sowing wheat but that a lot of farmers are still at it.

They are offering 80 cents for old corn at Bath, but none is being sold.

No hard coal has been received so far this season and Mr. Demort sees no prospect of getting any, although they have tried to buy it. "These warm sunny days are saving a whole lot of corn, and the last of the silos are now being filled."

Can't Get Anthracite.
The Farmers Co-operative elevator at Camden says they have lots of orders for hard coal but thus far have been unable to get a single load, although they have tried nearly every known source of supply. They have managed to get soft coal right along, not in large quantity, but enough to keep patrons satisfied, in the hope of a larger supply for winter a little later.

Farmers are selling neither corn nor wheat now, except an odd load of wheat from time to time. The elevator would pay up to 85 cents for old corn but that price is not the liking of those who have old corn cribbed.

Soft Coal Coming
Frank Thompson, of the Hagerstown elevator, says they have been receiving some soft coal of late, two cars arriving this week, also that they now have a car of anthracite on the way. As to the grain situation he states that farmers are in no mood to sell anything at present prices. Silo filling will be over by the end of this week and corn around Hagerstown is practically out of danger from frost. Mr. Thompson says they have quit buying clover seed for the present, but did pay $10 per bushel not long since. The market is too uncertain to pay that price just now, he thinks.

Paid $2.10 for Wheat.
Frank Demort, manager of the elevator at Bath in Union county, took in a load of wheat on Wednesday, at $2.10, the top price heard of in this section during the present week. Mr. Demort says that it is pretty dry for
