The Blue Sky Man is Here Again

The special session of the Indiana general assembly enacted a blue sky law, but the measure, as was pointed out at the time of its passage, does not safeguard Indiana investors against blue sky operators and stock promotion salesmen.

A blue sky man is in Richmond now, and we may just as well be prepared to see others come in the future. Nothing can stop the efforts of men of this ilk to separate the unlucky investor from his money in exchange for stock certificates that are hardly worth the paper on which they are printed.

The promotion stock salesman has changed his method of operation in recent years. He surrounds his proposition with a semblance of financial soundness and tries to make the investor believe that instead of buying blue sky he is really buying something tangible.

One of the new methods follows this general course.

The promoter issues a prospectus in which he describes his offering in detail and presents his financial plan. He buys a factory site by paying a few hundred dollars as an initial payment. The public is left under the impression that the site has been bought and paid for in its entirety. At this stage a few local persons are interested in the enterprise, either because they do not understand fully what is intended, or because their stock is sold to them at a greatly reduced price.

When enough money has been realized from initial sales of stock, a factory building is erected. In the meantime, the promoter has been drawing regularly and without fail a commission of 15 per cent on every dollar's worth of stock that is issued.

After the building is completed, the insiders buy an old industrial concern that is ready to suspend or go into the hands of a receiver. This plant is then sold to the company at an enormous profit, the promoters, of course, pocketing the difference between what they paid for the concern and the price at which it was sold to the company which they are promoting.

As soon as the public has absorbed all the stock it will take, as soon as the "sucker list" supplies no more victims, the promoters resign from the company, and go to other fields to try the same game again.

The public may believe that the danger of investing in promotion stocks has been exaggerated, but there is hardly a periodical in the United States, daily, weekly or monthly, that has not printed article after article advising the investors to put their money into stocks and bonds that have been tested and tried.

The stock promoter knows that the public is gullible, that it wants to get rich quick, that it wants to get something for nothing; hence, he never tires of redressing old schemes, of presenting old plans under new guises, for he believes that a sucker is born every minute and all you have to do to hook him is to change your bait.

Dandruff Soon Ruins The Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefitted by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

READINESS.

I have always admired the ready person—the one with no complaints or excuses to offer when called for a task.

To be prepared to accept every change in life as it comes—and to do it with a sort of iron serenity—well, that is heroism de luxe!

Every star has its own set path—and it doesn't worry over running into any other star. For its way is a part of the order of the universe.

Readiness is an offspring of order. The well ordered man or woman takes things up in their turn—and sees through them. And their tasks do not overlap. One thing at a time—and that well done. Then the next job.

The ready person is never swept off his feet. He stands his ground—acres of circumstance at his face value—even though that value is very high. He pays it.

Old John Brown at Harper's Ferry saw his sons shot down before his very eyes—yet did he fight on. There was to him heroism of a readiness of mind and body that gave to him the fortitude to see in a great cause no personal fear.

Also readiness is a creator of calmness, courage and fineness of mental attitude.

There is a readiness of heart which sees in every misfortune a chance to serve. There is a readiness of mind which is able to grasp situations and face them and then to decide decisively.

Readiness is power!

Good Evening

Why pay rent to a haughty landlord of a dress suit when you can own your own and enjoy scenery that belongs to yourself?

This is a question for every young married man to take home and try on his piano. Thousands in moderate means are doing it. Why not become the owner instead of a mere tenant of a dress suit?

Contented millions have done it. Everybody is busy managing a cabinet for Harding, but so far as we are concerned, we will never be happy again if Secretary Daniels is not forced to stop looking through the port-hole of a battleship for the movie news reels.

There are only two times when a baby will cry—when there is something the matter with it and when there is nothing the matter with it. I never chase crooks and I don't know what I would do if I ever happened to meet one accidentally.

I don't think today's Caesar was as great a man as his press agents claimed, and I don't think any other man ever was, either.

I would like to offer my congratulations to the man who will not have to be president of this country for the next four years.

I have learned to live almost entirely without sleep since I have lived in the metropolis, and it isn't so bad at that.

Rippling Rhythms

PERIL.

I fear to cross the village street, where all the autos wind and mix, for I am shaky on my feet, and can't do acrobatic tricks. I tried this morning just for luck, to dodge across to Johnson's store, and I got tangled with a truck, and broke three ribs, or maybe more. By modern ways I'm badly bored; I can't ramble near or far, but some one climbs me with a Ford, or spoils my person with a car. In olden times when horses drew the vehicles in which men rode, a man could walk a verst or two, and have no scalp wounds to be sewed. Then one could cross the public way, according to his sane desires, and not be squashed beneath a dray, or wound around some rubber tires. You laugh to scorn the old time ways, the horses and their sluggish game; but trade went on in those brave days, and people got there just the same. And sports found just as much delight in driving Dexter or Maud S., as speeders in their autos bright, who fill the country with distress. I'd like to cross the village street, to have a haircut and shampoo, but I'm no longer blithe and fleet, I can't out-jump a kangaroo.

Dinner Stories

Mrs. Flatbush—Who is that man with the red nose you just bowed to?
Mr. Flatbush—Oh, he's a man I met out west.
"He is certainly not a Prohibitionist, is he?"
"Why, I never had occasion to ask him dear."
"But how did you happen to meet him?"
"Well, we were traveling out of Milwaukee on the same train one night. He had a bottle, and I discovered that I had a corkscrew."
