you that way!"

And I DID it—exactly as she said! And lo, I floated like a leaf, on top of the waves.

And pulled myself gently along

DE VALERA'S WIFE VISITS HIM HERE

Mrs. Eamonn de Valera.

Mrs. Eamonn de Valera, wife of the president of the "Irish republic," recently arrived in New York to visit her husband, who is in this country. "If Mayor MacSweeney dies my husband will go to England, get himself arrested and also starve himself to death," Mrs. de Valera declared on her arrival in New York.

through the velvet water, with my cupped hands—and swam, and swam and SWAM.

Without an effort! And it was heavenly! And suddenly, it seemed to me,

That it's just that way with LIFE—If you'll only relax, and stop struggling and straining, and getting mad, and holding onto yourself, and clinging to other people, And remember that you CAN'T sink—if you're not afraid—"GOD DIDN'T MAKE YOU THAT WAY!" You'll find yourself floating on top of the troubled waters And GETTING somewhere—without an effort! And, I know that this sounds like a sermonette, Which is very amusing—coming from a "cynic!" But "God didn't make me that way" And, sometimes, the "silver lining" shows through! And the waters of life seem like velvet.

And I HAVE to admit, That the world's all right!

Liberal Use of Fertilizer on Wheat Recommended

The Purdue Agricultural Experiment Station advises the sowing of wheat late enough to miss the Hessian fly and the use of 200 to 300 pounds per acre of high-grade fertilizer. Liberal use of fertilizer is necessary to offset the late sowing and, at present prices, fertilizer on wheat should pay two to four times.

We have in stock any analysis of fertilizer desired and are glad to quote prices.
