

MILLS ISSUES STATEMENT ON RESULTS OF EARLHAM ENDOWMENT FUND DRIVE

J. H. Mills, chairman of the executive committee of the Earlham college $500,000 endowment fund campaign, issued the following statement today:

As chairman of the executive committee appointed to present to the citizens of Wayne county the appeal of Earlham college for the raising of an endowment fund of $500,000.00; and as a citizen of Wayne county interested in all civic betterments, I am impelled to say publicly and without reservation that the executive committee, Dr. D. M. Edwards, president of Earlham college, and all co-workers appreciate the efforts and support of all citizens who have either in spirit or form been manifested.

The support of the press during the progress of the campaign has been wholesome and commendable in character. It should be commended and honored for its zealousness and continued anxiety, regardless of such achievement as was hoped for and found wanting.

The support of the press must continue in patient attitude to rally and rescue, then rally and rescue until victory is achieved. It is only through understanding with fair and intelligent citizens to have measured up to the exigencies of conditions, which so far are in suspense of despair, inactivity and disorganization.

Individuals Must Help
Patient patriotic fortitude and forbearance must be manifested through not only the press, but through individual considerations and decisions. We are only beginning to realize the vastness of the worthy undertaking and the many misunderstandings and interpretations possible for the public to apply in measuring the proposition.

The public mind entreated to act, though only in crude state, has, as might only be expected, not focused upon the goal in its initial form.

To be able to coordinate the press and the public mind in true union; to reap to the intelligence of a cultured community with a willingness to respect any and all opinions; to meet the objections of the buyer to whom we are to sell Earlham endowment in some practical form; to honestly admit having found conditions measurably different than had been hoped for and anticipated; to meet just criticism and endeavor to remove the cause; to fairly and justly remove each other's better; to assure the accomplishment of removing all barriers to the ultimate success of the appeal for rescue; to produce a community desire and passion to protect the honor and integrity of its people; to revive a manifest desire on the part of Earlham college as a whole; to cause our community as a whole to grasp Earlham college as a child and a part of its own so manifestly that Earlham college and Wayne county will be locally a cohesive unit one and inseparable; these are the labors and achievements to be dealt with by the executive committee by Earlham college.

Without patient, enduring service on the part of the press and the public as a whole, we shall only deserve to fail. With them we cannot fail, but will measure up to an overflowing standard of Wayne county.

The fight is only half begun. Only the initial charge has been made. We are only getting our bearings. Pray, let's not despair nor rush, push, push! If there were no opposition there could be no achievement, no battle, no victory.

Let's be brave. Let's honor opposition. It quite frequently happens that opposition is the deserving price of victory.

It is but fair and courageous—yes, honorable—to recognize opposition; to meet it fairly and courageously is the desire of the public servants who are saying the fight for achievement of practical character has only half begun. There can be no defeat of worthiness in Wayne county when the people are fairly and intelligently met on tenable Christian grounds.

It's the duty of the executive committee to compromise and counter-propose with Earlham college; and likewise should Earlham college compromise with the community by becoming pliable to amenable conditions as they exist.

Earlham college is satisfied with the present conditions and the attitude of the executive committee to whom has been entrusted in confidence her appeal. She has no criticism to offer to any individual nor to any group of individuals. Until she has been assured that Wayne county will not accept her into full fellowship in exchange for her becoming an own child of Wayne county in fellowship and spirit, she looks forward to a most glorious victory through confidence in the advance of all Christian endeavor.

In defense of any and all citizens having failed to subscribe to the Earlham Endowment fund, or in such amount as might have been hoped for, the executive committee accepts the present conditions as being satisfactory in proportion as community conditions warrant to date.

It is proposed to continue the effort, amend conditions, and produce in Wayne county a spirit worthy the price and sacrifice appealed for.

Wayne county has never failed to measure up to an overflowing standard on the real stuff.

It's the duty of the community and Earlham to compromise upon tenable Christian grounds, and the blessings appealed for will achieve.

The Executive Committee, Joseph H. Mills, Chairman.

Five Minutes with Our Presidents

By JAMES MORGAN

PRESIDENT HAYES

Our political system was put to three severe tests in the brief course of 15 years, and happily it weathered them all. The first and greatest was the Civil War. The impeachment of Andrew Johnson was the second. The third was the angry controversy over the Presidential election of 1876.

The tidal wave which swept down the Republicans in the Congressional elections of 1874 still was running so strongly in the campaign of 1876 that Hayes himself never was confident of his success. Nor was the country surprised to read in the headlines the morning after election that Tilden, the Democratic candidate, had won the race.

The Republican National Headquarters in New York City shut up shop early election night, and the Republican campaign managers went to bed resigned to defeat. While those politicians slept, four members of an editorial staff in New York still scanned the return and debated the headline to be written for the waiting presses of the Times. One of them was stoutly insisting that the election should not be given up as lost when a telegram came in from the Democratic Headquarters asking for information as to the result. That symptom of uncertainty in the camp of the supposed victors decided the question.

While the presses of the Times were roaring that the election was in doubt, a member of the little editorial council rushed over to the Fifth Avenue Hotel to cheer up the Republican Headquarters. As he entered the hotel, he was met by William E. Chandler, who was just coming in from his home in New Hampshire. Together they succeeded in arousing the sleeping chairman, Zach Chandler, of Michigan, who made the wires hum and threw the country into a mad uproar the next day with this claim: "Hayes and Wheeler have 185 votes and are elected."

The brilliant headline of the Chicago Times, a Democratic paper, thus recorded in flaming type the fluctuations in the feelings of the Democrats in the first three bewildering days after election: Wednesday—"Glory to God in the Highest"; Thursday—"Lord We Believe"; Friday—"Let Us Pray." Tilden was elected on the face of the returns, with 203 electoral votes, 106 for Hayes, and had also a plurality of 250,000 in the popular vote. His election ended rested on the same basis as Cleveland's in 1884 and Wilson's in 1916. But in 1876 the Republicans had not yet acquiesced in the suppression of the negro vote in the South. And it was not long before "persuaded" by various means from going to the poles, Tilden could not have been elected.

Both the Republicans and the Democrats claimed to have carried Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida, and from those States two sets of returns were sent to Washington. Who should decide between them? The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House, open the certificates, "and the votes shall then be counted."

But when there are two sets of votes, who shall say which shall be counted? "The President of the Senate," answered the Republicans, "said the Democrats, because one of the Houses was Democratic."

This, indeed, had been the way of doing it. But even if that practice had been followed, the problem would not have been solved. The Senate and the Democratic House never would have agreed. The result would have been two Presidents or no President at all, presumably with Grant holding on to the White House by main strength.

Compromise was necessary to save the Government from chaos and the country from another civil war. The bitter dispute was left to 15 men, one third of whom were Senators and another third were Representatives, equally divided between the parties. To guarantee a calm, judicial decision the remaining third were justices of the Supreme Court.

Nevertheless, the commission proceeded to decide every essential question in favor of Hayes by a strict party vote of 8 to 7. Also, the partisan zeal of that feverish hour burned just as fiercely beneath the gowns of the justices as under the frock coats of the legislators.

The judgment of the commission was without force in law until adopted by the two opposing Houses, and some disappointed Democrats in the House balked at ratifying the decision against Tilden. But representatives of Hayes 1876—Nov. 7, Tilden, the Democratic candidate, was elected President on the face of the returns.

Nov. 8, the Republicans claimed Hayes' election.
1877—Jan. 30, the electoral commission appointed.
Feb. 26, made The Wormley Hotel Bargain between Republicans and Southern Democrats.
March 1, Hayes started for Washington.
March 2, declared elected.
March 5, inaugurated 19th President, aged 54.

ALLIED COMMISSION MAY QUERY GERMANS

(By Associated Press)
PARIS, Oct. 6.—The interallied commission in Berlin will be requested to investigate the circumstances of the burning at Hamburg of the German steamship Bismarck, which was building at a shipyard in the port of Hamburg and was to have been delivered to the allies under the terms of the peace treaty.

Berlin dispatches on Tuesday announced the burning of the Bismarck, which was to have been a steamer of 56,000 gross tons (nearly 2,000 more than the tonnage of the Venterland, now the Leviathan) which would have made her the world's largest steamer and added that no explanation was given in the Hamburg advices as to the cause of the fire.

The Bismarck had been virtually completed and would have been surrendered to the interallied naval commission within a few weeks, according to the provisions of the treaty of Versailles. The French government also will ask Germany for explanations regarding the burning of the Bismarck, the foreign office stated today.

COX WORKS AT DESK BETWEEN WIDE TOURS

(By Associated Press)
DAYTON, O., Oct. 6.—Governor Cox took an early train for Columbus today, where he will attend to executive business before leaving on his second extensive campaign tour this evening.

While in the capital, he probably will confer with state Democratic leaders relative to the Ohio campaign, which he expects to enter actively himself, as soon as he completes the swing through Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois.

Desk Work Rest.
While there is considerable executive business to transact today, the Democratic candidate expects to find the office work a rest from active campaigning. His two days rest at his home here has served to put him in good shape for his coming tour.

Leaving Columbus at 5:10 this evening, the governor will enter the state of Kentucky tomorrow, making his first speech at Elizabethtown. In the afternoon he will speak at Bowling Green and at night in Nashville, Tenn. Friday he will speak in the morning at Paducah, Ky., and at night at Louisville.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—George White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who returned today with a conference with Governor Cox, announced that he had written to Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, urging him to do his utmost to obtain wide publicity for the covenant of the League of Nations.

WORLD POSTAL CONGRESS PONDERS TECHNICAL PROBLEMS

MADRID, Oct. 6.—Technical problems coming before the international postal congress in session here, have been referred to various committees which will consider them and present their conclusions to the whole congress for ratification. Chairmen of committees visited King Alfonso today to thank him for presiding at the opening session, and during their call presented the king an album containing a collection of stamps from all countries belonging to the postal union.

whispered to certain Southern Democrats in a secret conference at Wormley's Hotel that if they would let the Republicans have the Presidency, the Republican President would let them have their own State Governments. The bargain having been struck, it was kept. After a turbulent night session of the House the result of the election was declared at 4 o'clock in the morning of March 2, 1877, just 56 hours before the inauguration.

For three months Hayes himself had been alternating from day to day between expectation of success and defeat. Even when he started for Washington on March 1 he was still so uncertain that he frankly told the people of Columbus in his parting speech that he might be back with them and in the governor's chair again in less than a week.

This President-elect had passed through an ordeal such as had tried none of his predecessors, and he passed through it with becoming self-restraint. It was a strange ordeal also for the country. The capacity for self-government is measured by the readiness of men and parties and interests to compromise, to sacrifice, even to abide a momentary evil for the sake of the longer good. The American people had stood this acid test.

Cincinnati Institution Celebrates Second Year Of Americanization Work

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 6.—Two years of splendid work in the making of Americans will be celebrated by the Americanization executive committee of Cincinnati on Thanksgiving Day at the city's "Plymouth Rock" of the foreign born, American House. The second anniversary program will be under direction of Dr. John L. McLeish, head of the house.

The American House is said to be among the most efficiently organized institutions of its kind in the nation, and it has turned the admiring and emulative attention of many of the cities of the country toward Cincinnati. The foreigner learns not only the language but the institutions of his adopted America, and first people of the city call to talk to him about himself and his ambitions.

To every foreigner is extended the helping hand in numerous advantages of citizenship education, entertainment and social privileges. The motto of the American House, as coined by Dudley C. Outcalt, of Cincinnati, is "he may not understand our speech but he will understand our smile," and it has done more to win real Americans from the ranks of the immigrants than any other agency in the city. The Americanization committee is made up of a federal judge, the city superintendent of schools and a number of leading lawyers and business and professional men of the city.

Holland Immigrants Want American Farms; Are Prosperous People

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Assurance has been given to S. L. Veenstra, secretary of the Netherlands Emigration league, by Immigration Commissioner Wallis, on Ellis Island, that the United States authorities will aid in placing many immigrants from Holland who are planning to come to America.

Mr. Veenstra said that many thousands of Dutch were applying for pass ports to the United States, and that he had established a branch of the Emigration league here.

"There are three principal causes for our people wanting to come here," said Mr. Veenstra.

"First, there is naturally an accumulation of emigrants because of the years of the war. Secondly, Holland is being overcrowded by thousands of war refugees from other countries, and thirdly, many of our people are simply sick of Europe and all things European."

"But let it be understood, that they are not leaving Holland because they cannot make a living there. They are a most prosperous people and most of them will buy homes in the United States. They prefer farming and for that reason I am sure they will be welcome here."

Huddleston alleges that Porterfield misappropriated and appropriated to his own use funds rightly belonging to the firm to the approximate amount of $1,000. He alleges that Porterfield, since the partnership was formed, secretly carried on a business of selling real estate and made no record of the sales. He alleges that Porterfield has, from time to time, refused to make a settlement.
